Alexian bond sale OK, say accountants

A preliminary report on the proposed Elk Grove Village $23 million municipal bond sale for Alexian Brothers Medical Center shows the issue is feasible if a number of conditions are met.

The report, prepared by Ernest and Ernst accountants, outlines projected revenues of the hospital for the next four years based on completion of facilities and debt refinancing that would be made possible by the bond sale. Approval of the construction of those facilities, however, is required by several comprehensive health-planning agencies, according to the report.

The study was released Monday by Elk Grove Village Pres. Charles Zetek after hospital officials revoked an earlier pledge to disclose plans for the bond sale. The study is dated April 29, 1975. Village officials have said they were first approached by hospital administrators with the bond request May 5.

THE PROJECTION period for the report is through Dec. 31, 1979 and based on financial information supplied by the hospital management investment bankers and its architect for the proposed $14 million debt refinancing and $4 million expansion and renovation program through the bond sale. The remaining $3 million in the bond issue proceeds are required to be placed in escrow and $1 million is set aside to cover the hospital's expenses of arranging the sale.

The report indicates that "sufficient revenue and cash flow could be generated to meet the operating expenses of the proposed facilities and the debt service requirements of the proposed $25,525,000 bond issue during the period of the projections" if several conditions are met.

The conditions are first that the Elk Grove Village Board continue its willingness to sell the tax-exempt bonds for the hospital. The trustees have given only preliminary approval of the deal.

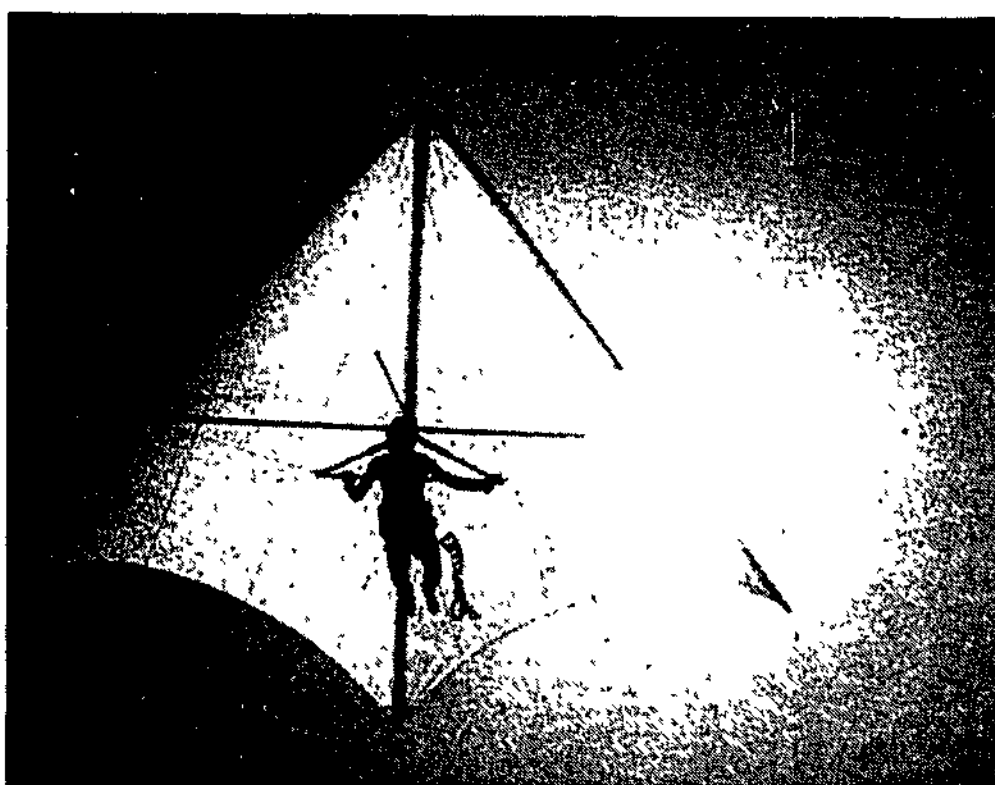

CONSTRUCTION BIDS also must be within the $4 million area anticipated by hospital officials for the expansion and renovation of facilities to be completed by October 1978, according to the report.

The construction program is to include completion in the new wing of the hospital of about 39 office suites for physicians, space for 20 additional medical-surgical beds, 12 additional coronary and intensive care beds, expanded ancillary and outpatient services, an assembly hall, various spaces for pastoral care, social services, resident physician quarters and in-service education.

Also, expansion of clinical laboratory services, administrative services, and cafeteria in the original hospital building. Parking facilities are planned for the physicians' office building and for the mental health and rehabilitation unit.

The report says that approval of several agencies is required before the hospital could proceed with the construction program including the Illinois

Schaumburg woman gets 3-9 years in plot to kill husband

Marlene Swimley of Schaumburg was sentenced Monday to three to nine years in prison for soliciting a man she believed was a contract killer to murder her husband.

Criminal Court Judge Marvin E. Aspen said in passing the sentence that Mrs. Swimley lacked credibility and displayed a "distant, cold detachment" to what she was doing. Murderers are not usually cold and detached, he said.

Mrs. Swimley, 33, of 322 Meacham Rd., posted a $25,000 appeal bond after the sentencing. Her attorney, Louis Carbonaro, could not be reached for comment.

After a nine-day trial ended May 1, a 10-woman, 2-man jury found the Schaumburg housewife guilty of trying to hire an undercover agent to kill her husband, Air National Guard Lt. Col. Duane A. Swimley, 46.

MRS. SWIMLEY was arrested Jan. 24, 1974 outside the Woodfield Theatre, where she met with Joseph Saladino, a state's attorney's investigator posing as a contract killer.

Judge Aspen referred to a tape recording of the meeting and said, "It might be argued that this was a bungled attempt. Except for a little bit of bad luck, it might have been a murder case."

In presentencing testimony Monday, Joan and Edward Danz, of Lombard, invoked the Fifth Amendment when asked by Assistant State's Atty. John DeRose about an airline refund check that bank records indicate was deposited in their account.

The records indicate it was later paid out in a check written to Harold Blaauw, once sued by Swimley for alienation of affection, though the suit was dropped before trial.

In earlier testimony it was revealed that Mrs. Swimley had offered a 15-year-old West Coast boy two airline tickets, which were never used, to kill her husband.

THE ALLEGED plot began when her son by a previous marriage, Joseph Enderle, 15, reportedly contacted a neighbor boy asking if he could obtain a "hit man" to be employed by his mother.

The neighbor later contacted a Rochester, N.Y., man, whose family contacted the County State's Attorney's office. Charges against Enderle for solicitation for murder later were dropped.

In other testimony Monday, Swimley denied that he "beat or slugged" his pregnant wife, causing a miscarriage.

"I've got my son. I'll have to start all over again," Swimley, who has custody of their son Duane, 8, said after sitting quietly through the sentencing.

He since has filed for divorce, charging his wife with adultery.

State to start moving trailer residents soon

State officials hope to begin relocating residents of the Elk Grove Mobile Homes Park, 941 Higgins Rd., Elk Grove Township, by the end of the summer.

Leo Eisel, director of the Illinois Division of Water Resources, Monday said a series of meetings will be held next month with the 750 residents of the trailer park to outline details of the relocation plan.

He said the relocation will begin as soon as the Forest Preserve District acquires the trailer park land.

"We would like to think that we can begin relocating residents by the end of the summer," Eisel said.

THE RELOCATION is needed because the property the trailer park occupies will become part of a 470-acre lake in the Upper Salt Creek Watershed Plan.

Meetings with the residents will be from 10 a.m. to noon and 2 to 4 p.m. June 14; 7 to 9 p.m. June 16, 17, 19 and 20; and 10 a.m. to noon June 21. All of the sessions will be in the Elk Grove Township Hall, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

Many residents of the trailer park have expressed apprehension over the proposed relocation plan, however Eisel said none of the residents will lose anything and some stand to gain.

"Federal law requires us to provide new housing equal to or better than what currently exists," he said, adding that some of the trailers in the park are old and probably could not be relocated. He indicated persons with old trailers will receive new housing and not just a cash settlement for the appraised value of the trailer.

EISEL SAID reservations are being made to relocate some of the residents at the Oasis Mobile Home Park near O'Hare Airport.

He said the state also will notify residents of the trailer park about the meetings by letter, and ask them to attend a specific session.

"We are planning the meetings for nights and weekends in an effort to accommodate all the residents," a spokesman for Eisel said.

State holiday death toll dips

Holiday traffic deaths increase

The number of traffic fatalities over the Memorial Day weekend increased despite continuation this year of lower speed limits on the nation's highways.

Figures for the first of the warm weather national holidays appeared contrary to the trend set for Memorial Day 1974 when 390 persons were killed in traffic accidents, a 14-year low.

The lower speed limits were attributed in part to saving between 8,000 to 10,000 lives during 1974, the National Safety Council said. Other reasons included the energy crunch and the economy.

Highway deaths for 1974 were 48,000 the lowest since 1964 when 47,000 were killed. In 1973, the total was 55,800. In Illinois there were 1,956 traffic deaths during 1974 compared to 2,331 in 1973.

A United Press International count Monday showed 366 persons had died on the nation's highways since the holiday period began at 6 p.m. Friday.

by United Press International

A plane crash killing five persons and a car accident resulting in the death of a Waukegan man were among the worst accidents in Illinois during the Memorial Day holiday.

By late afternoon Monday, UPI's fatality count in Illinois showed 12 persons had died in traffic accidents, five in a plane crash and five in drownings.

State police said 26 persons were killed in traffic accidents in Illinois during the 1974 three-day Memorial holiday and 29 died during the three-day period in 1973.

AMONG THE ACCIDENTS marring the holiday this year was the crash Saturday night of a single-engine plane carrying the Edward Kikelo family of Chicago. Police said Kikelo, his wife, two children and his sister, were en route to their Wisconsin farm when the plane went down. Their bodies were found Sunday night.

In a two-car accident Monday, Benny Levy Jr. of Waukegan was killed and five persons injured. Police said Levy's car veered across the median on Interstate 55 near Joliet and hit a car driven by Henry Walters.

A number of children were among the victims of holiday accidents.

Six-year-old Colin Smith died near Naperville when he darted in front of a squad car. Thirteen-year-old Bryan King of Quincy was killed by a hit-and-run driver while riding his bicycle Sunday night. Three teen-age boys from Chicago, Charleston and DeKalb drowned in separate incidents, and a Chicago youth was electrocuted in a backyard accident at his home.

IN OTHER ACCIDENTS, David Kleiman, 19, of Hessville, Ind., was killed in Bloom Township when his car struck an object and crashed on the Calumet Expressway.

Thomas Zaborsky, 25, Worth, was killed early Sunday when his car crashed head-on with a car driven by Pantella Peronis, 21, Crown Point, Ind., who was seriously injured. Police said Peronis was driving the wrong way in the eastbound lane of Interstate 80 when the accident occurred.

Poor get—you guessed it—the least

Rich benefit most from tax laws

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Treasury figures show that the wealthiest 1.2 per cent of taxpayers draw 23 per cent of the benefits from tax-law exclusions, exemptions, deductions, credits, preferences and deferrals.

These tax provisions — called "tax expenditures" — reduced the amount of taxes that otherwise would have been paid in 1974 by $38 billion, the Treasury figures show.

Of that amount, $13.4 billion in benefits went to the 1.2 per cent of taxpayers whose adjusted gross income was over $50,000.

SEN. WALTER F. Mondale, D-Minn., a member of the Senate Budget Committee, published the figures Monday with a call for scrutiny of tax expenditures to "make certain they are serving the purposes for which they were intended efficiently and at the lowest possible cost."

"If the federal government is, in effect, going to be spending money to support or reward certain activities, we must determine whether it makes sense to do so under a system which provides the least benefits to those with the highest incomes," Mondale said.

The Treasury figures, prepared at his request, show that the poorest taxpayers receive the least benefit from tax expenditures.

The 48.9 per cent of taxpayers with adjusted gross income — income minus business expenses — of $10,000 or less received only $8.6 billion worth of tax relief from tax expenditures — 18.6 per cent of the total.

MIDDLE-INCOME taxpayers — those with adjusted gross incomes between $10,000 and $20,000 — accounted for 38.5 per cent of all tax returns but only 30.6 per cent of tax expenditures.

Among the largest tax expenditures and their value in tax relief were: The capital gains tax, which exempts one-half of such income from taxation, $8.7 billion; the deduction of interest paid on home mortgages, $4.9 billion; the deduction of property taxes, $4.1 billion; the deduction of medical expenses which exceed certain amounts, $2.1 billion; the exemption from taxes of the income earned on state and local bonds, $1.1 billion; the investment tax credit, $800 million; and the deduction of excess depreciation, $700 million.

MONDALE SAID, "Many tax expenditures serve a legitimate purpose and they should be continued. Others need to be examined to see whether they can be restructured so that their benefits are distributed more broadly and equitably."

"In still other cases, a direct expenditure, loan or guarantee program might work better than tax expenditure, and we should consider substituting one for the other."

"And finally, some tax expenditures serve no defensible purpose at all, and should be abolished."

Tax-exemption hike may not help elderly

The Illinois General Assembly's gift of an additional $500 in tax-assessment exemptions for senior citizens who own homes may not be much of a present, according to Marshall Theroux, Wheeling Township assessor.

The hike in the homestead exemption for homeowners older than 65 is structured so senior citizens with incomes of $7,000 or lower who live in moderately priced homes won't receive any additional benefits, the local township assessor said.

The homestead exemption recently was increased by the legislature from $1,500 to $2,000. It allows an elderly property owner to deduct part of the assessed value of his home on which real estate taxes are based.

WITH THE OLD homestead-exemption level of $1,500, the average senior citizen in the Northwest suburbs was able to save $115 per year on real estate taxes. With the new $2,000 exemption, the average amount saved will be closer to $155, Theroux said.

But while the increased exemption reduces tax bills, the lower tax bills, in turn, can cut benefits some homeowners receive on another program to aid the elderly, the "circuit breaker."

The circuit breaker, a program of refunding the amount of property tax over a set percentage of income paid by elderly homeowners, is based on the amount of real estate taxes paid as well as on income levels, Theroux explains.

Many homeowners will merely break even, receiving less cash from the state while they are paying lower taxes.

THEROUX EXPLAINED he discovered the bias against low-income senior citizens with modest homes while working on a chart to illustrate benefits available to the elderly at different income levels.

He discovered:

- The increased exemption will help senior citizens whose incomes are $9,000 or higher and some low-income elderly with houses valued in the $50,000 range.
- Senior citizens who own homes in the $30,000 price range with annual property taxes of about $500 will merely break even if their incomes are below the $9,000 range.
- A senior citizen whose house is taxed at $700 per year begins to benefit from the additional exemption if his income is in the $5,000 range or higher.
- With a house taxed at the level of $900 per year (an estimated $50,000 market value), even an elderly homeowner who makes $2,000 per year will get an increase in benefits.

LAWMAKERS may already have overused tax exemption relief to senior citizens as a way of helping the elderly, Theroux said. He said many low-income senior citizens with small homes are paying virtually no real estate taxes now as a result of the various programs.

"Further benefits for this group will probably have to be based on criteria other than property taxes," Theroux said.

Theroux prepared his analysis of benefits for the elderly to help local village officials, senior citizens' commissions, local legislators, senior citizens' clubs, township officials and the countywide Suburban Cook County Area Agency on Aging in counseling senior citizens about benefits available to them under the state tax exemptions, circuit breaker and cash grant program.

Keep U.S. cash program: townships

Wheeling Township officials are leading a local drive to persuade Congress to retain the federal revenue-sharing program, when it expires next year. Ethel Kolerus, Wheeling Township supervisor, said Monday the township will survey other townships in the county on their use of revenue-sharing funds during the past four years. The survey is being conducted at the request of the Township Officials of Cook County organization, which hopes to show Congress what kinds of community services have been provided through the program. "Township officials want the revenue-sharing program continued because we have been able to provide social services to residents without additional taxation. We want to back up our request with facts," Mrs. Kolerus said.

'Major center' by year 2000

Lake County planning officials predict that Buffalo Grove and its surrounding area will become a major center of population and commerce in the county by the year 2000. The prediction is part of data contained in the newest Lake County Comprehensive Plan, which will be brought before the county board for approval in July. Syd Smith, principal chief of the county's advance planning division, said the Buffalo Grove area will be one of the "center groupings" of urban use. Other areas predicted as "center groupings" include Libertyville, Mundelein, Barrington and Barrington Hills.

Ford signs bill authorizing $1.1 billion Amtrak spending

President Ford Monday signed a bill authorizing the spending of $1.1 billion to cover operating expenses as well as better equipment and service by Amtrak, the semi-public national rail passenger corporation. Ford, in a statement announcing his signing of the 1975 Amtrak Improvement Act, said this bill would give the corporation's directors "the flexibility necessary" to manage affairs effectively and "this should result in improved intercity rail passenger service."

The measure authorized $245 million in appropriations for capital grants, and additional spending of $873 million to help Amtrak meet operating expenses through 1977.

A Phoenix, Ariz., man piloting a light plane apparently lost his sense of direction in the clouds over Costa Mesa, Calif. Monday and crashed into a house. The crash killed the pilot instantly and seriously injured a man standing in the front yard of his home. The wreckage caused extensive damage to one home and three cars and minor damage to two other homes.

The pilot was identified as Edward Ketchum of Phoenix. The injured man, Norman Harlan, suffered third degree burns and lacerations and was taken to Orange County Hospital.

Military bypassing Portugal politics

Portugal's military leadership declared early Tuesday it is bypassing political party leaders and establishing its own alliance with the people to "guarantee a correct sequence of the revolutionary process." The Armed Forces Movement announced it would "set up a group to develop the alliance of the MFA with popular structures" — or workers committees. The announcement emphasized this did not mean abolition of the political parties.

Nation's war dead remembered

'U.S. must stand for what is right'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford paid homage to the nation's war dead on Memorial Day and warned Americans would risk their freedom unless they maintain the military might to deal with future international law-breakers.

"Although we live in a rapidly changing world, some things remain the same," Ford said in noontime ceremonies at Arlington National Cemetery.

"One is the need to maintain our military strength. For as long as there are lawbreakers in the world, we must have the strength and the resolve to stand up for what is right."

"It is the price we have always paid for being free. It is the price we must be willing to pay in the future."

A crowd, estimated at about 4,500 by cemetery officials, broke into applause at that point in Ford's brief speech — delivered in an outdoor amphitheater immediately after the President had placed a wreath of red, white and blue flowers on the marble Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Ford made no specific mention of the Communist victories in South Vietnam and Cambodia, or of the crisis triggered by the Cambodian seizure of the unarmed U.S. merchant ship Mayaguez.

But the President said "the United States will not falter in its determination" to get an accounting of Americans still listed as "missing in action" long after U.S. withdrawal from the Vietnam war.

And, in an apparent reference to the 15 Americans killed in the Mayaguez rescue operation, he said: "Today we pay tribute not only to our war-time dead, but to those who made the same sacrifice in keeping the peace. They have proven that the quality of heroism — of love of country and willingness to serve in time of troubles — beats just as strong in American hearts today as ever."

On the way to the ceremony, the President passed row after row of tombstones marking the graves of more than 165,000 U.S. servicemen who have been buried there after every war since the Revolution. Miniature American flags fluttered in front of the graves.

The President said he hoped the nation could enjoy the fruits of peace made possible by those who died in service to the country. "They will not have died in vain — and their loved ones will not have suffered in vain — if we vow to live our lives in the cause of honor, freedom, and justice that they so gallantly served," he said.

The morning was cold and gray but the weather cleared as the traditional ceremony of remembrance began.

Ford drove across the Potomac river to the cemetery after holding an early morning meeting with his top economic policy advisors in preparation for his upcoming trip to Europe.

Ford will leave Wednesday, with stops in Brussels and Spain before going to Austria to discuss the Middle East situation with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. He will head back to Washington June 3rd after seeing Pope Paul in Rome.

U.S. to hear Ford energy talk

Plan will increase gasoline prices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford will impose another $1 tariff on each barrel of imported crude oil June 1, a move that will push the price of a gallon of gasoline 1.5 cents higher, White House sources said Monday.

Ford will announce his decision at 7:30 p.m. CDT Tuesday in a 10-minute, broadcast speech to the nation from his White House office.

The White House said Ford was acting "in the absence of any congressional action" on the comprehensive energy conservation bill he sent to Capitol Hill five months ago.

Ford couldn't wait any longer, one aid said, because "Congress has done nothing."

The President imposed the first of three planned $1 tariff boosts on imported crude oil Feb. 1 in an effort to curb domestic consumption and reduce reliance on foreign oil through higher prices.

He later postponed the March and April tariff increases to give Congress more time to draft an alternative plan.

White House sources said Ford would "harshly criticize" the House and Senate for failing to act.

Ford's address will come with Congress in the midst of a 10-day Memorial Day recess.

If Ford chooses to lift the oil import tariff to $2 per barrel, administration officials have said gasoline prices would go up a penny and a half a gallon, other petroleum products prices would climb and many consumers would have to pay more for higher production and distribution costs.

These officials said the President felt higher prices would cut consumption and reduce U.S. reliance on foreign oil.

Ford, in an interview last Friday, said imposing the extra tariff might spur a Congress that had "failed very badly" by starting its holiday recess without acting on an energy bill.

Democratic congressional leaders have promised quick action on energy legislation after members return June 2nd. But it appeared they were far from united.

The House Ways and Means Committee has approved legislation that would raise taxes on gasoline from 3 cents a gallon next January 1 to 20 cents a gallon if consumption is not reduced. That bill also would levy a tax on cars that do not have high fuel efficiency and it would limit oil imports.

The Committee chairman, Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., predicted Sunday that the bill would win House approval with few significant revisions and be sent to the Senate promptly.

Ford also has been threatening to start phasing out price controls on all domestically produced oil.

The White House announcement Monday gave no indication whether Ford would deal with that in his speech, but administration sources said the President probably would wait a little longer before taking any action in that area.

Lifting domestic oil price controls now would more than double the present cost of $5.25 per barrel for about half the oil produced in the U.S. The sources said Ford might prefer merely to let the present controls expire August 31.

But administration sources said Ford felt that he could not wait so long for Congress to act without taking some steps of his own and that his consideration of the additional tariff was influenced partly by reports that Arab oil producers were planning to raise their prices, perhaps by $2 per barrel in September.

Said one source: "If the President goes ahead with the second $1 of the tariff now, maybe the oil cartel will not make such a large increase."

Administration officials, including Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb, have been trying for weeks to work out a compromise bill with congressional Democrats. Ford got an updated report on those negotiations Saturday at a 90 minute meeting with key energy advisors.

On Sunday, as Ullman was speaking optimistically of the prospects for congressional action, House Democratic leader, Thomas P. O'Neill of Mass., was quoted as saying that the outlook still was uncertain.

He told the Boston Globe he saw "no possibility" of getting approval for a 20 cent per gallon increase in the gasoline tax and "it's tough to write an energy bill, particularly when the crisis is not visible."

Lebanon military government quits after three days 'to save country'

BEIRUT (UPI) — Lebanon's first military government in nearly 32 years of independence resigned after three days Monday, sparking a new political crisis for a country its own President, Suleiman Franjeh, described as a "sick man dying."

Faced with mounting demands by Moslem and leftist leaders for a return to civilian rule, Brig. Gen. Nur reddin Rifai resigned as premier "in order to save the country from bloody incidents."

Rifai came out of retirement Friday at the age of 76 to head a government pledged to end the fighting. His 70 hours in office was the shortest by a Lebanese premier since independence.

President Suleiman Franjeh accepted Rifai's resignation but in a bitter farewell speech to the departing cabinet defended the appointment as an emergency action "to put out a raging fire."

Elsewhere in the city Monday, ten persons were killed and more than a dozen wounded in violations of a shaky cease-fire between warring Palestinian guerrillas and right-wing Lebanese nationalists.

Sporadic shooting and sniping continued in some sections of the capital, although the hail of rocket and mortar fire that has terrorized the city for the past week died down and the cease-fire appeared to be generally holding.

In Tel Aviv, meanwhile, Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said the United States still has a key role to play in arranging a Middle East peace, despite the collapse of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's last attempt at shuttle diplomacy in the region.

In another report the Israeli military command denied claims by a Lebanese military spokesman that Israeli troops entered southern Lebanon in raids against suspected Arab guerrilla concentrations.

Tanzania rejects demands for ransom-student swap

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (UPI) — Tanzania Monday rejected a demand by Marxist guerrillas for a half million dollar ransom, weapons and the release of two radical leaders in exchange for the lives of three students they are holding hostage.

A Tanzanian spokesman admitted the decision placed the lives of the hostages — two Americans and a Dutch woman — in considerable danger since the guerrillas had made clear their freedom depended on a positive response by officials.

"The kidnappers have been given a 60-day deadline," official spokesman Ben Mikapa said following an emergency cabinet meeting presided over by President Julius Nyerere. "Tanzania has firmly rejected all the demands and this decision is final and will not be changed."

"Tanzania will not be blackmailed," he said. "Now we must wait."

The latest developments occurred after the guerrillas released unharmed Sunday a fourth hostage, Barbara B. Smuts, 24, of Ann Arbor, Mich.

Mikapa said the guerrillas from the Marxist Popular Revolutionary party in neighboring Zaire, listed their demands in a series of letters they wrote and Miss Smuts carried to Nyerere and American authorities.

The rebels, who have been fighting the central Zaire government for years, captured Miss Smuts and Americans Carrie Jane Hunter of Atherton, Calif., and Kenneth Smith, 22 of Garden Grove, Calif., and Emilio Bergman, a Dutch national, in a raid eight days ago on a Tanzanian wildlife research center.

The 40 heavily armed guerrillas whisked the hostages 25 miles to a jungle hideout.

Tempest Storm reports burlesque has had it

Price marking your own groceries appeals to customers of all ages at Jewel's experimental concept in shopping.

Chain hopes new discount grocery to be a 'Jewel'

by PAT GERLACH

Imagine going into a grocery store, picking up a marker, pricing your own merchandise, bagging it and totting the parcels out to the car. All without the help of store employees.

Well, shoppers at the new Budget Food Store in Schaumburg are doing it every day, and store officials say the consumers are saving money by the do-it-yourself operation.

Opened May 8 at 1321 Golf Rd., just west of Woodfield Shopping Center, the store is a one-of-a-kind experiment of the Jewel Food Stores division of Jewel Companies. It is designed to appeal to customers interested in buying groceries at a bargain, officials said.

"IT'S A STRIPPED-DOWN operation, no frills, and with a greater element of self-service to deliver basic groceries at lower cost," said Jewel spokesman William Newby.

The new concept of grocery marketing depends on the shopper performing functions ordinarily done by employees, enabling lower pricing. The store has further cut costs by offering "tender cut" meat which Newby says has "USDA-inspected, leaner than choice grades, and mechanically tenderized."

Fresh fruits and vegetables are displayed in a wholesale market style with less trimming than in conventional stores. Day-old bread and pastries also are featured.

Newby said many items are stocked only in the cases, allowing a customer to buy individual items or purchase in case-lot quantity.

SAVINGS TO THE CUSTOMER is estimated at between 8 and 9 per cent by Newby and store manager Warren Korberg, though they point out that this varies depending on total food purchase.

The experimental marketing technique emphasizes the element of honesty on the part of the shopper. "The system definitely hinges on the integrity of the buyer," says Newby, explaining "we can't check and double-check every item or the whole system will fail."

So, how's business at the new store? "Very satisfactory," says Newby, cautioning that the operation is in its early stages.

"I think it's fantastic," said Jim Herman, a Schaumburg policeman, as he loaded produce items into his shopping cart, noting the 15-cent head lettuce selling for 40 cents at a nearby conventional Jewel Food Store.

Thrifty suburban shoppers believe money can be saved by marketing at Schaumburg's new budget foods store.

BEVERLY ADAMS, of Elk Grove Village, agrees, pointing to limes at 12 cents each. "My husband bought some of these at the Jewel in Elk Grove and paid 49 cents for two," she said.

Dave and Joyce Hauke, of Schaumburg, are sold on the Budget Store. "I think we did save nearly 8 per cent. Some of these prices are really good — like sugar, bread, and eggs," Dave said.

"So far it's cheaper than the other stores," said Genny Voyles of Hoffman Estates, as she pushed her rapidly filling cart through the aisles, confiding she "usually shops Jewel specials."

Schaumburg resident Mary Nagy thinks the Budget Store is "just like a place we have at home in Rochester, Minn., only there you have to bring your own bags and boxes."

The store has no service desk and accepts checks only for the amount of purchase. Hours are noon to 9 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday. It is closed Mondays.

Self-service is worth the savings to Beverly Adams of Elk Grove Village.

A mass Thursday at 6:30 p.m. in the school gym will be followed by an awards dinner at 8 p.m. at The Lancer Steak House restaurant, Schaumburg.

Friday at 8 p.m. 135 graduates will receive their diplomas. A tea hosted by the mothers' club will follow the ceremonies in the school cafeteria.

DOWN TO EARTH. Todd Christman of Arlington Heights peers out over the railing of a fire-truck snorkel after a ride 85 feet above the ground. The ride was all part of his being department chief for a day recently in LaPorte, Ind.

Balloon proves even better than his own wishing well

When it comes to distance there's not much to say about the ability of second grader Todd Christman of Arlington Heights.

But you have to admire his aim. While his fellow schoolmates at Windsor School in Arlington Heights, launched postcard carrying balloons earlier this month that made it across the lake into Michigan and even on into Canada, Todd's card made it only 100 miles east to LaPorte, Ind.

But his card, on which Todd wrote his wish to become a fireman, was found by LaPorte firefighter, Bob Wedow, who ended up fulfilling Todd's dream.

Wedow wrote back, "Who knows, Todd, this may be as lucky as finding a magic lamp as Aladdin once found with the genie inside . . . after all, we firefighters have to stick together."

WEDOW HELPED arrange "Todd Christmas Day," which started with a banquet for Todd and his family, then continued with tours, gifts from local merchants, a ride through LaPorte on a fire truck and even a ride in a snorkel.

Todd was proclaimed fire department chief for a day by LaPorte Mayor Dennis Smith, an honor that came with a fireman's helmet and fire department badge No. 1.

Dazed and a bit bewildered by all the attention he was getting, Todd ended the day at his second most favorite place outside of a firehouse — McDonald's.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Christman, Arlington Heights, Todd says he's sure now more than ever that he wants to be a fireman, although he's still a little interested in being a policeman.

To be sure, Todd said he's thinking about sending up another balloon.

Teens offered 'reliable' health data

The Regional Youth Service Bureau has started offering teen-agers health counseling and information that officials say was not generally available in the Northwest suburbs.

Sue Ross, new coordinator of the bureau's health counseling and information services, said "teens and their parents need to have more reliable information on health problems available to them free," and that "many teens are finding themselves in trouble just because they do not have informed sources to go to."

Mrs. Ross has been talking with high school, hospital, mental health and medical health agency officials since April, when she was hired as coordinator, to "pinpoint the kinds of health information and counseling teens aren't getting from other places in this area."

THE REGIONAL Youth Services Bureau serves residents of Palatine, Schaumburg and Elk Grove townships. The townships support its hotline and health services with $10,000 each year in federal revenue-sharing allocations.

Teen-agers have requested information on contraceptives, venereal disease, abortion and other health problems from the bureau, Mrs. Ross said.

"They can go to the Crossroads Clinic in Palatine for medical tests and examinations, and they can learn some of the basics about health problems in their high schools, but there aren't too many places they can go to ask health questions openly and confidentially," she said.

Mrs. Ross said she is planning to distribute a regular health newsletter to teens throughout the three-township area to give them updated health information.

She also is planning to have written and audio-visual health information available in her offices at The Bridge Youth Services, 434 1/2 E. Northwest Hwy. in Palatine, for teen-agers and their parents to use.

"TEEN-AGERS seem willing to ask for accurate information but don't have enough places to find it. Adults are just the opposite. Many of them want to know more about the same health problems, but are afraid to ask," she said.

The bureau has been offering free-part-time health counseling to teen-agers for the past year, "most of which has centered around unwanted pregnancy," said Margaret E. Herman, bureau director.

"We have been trying to help these girls decide what they should do about their pregnancy, and then we refer them to the agencies that can help them the most," Mrs. Herman said.

The bureau's part-time health counselor, Diane Wilkinson, counseled 45 teen-age girls on problem pregnancy last month compared to 23 girls who were counseled on pregnancy in April 1974, Mrs. Herman said.

"More teen-agers are becoming relaxed about coming here and talking with a professional about their health problems. We're not out to duplicate services offered by other area agencies. But we do have information resources that are not as available to them in this area," she said.

MRS. ROSS said she plans to expand the hours that health counseling for the 1975 street maintenance program.

The proposed program includes street repaving, street sealing, sidewalk and curb replacement.

Ordinances annexing two lots in the vicinity of Arlington Heights Road and Brantwood Avenue also are scheduled for action by the trustees. The 2.78-acre parcel west of Arlington Heights Road and the 5.05-acre parcel east of Arlington Heights Road would be zoned for single-family housing.

Rotarians raise $950 from sale for library

Rotary Club members of Elk Grove Village netted $950 in profit from the annual May book sale and will use the funds to help defray expenses of philanthropic projects.

Members were introduced to the Elk Grove Village librarian, Janet Steiner, at Thursday's luncheon meeting at the Maitre d' Restaurant. Miss Steiner described her work and the various services provided by the library.

Rotarian Wes Bois was last week's speaker. Bois talked about his work designing business literature.

THE REPORT ALSO states that projections of revenue are based on the hospital's ability to lease from between 80 to 100 per cent of the physicians' offices.

Other factors taken into account in estimating the hospital's expected revenues for the next four years include charges for patient services, Medicare, Medicaid and Blue Cross reimbursements, employee salaries and wages and costs of supplies.

Alexian Brothers officials were unavailable for comment on the report Monday because of the Memorial Day holiday, but have indicated they do not plan to release any information on the steps involved in arranging the bond sale until all plans are final in the next two months.

Many ways to clean fireplace

Dear Dorothy: Is there a special way to clean the sooty rocks that front a stone fireplace? I don't want to touch the rocks inside — just the outside. — Barbara Latham

There are quite a few ways to do it. But before you start with any of the methods, be sure the area adjacent is completely covered — cleaning a fireplace can be a quick way of ruining carpeting.

Many people use the regular spray detergents, applying from the bottom up. Any number use trisodium phosphate solutions. There are commercial preparations with just this solution.

One of our correspondents used a cup of dishwasher detergent in a half-bucket of very hot water and went to work with a kitchen baster and hand brush. She wiped the stones with a mild solution of household bleach and warm water. Anyone who tries cleaning a fireplace should remember that strong solutions call for either plastic buckets or glass containers.

Dear Dorothy: There is a "miracle" to cure oil-stained "miracle" fabrics. It's that oil soap made specifically for use on furniture. Its only drawback is that it looks and smells like axle grease. But put a little on the finger, apply to an oil stain, rub in, then throw into the washer with the other clothes and wash as usual. Dry, the "miracle" fabric is back to mint condition. — Joyce Manko

Dear Dorothy: Our poinsettia plant was all brown and dry. I mixed some African violet food with one aspirin in a cup of water and poured it into the plant. A few days later, the plant was greener and healthier than ever! — Andrea Hosten

This certainly isn't the recommended routine for poinsettias but, if anyone has a wilted brownish one, this little experiment may be worthwhile. What is there to lose?

A honeymoon in Smoky Mountains

A simple ceremony arranged by the bride and groom and held in the Bahai House of Worship in Wilmette united LaDeanna J. Richardson, daughter of the Harold E. Richardsons of Mount Prospect, and Michael B. Tamillo, son of the Eugene J. Tamillos of Des Plaines.

The May 3 nuptials consisted of passages the couple selected to be read by their parents and a personal exchange of vows by the bridal pair. No clergy was present, but the rites were witnessed by two members of the Bahai Spiritual Assembly.

LADEANNA AND Michael have been friends for four years. She is employed at Washington National Insurance Co., Evanston, and he is with Schedemantel & Trellier, Ltd., Architects, in Park Ridge.

The bride is a graduate of Western Kentucky University, Bowling Green, and the groom from Maine West High School and Washington University, St. Louis.

For the noon ceremony LaDeanna wore a gown her grandmother, Mrs. Gleoda Jean of Indianapolis, made for her of white ribbon lace. It featured an edging of ruffles on the square neck, long sleeves and full-length skirt. A hat covered with the same lace ruffles complemented her gown, and her bouquet was of yellow daisies and blue cornflowers.

OLD ORCHARD Country Club was the scene of a reception for 150 guests afterwards.

The newlyweds are settled in Mount Prospect since returning from a week's camping trip to Smoky Mountain National Park and a stay at Grove Park Inn, Asheville, N.C.

Fire in paint plant forces 3,000 to evacuate homes

Fire raged for two hours through a large Evanston paint plant early Monday, touching off numerous explosions and forcing the evacuation of 3,000 persons from their homes.

No injuries were reported during the fire at the Rust-Oleum plant. No one was at the facility except for a watchman who escaped.

Residents of a 15-square-block area were evacuated as firemen worked frantically to wet down a 60-by-30 foot propane tank which officials said could "make this place look like a desert" if it were to ignite.

Exploding 55-gallon drums of chemicals caused explosions that "sounded like World War II, like a direct hit on an ammo dump," said Frank Hattom, an area resident.

"They just keep popping away and then once in a while there's just a big boom that shakes the house. It sounds like a bomb going off when those big explosions come," another resident said.

Scott tells campaign funds

Atty. Gen. William J. Scott said Monday he has $110,000 in campaign funds and expects to raise another $175,000 at a June 3 dinner.

Scott also said his 1974 adjusted gross salary was $47,845 and total personal net worth about $125,000.

Scott said that Gov. Daniel Walker should make public the sources and amount of his 1972 campaign fund and charged Walker is evading the spirit of the state campaign disclosure law.

Plane crash kills five

The bodies of five persons, including two children, were found Sunday night in the wreckage of a single-engine plane in Carpentersville.

The dead were identified as Edward Kikelo, 31, the pilot; his wife, Mildred; their two children, Steven, 4, and James, 2; and Kikelo's sister, Mary Kikelo, 19.

The victims, all of Chicago, were flying to Wisconsin Saturday about the time Carpentersville police received a report that a plane was seen coming down in the area.

A search turned up no signs of a plane crash Saturday but a man walking in a wooded area Sunday night came upon one of the bodies scattered around the plane wreckage.

The flight originated from Midway

Airport and was last heard from through radio contact Saturday with the flight station at Wausau, Wis.

Search for body goes on

The search continued Monday for the last person missing after the explosion Friday at International Multi-Foods Corp. in Davenport, Iowa.

Tons of debris were removed from the area Sunday in an attempt to find Leon Robinson, 51, Rock Island, presumed to be dead. Another missing person was found Saturday, alive but badly burned. Grain inspector Fred Ryherd of Hampton was hospitalized in Rock Island.

One person was killed in the blast Friday and six others were hospitalized before the search began for Ryherd and Robinson.

The explosion blew off the top of the large elevator, destroyed several silos and threw concrete chunks into the Mississippi River, sinking a barge near the mill.

162 seeking a million

There will be 162 persons eligible for the sixth Illinois Lottery million-aires' drawing June 4 at the Student Center of Rock Valley Community College, Rockford.

The drawing, at 7 p.m., may be the largest to date in terms of qualifiers, said Ralph F. Batch, Lottery superintendent.

Suburb official indicted

Kenneth Haines, a former Oak Forest alderman, was indicted Monday on charges of depositing $13,000 worth of bad checks in the bank last year, then withdrawing that amount from his cash accounts.

Haines was an alderman at the time of the incidents. He lost his bid for reelection last April.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Is it hyperventilation?

My daughter is legally blind and is 28 years old. For about two years she has been having attacks that the doctor says are hyperventilation. She doesn't know why it happens and is very distressed about them.

Her hands get numb and she breathes awfully fast and a few times she got dizzy.

I can't afford to be going to different doctors all the time, and she wants help so badly. One doctor gave her tranquilizers and that didn't help at all. The doctor said something was troubling her and that causes the attacks, but she doesn't know what she is worried about, and it happens when she is relaxed and having no problems. No doctor has helped her. Could you please give us some reason why it could happen and please could you tell us what could be done for it.

The first day she took the prescribed tranquilizer she fell and split her forehead quite badly. The doctor reduced the dose, but it didn't help her one bit.

She has several attacks a week and then may not have any for a couple of weeks. They happened twice in church. We tell her to relax, but she says she tried and it just scares her when her hands get numb.

Hyperventilation attacks are simply attacks of over-breathing. You have noticed that she breathes rapidly when one of these attacks occur. Our body chemistry is very sensitive to changes. When you overbreathe you blow-off too much carbon dioxide, and it upsets the body chemistry. The change affects the acid-alkaline balance.

The chemical change in turn causes the small blood vessels to open up too much and if a person is standing upright or even seated upright he may feel dizzy or actually develop a deep faint.

There is even a change in the state of calcium in the body. These changes cause the spasm of the hands that you have noted.

The cause of overbreathing can be anxiety. The trick is finding out what causes the anxiety. Just having a medical problem and not understanding it can make a person anxious. That is why it is so important to make sure a patient understands his or her illness if she has one.

THERE IS NO WAY I can tell why your daughter is having attacks of hyperventilation. One would need to know her and her concerns, ambitions and relations with other people, in short, some of the psychological factors that are important to her responses. She may not be aware of being anxious, and most people who hyperventilate won't notice they are doing it until it starts causing symptoms as you describe.

Regardless of the psychological factors that may be causing the attacks you can do something to minimize the problem. First recognize that it is not a serious medical problem and it is not going to cause her any harm.

Second, when an attack does occur, or she feels the sensation starting, she can concentrate on breathing slowly and very shallowly. This will help her to build up her level of carbon dioxide in the blood and help her chemistry. I don't advise breath-holding though as that can precipitate a fainting episode. If possible she should lie down during the episode to avoid any tendency to faint. If she controls her breathing the attack will subside quickly.

Vote choice should be ours

The Electoral College, our system for choosing presidents, needs to be scrapped.

Based on the Founding Fathers' philosophy of limiting the franchise, and fear of mob rule, the system grants the choice of each state the entire Electoral College vote from that state. The system served the nation in an earlier time, but in the early 19th Century, the principle of popular election became accepted almost universally.

People today expect that the will of the majority will determine the next president.

Sen. Birch Bayh

The Electoral College is not simply a quaint holdover; it could elect the candidate receiving the fewer number of votes nationally, an event that would cast a shadow over the new presidency.

You don't have to go back any further than 1968 to see that our Electoral College could obstruct the popular will. In that year, it was feared that George Wallace's third party candidacy would cause a deadlock in the Electoral College and force the decision into Congress.

To rule out such possibilities, the Constitution should be amended to provide direct selection of the president. A measure to accomplish that has been introduced by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind.

Bayh's measure, however, falls short of what is needed, and we hope it will be changed at an early stage.

Under Bayh's amendment, if the leading candidate gains less than 40 per cent of the total popular vote, the election would be handed to Congress, which then would pick the president.

We agree that a candidate should be able to muster at least 40 per cent support to be elected; however, making Congress the arbiter in such a circumstance is not the proper approach. If popular choice is desired, then a runoff election seems the logical procedure to insure a majority president. The runoff process is used in several states and in other countries.

Bayh's amendment should be changed and then speedily acted upon by Congress and sent to the states.

The Electoral College denied the popular election of a president in 1824, 1876 and 1888. We should ensure that does not occur again. In 200 years of existence, the nation has learned to live with undiluted majority rule in its other elections, and it's time the process for selecting presidents is brought into line with our national commitment to popular rule.

We back bus plan

Wheeling Township has joined Elk Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg townships in providing bus service for the elderly.

Township officials have authorized $18,000 for a six-month test of the service, which will provide free transportation on a limited basis to senior citizens.

Bus transportation for the elderly in the three other townships has proved popular, meeting a need among those who are unable or unwilling to drive a car for essential errands such as shopping and visits to the doctor.

We commend the townships for their interest in the welfare of the elderly and urge senior citizens to take advantage of these programs.

The lighter side

'Let Peoria run New York City'

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON — New York City is reported on the verge of bankruptcy and may soon be holding a "going out of business" sale.

Municipal closing are nothing new, of course. There was a time when the countryside was veritably dotted with ghost towns. But New York's folding would mark the first time a major metropolis has gone under.

The immediate problem is $1 billion in bills due the end of June. Refusal of the U.S. government and private banks to lend the city any money appears to have exhausted conventional sources of relief.

Before the sheriff arrives to padlock the joint, however, there are a couple of other remedies that might be tried.

One possibility that should be explored is a merger with another city. Mergers to prevent foreclosures are a common practice in the business world and could well work for municipalities as well.

The idea would be for New York to merge with a city that is still financially sound. I'm not familiar with the fiscal condition of American cities, but for illustration purposes let's have New York merge with Peoria.

Peoria would assume New York's debts and at the same time take over the management of the city.

In other words, instead of functioning as an independent metropolis, New York would be operated as a subsidiary of Peoria.

I imagine the first thing Peoria would do would be to reopen New York under a new name.

At present, because of such nicknames as "Fun City" and "Baghdad on the Hudson," New York has a rather frivolous image. So Peoria would want its subsidiary's new name to project an aura of stability and substantiality.

In short, a name that would play in Peoria.

I'm only spittingballing now, but they might want to change New York's name to Peoria East. That has a nice solid ring to it.

There's no reason, however, for the merging to end there. Just as conglomerates, in which one firm takes over a variety of other firms, have helped keep certain businesses afloat, the salvation of our cities might be found in "meglomerates."

Once Peoria has gotten New York, or Peoria East, back on its feet, it could merge with several other hard-pressed cities, like ITT taking over Wonder Bread.

Oh, you'll probably hear a lot of yelps that Peoria is gaining municipal monopoly. If so, maybe Congress will grant it antitrust immunity, like baseball.

Better a monopolistic Peoria than a defunct New York.

He counters candidate's remarks

Mr. William Miseska:

Your comments as reported in the April 18 Herald concerning the residents of Plum Grove Countryside were indeed appalling. The residents of Countryside are proud to be part of Rolling Meadows and have reflected this with positive action.

Our participation in the election alone overrides any credibility of your careless remarks.

• Three of the four aldermanic candidates for Ward 1 were residents of Countryside.

• 376 residents of Precinct 2 voted (a very high percentage of registered voters).

If you would have shown a minimum interest to at least determine the true facts, perhaps history would have been changed.

Again, we were very disappointed in your remarks.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Miseska was an unsuccessful candidate for mayor in the April election.

He attacks Camelot Care Center article

I wish to take this opportunity to express my profound displeasure with your article of May 8, regarding Camelot Care Center. Factually the article is slanted and biased toward a point of view to discredit this worthwhile institution. Further, cheap journalistic tricks like making accusatory remarks in bold face and then leaving those remarks unsubstantiated in the body of the article are not in keeping with good journalism. I do not wish to associate myself with this type of poor quality journalistic practice; consequently, please cancel my subscription to your paper.

Foe cites radiation peril

by FRANKLIN L. GAGE

All across America, citizens are using their common sense and a few basic facts to work for a halt to further nuclear power plant development and a shutdown of existing plants.

These citizens seem to understand that nuclear power is the only way to boil water to generate electricity that endangers the very viability of our planet, not only for us but for future generations as well. Even the very dirtiest coal plant can't claim that distinction.

During each year of "normal" operation, each and every one of the thousand large nuclear plants projected by the turn of the century will produce the radioactive equivalent of 1,000 Hiroshima weapons. And because this radioactive poison is so fiendishly toxic for the next 100,000 years and longer, it must be more than 99.99 per cent contained essentially forever. Escape of just 1 per cent in a fully developed nuclear economy with 1,000 plants would equal the release of 10,000 Hiroshima weapons annually.

So a decision to "go nuclear" is a decision to trust the nuclear industry to be more than 99.99 per cent perfect. It hasn't been to date, and no other industry ever has either. How many even come close to 99 per cent? Yet failure to meet this requirement will result in a grotesquely, irreversibly contaminated planet.

Of all the poisons created by nuclear power, the most dangerous is probably plutonium, 400 pounds of which is produced each year per plant. It doesn't just go away — it takes 24,000 years for just half of it to decay. And it is a killer. Just one pound, evenly distributed, represents enough poison to produce nine billion human lung cancers.

The cancer hazard of plutonium is reason for sensible people to insist that nuclear power be stopped. But in addition, plutonium is the material from which nuclear weapons can be made. Just 20 pounds and the knowledge that can be found in popular encyclopedias and textbooks is all that is needed to produce a workable weapon. Hence, the introduction of nuclear power ushers in the age of private atomic bombs. Attempts to prevent theft and use of plutonium by blackmailers, terrorists, deranged persons, mobsters, etc. could instantly erase our civil liberties, and still fail to prevent the chaos of nuclear terrorism.

Unfortunately you can't have nuclear power and not have radioactive waste, including plutonium.

The advocates of nuclear power argue that we need the energy. That is agreed, but nuclear fission is not the answer. Since nuclear power could only supply about 30 per cent of our demand by the turn of the century, a massive investment in non-nuclear technology is going to have to be made anyway. And clean solar energy is the obvious alternative to dangerous nuclear power.

Even now, despite efforts by industry and government to hold back the development of solar power systems, no new technology need be developed to replace the 2-3 per cent of our energy demand now met by nuclear power. All that is needed is mass production of solar equipment to bring costs down. Automobiles certainly weren't cost competitive either until mass production began.

Unfortunately, big industry and big government are presently committed to nuclear power, so citizen action to reverse that policy is urgently needed. Fighting nuclear power now could make a difference for centuries to come.

'Excellent' library

I would like to thank whoever is responsible for the planning of the new Mount Prospect library.

I think it is an excellent project, not only for its educational benefits but also how it will modernize the town. The present public library does not have a sufficient amount of space for an adequate supply of books. This makes it evident that the need for a new library is long overdue.

Rips dual holiday

The idea of celebrating Memorial Day on two separate days is impractical and ridiculous.

On Monday, May 26, businesses close, while children go to school. On Friday, May 30, the schools are closed. Therefore, family and friends are not able to celebrate the holiday together.

The almanac

Today is Tuesday, May 27, the 147th day of 1975 with 218 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter.

The morning stars are Mars and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Gemini.

America poet Julia Ward was born May 27, 1819.

On this day in history:

• In 1935, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled unanimously that the National Recovery Act was unconstitutional. The act had been set up by President Franklin D. Roosevelt to combat the depression.

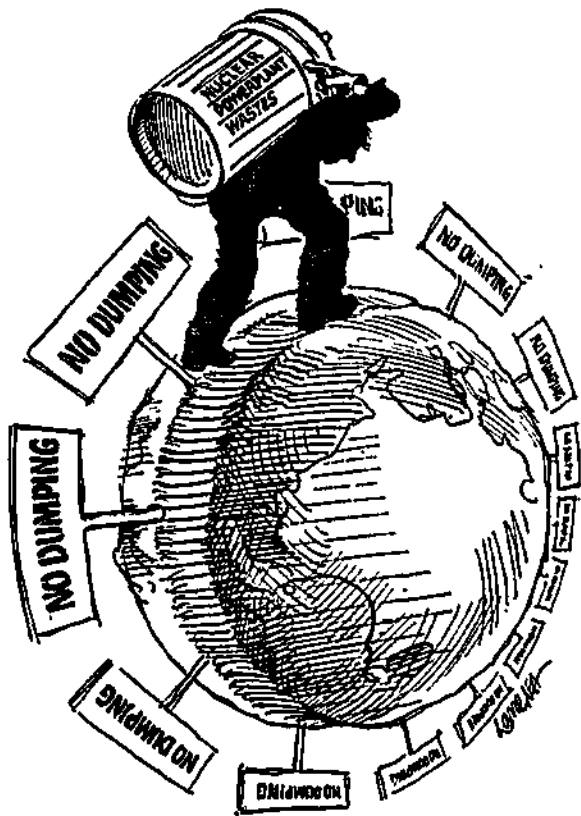

• In 1941, the German battleship "Bismarck" was sunk 400 miles west of Brest, France, in World War II.

• In 1968, the U.S. nuclear submarine "Scorpion" was lost with 99 men aboard.

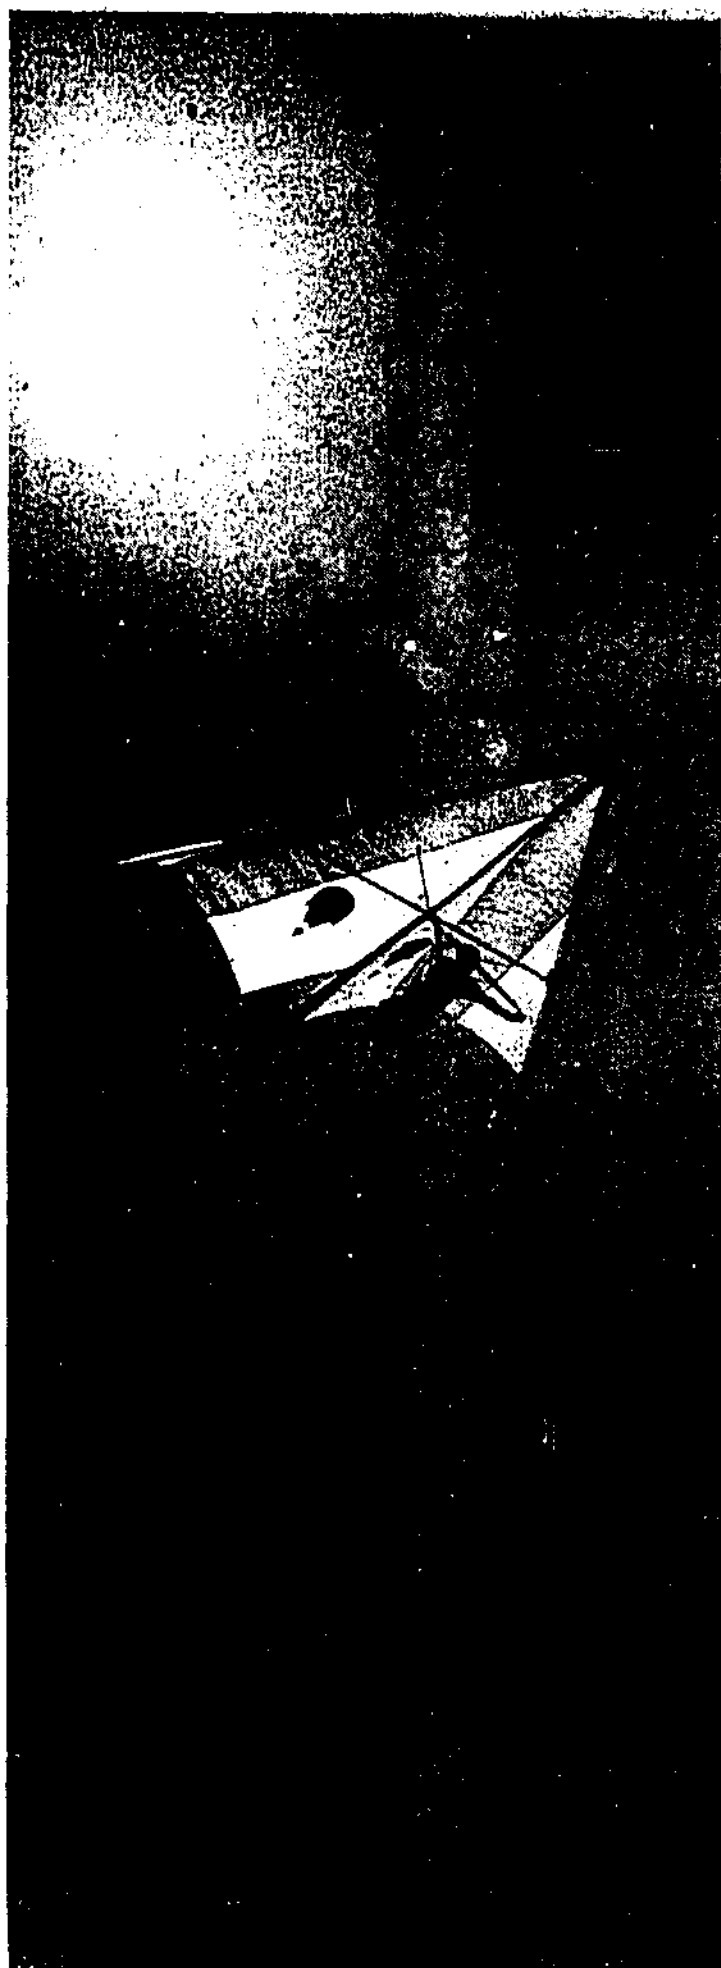

• In 1974, Gaullist Jacques Chirac was named premier of France.

A thought for the day: American author Mark Twain (Samuel Clemens) said, "Let us be thankful for the fools; but for them, the rest of us could not succeed."

Go fly...er...ride a kite

by JILL BETTNER

Don't just fly a kite this spring, hop on and take a ride. It's called sky-sailing and if you can move your tail and have more than just a little chutzpah, you can do it.

Sky-sailing or hang-gliding is not for the timid, but if you don't mind a few bumps and bruises and a little "run-way rash," it's a great way to experience the wildly exhilarating freedom of flight.

This is a sport for the young and adventurous, willing to take the risks involved for the thrill of it all. They meet every weekend at the best sky-sailing spot around here, Warren Dunes, Mich., about two hours from Chicago off Interstate 94.

DAVE SNOOK and Paul Makis, co-owners of Four Winds Sports, Mount Prospect, were among the first in the area to take up sky-sailing about two years ago. The sport has been popular in California since the early 1960s.

Makis said when the two first started flying at the dunes, they had the whole 200 foot sky-sailing hill to themselves. The hill now is literally covered every Saturday and Sunday with the bright-colored kites that resemble huge striped butterflies and average about $500 each.

It's no wonder, considering that Snook and Makis take the credit for training more than 4,200 "pilots" from the Chicago area, many of whom have since opened their own schools.

Through a cooperative agreement between Four Winds Sports and several park districts in the Northwest suburbs, area residents can get a break on the cost of learning the sport. By signing up for instruction at the school through a park district, the fee for the required ground school and a day of flying at Warren Dunes is $39.50. Four Winds normally charges $45. Participating park districts include Elk Grove, Palatine, Rolling Meadows and Arlington Heights.

IN EVENING ground-school sessions, Snook and Makis go over the components of the Dacron and aluminum sky-sail and "hang" their students from the ceiling of the store at 100 W. Prospect Ave. to give everyone an idea of what it feels like to be suspended from the kite while wearing the required harness and helmet.

The instructors also cover the history of the most popular type of sky-sail, the "Rogallo Wing," named for its co-inventors, Francis Rogallo, a National Aeronautics and Space Administration engineer, and his wife, Gertrude. The Rogallos designed the kite in 1948, but the one-man glider is as old as Leonardo Da Vinci, who first conceived it in the 16th Century.

Out at the dunes, the work begins. Contrary to what most people think, there's more to sky-sailing than dragging the kite up to the top of the hill and jumping off.

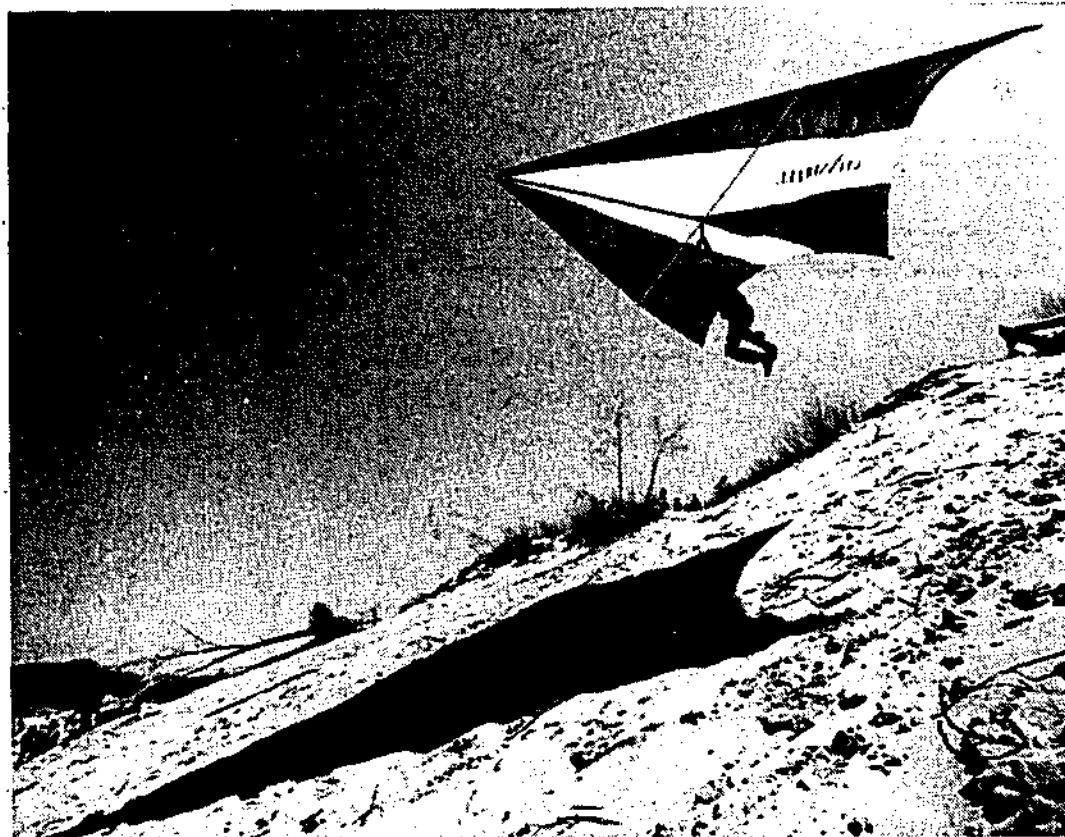

For the novice, getting the thing off the ground is the toughest part until you get the hang of it, so to speak. It takes a lot of muscle to launch the 32-pound kite with a wing span of up to 20 feet. An air speed of at least 12 m.p.h. is required to get the kite airborne and, as Snook says, "Ya gotta boogie" or run just about as hard as you would to break down a door.

ALTHOUGH the longest flight on record is nearly 14 hours, accomplished in the Rocky Mountains, the length of the average flight at Warren Dunes is about 45 seconds.

What do most people say when they land?

"Paaantooie" to spit out the sand and "WOW — I want to go again."

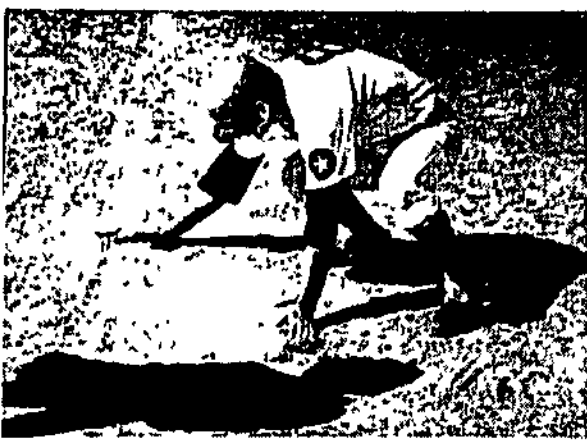

A run and jump and your off for the feeling of a lifetime.

Who needs the Crosstown when you've got a kite? The pilot, however, is really not over the cars but several feet away over the beach.

SAY GOOD-BYE, CARL. Boston's Carl Yastrzemski discovers a new way to get thrown out of game after protesting umpire's call. He buried the plate.

Cubs, Sox win!

The Chicago Cubs and White Sox each broke into the win column Monday as Ray Burris and Jim Kaat turned in masterful pitching performances.

At Wrigley Field, the Cubs ended their five-game losing streak with a 6-0 victory over Atlanta as Burris tossed a four-hit shutout to earn his sixth win of the season. The Cubs got a solo homer by Manny Trillo which triggered a five-run fifth inning against Braves' hurler Florio Harrison.

The Sox beat slumping Milwaukee, 4-2, on back-to-back home runs in the ninth inning by Bucky Dent and Brian Downing after two were out. The roundtripper for Dent was his first of the season. Kaat, now 8-1, fanned eight Brewers before being relieved by Rich Gossage with one out in the ninth. Gossage earned his eighth save of the season by retiring the final two hitters with the tying runs on base.

Kniewel catches the last bus

Evel Kniewel's attempt to jump over 13 London buses on a motorcycle ended with a spectacular crash Monday and the stuntman, suffering from back, leg and internal injuries, immediately announced that he was hanging up his crash helmet for good.

"I've got to tell you that you are the last people in the world who will see me jump," Kniewel told a crowd of 40,000 at London's Wembley stadium. "I will never jump again."

As he spoke the 34-year-old daredevil was supported by several first aid men who had helped him slowly get up from a stretcher where he had lain, apparently unconscious, for several minutes after the accident.

The crash came as Kniewel's motorcycle was at the end of a 100-mile per hour jump over the tops of 13 London buses lined up side-by-side on the Wembley turf.

Apparently the machine clipped the last of the buses, came down on its front instead of rear wheel and then tumbled over and over in a ball of dust and smoke.

A huge roar went up from the audience when he struggled to his feet and told the spectators over a public address system that he was quitting.

And in other sports news...

Arnold Palmer won his 80th tourney victory Monday with a two-stroke conquest over Ireland's Eamon Darcy in the $120,000 Penfold PGA Championship at Sandwich, England. Palmer carded a superb one-over par 71 in the fierce 30-mile-per-hour gale to overcome a five-stroke deficit on the fourth and final round. This four-day total of 285 earned Palmer top prize of $24,000.

Cleveland Indians' pitcher John "Blue Moon" Odom, obtained in a trade from the Oakland A's, has demanded a pay raise of at least $8,000 from the Indians to make up for what he considered a sure World Series check from the A's. Odom, whose record is 0-2 with an ERA of 13.50, told the Indians to give him a raise, trade him, or give him his outright release...

Bill Puterbaugh, 38, was voted "Rookie of the Year" for the 1975 Indianapolis 500 in which he finished seventh... Kathy Whitworth, eight times the leading money-winner on the Ladies Pro Golf tour, was inducted into the LPGA Hall of Fame Monday...

Oklahoma advanced to the NCAA College World Series for the fourth straight year Monday by beating Tulsa, 8-5, in the finals of the Midwest Regional baseball tourney... Arlington High grad Fritz Peterson, pitching for Cleveland, evened his American League mark at 4-4 with a complete game, 9-3 win over California.

Legendary pitching great "Lefty" Grove was buried Monday at his hometown of Lonaconing, Md. as more than 350 mourners attended. Grove, who died last Thursday, was eulogized as the greatest left-handed pitcher of all time. The Hall-of-Famer had a career mark of 300 wins and only 140 losses between 1925 and 1941. He was 73.

Cincinnati's Johnny Bench blasted his sixth career grand slam homer and the second of the 1975 season to lead the Reds to a 5-4, come-from-behind win over Montreal in the second game of a doubleheader sweep in Cincinnati Monday.

THE FINISH LINE is still 440 yards away and Ken Staggs of Homewood-Flossmoor holds a nervous lead in last Saturday's Class AA 880-yard run at the state track meet in Charleston. Staggs had good reason to be wary. Forest View's Steve Schellenberger, shown here in third place, lurked behind Staggs the whole way and made his move in the closing yards to win the state title in 1:51.9, a new area mark. (Photo by Bob Frisk)

Girls softball competition

Prospect, Fremd lead divisions

Heading into the second to last week of the softball season in the Mid-Suburban Conference, two girls' teams are holding narrow leads in their respective divisions.

Prospect is 4-0 in topping the South Division with Fremd at 2-0 while rolling the North as play gets underway this afternoon at six sites beginning at 4:30.

The Knights will entertain Rolling Meadows (1-3) with other South matchups having Schaumburg at Hoffman Estates, Elk Grove at Conant and Forest View in a non-league affair at Sacred Heart.

Wheeling, holder of a 2-1 record, will be entertaining Fremd. Other North games will see Buffalo Grove (2-1) at Arlington (1-2) and Palatine (0-3) at Hersey (1-1).

In a crucial game that could have decided the South Champion Thursday, Prospect topped Forest View 13-5. The Knights took command in the first inning and never trailed while handing pitcher Nancy Lachus (5-1) and her teammates their first loss. Carol DiPrima won her sixth without a loss.

Doing the job at the plate were Sue Tolzen (3-for-4) and Lou Sandstrom (2-for-4). Cindy Andrist paced the View with 3-for-4.

"It was really a team effort," said Knight coach Nancy Dalia. "We were really psyched up for this one."

THE GOOD NEWS. Schaumburg's Bruce Mahlig is on his way to a state record of 15 feet 1 1/2 inches in state pole vault Saturday in Charleston. Mahlig cleared the height on this third try, but the bad news came later when he missed three times at 15-4 and lost the state title to Ken Harding of DeKalb.

Experience in nationals but no relay points

It was a moral victory for Harper's mile relay team last weekend when the Hawk quartet ran in the NJCAA national championships at Pasadena, Tex.

Although Harper finished the preliminary heat 10 seconds behind the winning time of 3:14 turned in by Essex, (N.J.), coach Bob Nolan's Hawks were the only Illinois team to finish their heat. The Harper squad ran a 3:24.0.

"I was hoping we'd do better," said Nolan after returning from the three-day weekend in Texas. "But we ran close to what we'd done before. It was good experience."

Harper's best previous time in the mile relay was 3:23.9, a school record. The Hawk runners are Phil Fiore, Rick Reithel, Larry Manaes, and Steve Drake.

Essex sent out to win the finals in 3:12 and finished second in the over all team standings. Mesa J.C. (Ariz.) was team champion with 54 points and Lincoln Land Community College of Springfield, Ill. was third. Lincoln Land's mile relay squad, which had a season best time of 3:13, was disqualified from their heat when the leadoff man was called for a false start. The NJCAA enforces the NCAA one-false-start rule.

Tilton J.C. of River Grove, Ill. failed to finish the qualifying heat when one of their runners lost his balance and fell off the track. The same thing happened to the mile relay team from Meramac (St. Louis).

"The wind was terrific on the backstretch," Nolan said. "I don't think that's what caused Triton's trouble though. I think the kid stepped on the curb."

Harper's best mile relay team ever finished 14th out of 21 entrants.

"The kids were disappointed — they thought they should have run better," said Nolan. "But they got behind, they started to lose contact, and they started to press."

"But it's like I told them: at least they got to run."

'Physical chess' label given to doubles phase

"Physical chess." That's what former Wimbledon and Forest Hills great George Lott calls the sport of tennis in general and its doubles phase in particular.

"Tennis is one-on-one or two-on-two, and brute strength doesn't mean a thing," the old pro said as he finalized plans for his pioneer doubles camps this summer at River Trails Tennis Center, Mount Prospect. "As in chess, the idea is to out-think and out-position your opponent; the big difference is that the tennis player must also be in good physical condition."

Lott is offering his camps at three different times of day — 7 a.m. to 11 a.m., 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. and 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. — on Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays beginning Monday, June 9. Also offered will be a 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. Saturday class.

Each course will total 10 hours, that is, five two-hour sessions a week apart.

The Lott camps are scheduled to continue through the summer, with the second round beginning Monday, July 7, and the third Monday, Aug. 4. Tuition is $60. Further details may be obtained from River Trails Tennis Center (593-0580).

Author of an 11-0 record in Davis Cup doubles, Lott brings eye-popping credentials to doubles teaching. He is a tactics and strategy man who derives great delight in transforming mediocre doubles players into pretty good ones.

"I'm not interested in changing people's strokes," he says. "My objective is to take existing stroke equipment and utilize it to best advantage."

Illinois fishing reaching prime

Illinois fishing is reaching its prime in both the northern section of the state and Lake Michigan. Angling in the Chain O'Lakes is obviously more successful during the week, what with the "official" start of the recreational boating season on Memorial Day.

Nice stringers of crappies are being taken off the sand bar in Lake Marie and off the piers of Smith Marine on Grass Lake Rd. just west of Rte. 59 with small shiner minnows turning the trick.

A fish basket full of over 50 crappies was filled in East Loon Lake on the lake side of the weed beds. The magic formula was Pinkies dressed with small minnows fished 4-5 feet deep. Earlier in the week, a 17-inch, two-pound crappie was taken from the lake at Rte. 83 and Grass Lake Rd.

The Fox River at McHenry is producing good-sized bullheads, but only fair crapple fishing and spotty bluegill angling. The best action is below the dam with minnows again taking crappies and worms working for bullheads and bluegills.

Lake Michigan salmon and trout fishing continue to rank as excellent. Both boaters and shore anglers are taking fish with the migration headed north. Waukegan now seems to be the hot spot.

Coinciding perfectly with the run is the Waukegan Coho '75 Fishing Derby, June 7-15. Headquarters are at Bjersstad's Boat Yard on Clayton St., across from Mathon's restaurant.

Tournament hours are from 5 a.m. to 8 p.m., except Sunday, June 15 when the contest will end at 6 p.m. All participants must purchase a contest entry ticket before fishing at the rate of $2 per day or $8 for nine days.

Coho and chinook salmon and brown and rainbow (steelhead) trout are eligible fish with thousands of dollars in prizes awarded on a weight basis from fish caught with rod and reel.

The just-concluded Chicago Park District Coho '75 tourney produced some stiff standards for the Waukegan Contest to beat. The top fish in the 24-day derby was a mammoth 16½-pound coho taken by Mike Murphy of Chicago.

Other grand prize winners were Henry Licht of Chicago for a 15-pound, 14½-ounce chinook, Stan Plank of Palos Hills for a 10-pound, 12-ounce steelhead, Jim Kurth of Chicago for a 14-pound, 6½-ounce brown trout and John Longstreet of Chicago for a 13-pound, 3½-ounce lake trout.

And to enhance the future fishing of Lake Michigan, the Illinois Department of Conservation has completed the stocking of 187,740 chinook salmon smolt at Waukegan River, Kelllogg Ditch, Jackson Park and Diversoy Harbor.

The fry, reared at Spring Grove hatchery, are about three inches now, but should return in three years to provide excellent fishing.

Remember, the Cook County Forest Preserve District lakes of Axehead, Belleau and Sag Quarry are being restocked this morning. The three areas will be closed to all fishing for three days to allow the trout to adjust to their new surroundings. Fishing for the newly-stocked fry will begin on May 30.

champion Schellenberger, third place finisher Vic Ahart of Edwardsville, and fifth place runner David Ayoub of Peoria. Kevin Moore of Oak Lawn took fourth.

Melody Miller captures two titles; East girls tie for 2nd in league

Thanks to four firsts by Maine East girls, The Blue Demons finished tied for second with Maine South in the Central Suburban Conference meet Saturday at Park Ridge.

Niles West won the team title with 140 points with the two Maines having 65. Maine West finished 10th in the 11-team meet.

Melody Miller, who won the state two-mile event the week before, captured the two mile with ease, running a 12:12.4. She also won the mile in 5:28.8. Both are meet marks.

Miller's teammates — Maria Brown and Rene Skrzypchak — also captured firsts. Brown won the 50-yard dash in 6.3 and Skrzypchak took the 880-yard run in 2:29.8.

East took one third, four fourths, one fifth and a sixth. Sue Shively toss the discus 100 feet, 9 inches for the third. Taking fourths were Karen Peterson in the 110 low hurdles (16.7), the mile relay team (4:37.8), the 440 relay team (54.0) and the 880 relay team (1:56.3).

Sue Nicewick placed fifth in the 110 low hurdles with 17.0. Ellen Barrett was sixth in the 50-yard dash with 6.7.

Scoring in the top six for Maine West were Sue Miske with a third in the long jump (15-3) with stunts by Mary Fisher in the 100 dash (12.7) and 220 (28.8) and Yvonne Montreal in the discus (97-11).

Girls received medals for the top three places.

Final team standings looked like this:

Niles West 140, Maine East and Maine South 65, Glenbrook North 49, Deerfield 47, Niles East 40, Niles North 36, New Trier West 19, Glenbrook South 18, Maine West 11 and Highland Park 7.

'Dining room in sky' the only way to fly

The conversation was so spirited in Pan Am's "dining room in the sky" the other night that 14 passengers almost forgot they were airborne.

"Yah — Pan Am machis der going gut," quipped one wag in our dinner party. (We were on our way to Frankfurt, Germany, where Pan Am is flying nonstop every day from Chicago.)

The night is long when you jet across the ocean. Winning and dining in an intimate flying supper club is a nifty way to while away a few of those tedious hours.

PAN AM'S "dining room in the sky" seats 14 first-class guests in the upper lounge aboard the airline's 747.

Trans World Airlines also pamper first-class passengers on their 1011 flights with "dining in the round."

First-class passengers on Swissair's 747 flights from Switzerland can retire to the upstairs lounge for raclette. A half wheel of cheese is placed, cut side up, under an electric heater. As the outer surface begins to melt it is scraped on to a warm plate and garnished with potatoes, pickles and pearl onions. It's even better than fondue.

When you fly abroad on a country's national airline you usually get a head start enjoying the food and drink of the land you will be visiting.

JAPAN AIR LINES offers excellent "Kimono Service" with Oriental cuisine and hot sake. Air India has sari-clad hostesses to serve you betel nut and a savory curry. Fly to South America on the Chilean airline, LAN, and enjoy Chile's great wines with your inflight meals. KLM serves a typical hearty Dutch breakfast when dawn breaks on their overseas flights.

Couch passengers on TWA domestic flights this year are being served international gourmet appetizers and foreign-accented entrees such as Beef Tips Dijon and Canneloni Genovese.

So — what else is new with the airlines?

American Airlines begins daily nonstop service from Chicago to the California cities of San Jose and Ontario next month.

United Airlines has launched a new "Executive Friendship Service" between Chicago and New York which caters to the needs of business executives.

Eastern Airlines has increased weekend service from O'Hare to Bermuda and now has direct service to the Bahamas.

TWA — Under the banner of Trans World Vacations, the airline is offering an extensive collection of individual and tour packages to Europe and all over the U.S.A. Again this year TWA is touting its Hotelpass Europe, an economy hotel pass plan designed for the independent traveler which guarantees accommodations without advance reservations for $7.50 a night per person, double occupancy.

Air Canada has a summer leisure free-roaming fly/drive program that requires no hotel reservations but guarantees hotel rooms.

Icelandic offers a $444 round-trip airfare this summer on Apex 60-day advance purchase flights for overseas stays of 22 to 45 days.

Be sure to check with your travel agent every time you plan a trip by air. Fares are confusing and complicated, but there may be dozens of fares available between the same two points — depending on the time of day or year, how long you are going to be gone, and with whom you are traveling.

Information on horseback tours available by mail

Can you tell me where I can write for information on tours by horseback?

H. L. Elk Grove Village

The American Forestry Assn. has seven-to-10-day horseback tours in Wyoming, Washington, Canada, California and New Mexico starting at $280. A stamped, self-addressed business-size envelope will bring a same-day response from AFA Trail Riders, 1319 18th St., NW, Washington, D.C. 20036.

Echo Ridge Riding Ranch in the Almaguin Highlands of Ontario also has a series of summer horseback tours led by a trail boss who knows the countryside. Price per person is $350, which covers horse, food, guide, sleeping bag, coach ticket Toronto-Em-

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

AXYDLBAAXR IS LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

'Family viewing' — bland fare

(Editor's Note: Today's column was written by Vernon Scott of United Press International.)

HOLLYWOOD — Purity, virtue and perhaps a touch of religion have been proclaimed throughout the land from 8 to 9 every night of the week by the three television networks.

"Family viewing" is the palliative name given what is bound to be as somnolent an hour as a Sunday morning sermon.

Guns, gore and sex are out. So are off-color jokes. Chunky home goodness is in, as stated by amendments to the Television Code of the National Assoc. of Television Broadcasters.

ARTHUR R. Taylor, president of CBS, told a group of station affiliates that "we found ourselves confronted with a growing concern over the depiction of violence on television and the changing moral climate of our society."

Translation: the networks faced federal control if they didn't clean house. But Taylor denies government pressure forced "family viewing."

"Because family viewing is, like good taste, so difficult to define, and varies from home to home, the family viewing amendments were written not as hard-and-fast rules, but as statements of ethical standards..."

THE UPSHOT IS that in 1975-76 CBS' 8-9 p.m. lineup features eight sitcoms — "Rhoda," "Phyllis," "Good Times," "Joe and Sons," "Big Ed," "M-A-S-H," "The Jeffersons" and "Doc."

This magical hour also includes musicals "Cher" and "Tony Orlando and Dawn."

The only trouble spot might be Cher's belly button.

Safest of all is the soporific standby, "The Waltons." CBS switched "Kojak" and "All in the Family" out of

by Frank S. Swertlow

that time span and canceled "Gun-smoke" to save kids from sin, slaughter and sophistication.

TAYLOR SAID, "In September stations and networks subscribing to the television code will be required to abstain from broadcasting entertainment programs inappropriate for viewing by general family audiences during the designated evening prime-time hours."

"Occasional single programs, if deemed by the broadcasters to be possibly unsuitable for family viewing, will carry advisories to that effect."

To cynics who label the networks' efforts as a public relations sop, the CBS man holds up a reproving hand.

"... By adopting the family viewing amendments, this industry was not bowing to government pressure..."

Flood-aid panel vetoed by panel

A Des Plaines City Council committee rejected a proposal Monday night to form a flood-control commission, but some aldermen said they may step up efforts to alleviate flooding.

The council's water and sewer committee turned down a proposal by Ald. Gerald Meyer, 7th, to establish a permanent commission that would suggest long-range solutions to flooding problems.

Ald. Thomas Koplos, 1st, chairman of the panel, said he viewed the suggestion with caution. Koplos said the city has put a large amount of money in various flood-control programs in recent years and does not need another program.

Meyer said a commission was suggested to him by some residents of homes that border one of the creeks in the city. Meyer said the commission could help the city set priorities for projects to solve flooding.

HOWEVER, both Koplos and Ald. Alan Abrams, 8th, said the sewer and water committee work together with the city engineering and public works departments have developed a number of programs in recent years aimed at relieving flooding. Abrams said the city has spent the bulk of the $800,000 it has received in federal revenue-sharing funds on flood-control and sewer improvement projects.

However, Abrams added that recent heavy rains have shown that not all of the city's flooding problems have been corrected.

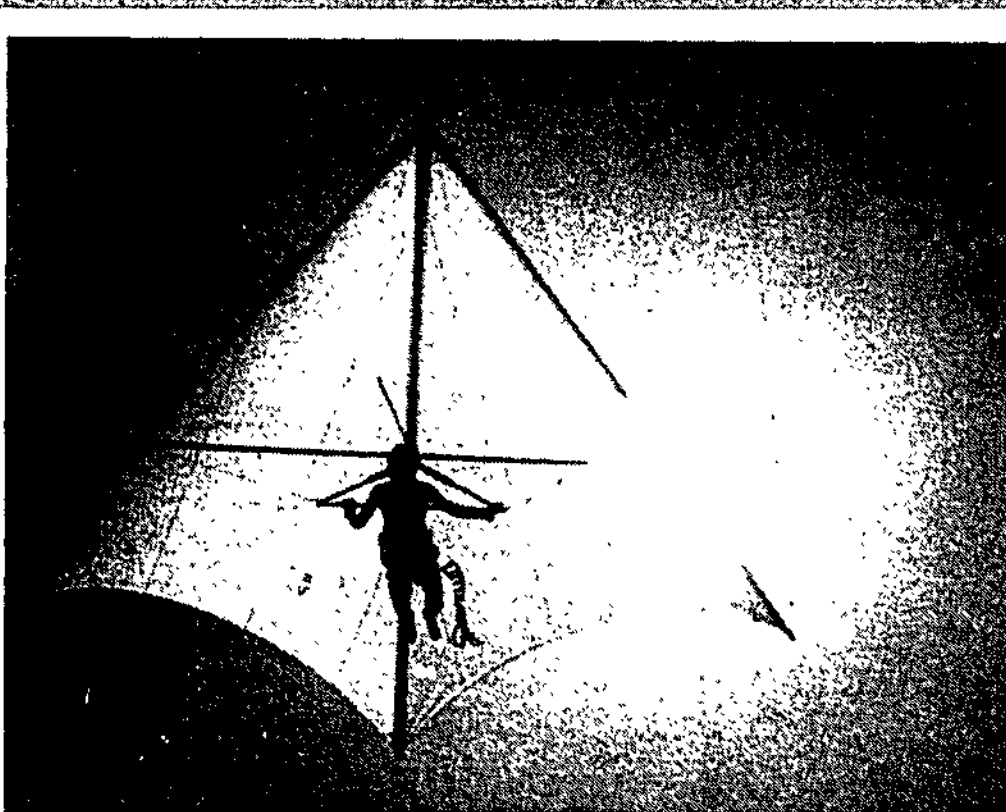

"We may have been lulled into a false sense of security," Abrams said, adding that the city council might want to consider reallocating more funds into other flood-control projects.

He said the recent request from residents in the Cumberland Terrace area shows flooding problems remain. Abrams recommended that the engineering department continue its study of the cost to install a lift station in the area to help prevent sewer surcharging.

Ellis Perl, assistant city engineer, said the report is being completed. He estimated the lift station could cost $15,000 to $40,000.

WHILE ABRAMS and Koplos said they were opposed to the commission proposal, Ald. George Olen, 2nd, and Ald. Daniel Kisslinger, 4th, said a commission composed of civil engineers could offer valuable advice for long-range flood-control planning.

However, Abrams and Koplos noted that long-range efforts should be handled by such agencies as the Metropolitan Sanitary District.

SKYSAILING is among the newest programs offered by area park districts. Elk Grove Park District employee Bill Hughes, below, tries his

Schaumburg woman gets 3-9 years in plot to kill husband

Marlene Swinley of Schaumburg was sentenced Monday to three to nine years in prison for soliciting a man she believed was a contract killer to murder her husband.

Criminal Court Judge Marvin E. Aspen said in passing the sentence that Mrs. Swinley lacked credibility and displayed a "distant, cold detachment" to what she was doing. Murderers are not usually cold and detached, he said.

Mrs. Swinley, 33, of 322 Meacham Rd., posted a $25,000 appeal bond after the sentencing. Her attorney, Louis Carbonaro, could not be reached for comment.

After a nine-day trial ended May 1, a 10-woman, 2-man jury found the Schaumburg housewife guilty of trying to hire an undercover agent to kill her husband, Air National Guard Lt. Col. Duane A. Swinley, 46.

MRS. SWINLEY was arrested Jan. 24, 1974 outside the Woodfield Theatre, where she met with Joseph Saladino, a state's attorney's investigator posing as a contract killer.

Judge Aspen referred to a tape recording of the meeting and said, "It might be argued that this was a bungled attempt. Except for a little bit of bad luck, it might have been a murder case."

In presentencing testimony Monday, Joan and Edward Danz, of Lombard, invoked the Fifth Amendment when asked by Assistant State's Atty. John DeRose about an airline refund check that bank records indicate was deposited in their account.

The records indicate it was later paid out in a check written to Harold Blaauw, once sued by Swinley for alienation of affection, though the suit was dropped before trial.

In earlier testimony it was revealed that Mrs. Swinley had offered a 15-year-old West Coast boy two airline tickets, which were never used, to kill her husband.

THE ALLEGED plot began when her son by a previous marriage, Joseph Enderle, 15, reportedly contacted a neighbor boy asking if he could obtain a "hit man" to be employed by his mother.

The neighbor later contacted a Rochester, N.Y., man, whose family contacted the County State's Attorney's office. Charges against Enderle for solicitation for murder later were dropped.

In other testimony Monday, Swinley denied that he "beat or slugged" his pregnant wife, causing a miscarriage.

"I've got my son. I'll have to start all over again," Swinley, who has custody of their son Duane, 8, said after sitting quietly through the sentencing.

He since has filed for divorce, charging his wife with adultery.

Schools' secretaries seek board recognition

Maine Township High School Dist. 207 secretaries Monday night requested that the board of education recognize the Maine Secretaries Assn. for negotiating purposes.

More than 25 secretaries attended the board meeting to support the group, an Illinois Education Assn. affiliate.

"We thought it would be best to stand as a group. We don't have any negotiating power," a spokesman, Dmetra Giannis, said.

She said 50 of about 100 secretaries in the district have joined the association.

"Dist. 207 is a large institution," she said. "We organized in order to be heard."

Board Pres. Leonard Grazian said the board will consider the secretaries' request to meet with the board and act on the request for recognition before the June 23 board meeting.

MRS. GIANNIS said the local association was organized in response to the district's reclassification of secretaries about a year ago when seven secretarial classifications were reduced to three.

Secretaries also used to receive about 2.5 per cent annual salary increases. Under the new system, each secretary's salary is negotiated annually on an individual basis.

"This is our biggest bone of contention," said Doris Beer, a Maine East High School secretary. "We are supposed to be frozen at our current step."

"We want to be classified according to what we do rather than who we work for," Lorraine Pearson, a Maine East High School secretary, told the board.

ONE WOMAN said her review date had passed and she received neither a review nor raise.

The secretary said letters asking why the district changed the policy went unanswered.

"We have had problems getting a response from anybody who could help us," Mrs. Giannis said.

She said the secretaries sought IEA affiliation because they believed a teachers' association is proper for school secretaries. "We feel a part of the schools," she said.

State holiday death toll dips

Holiday traffic deaths increase

The number of traffic fatalities over the Memorial Day weekend increased despite continuation this year of lower speed limits on the nation's highways.

Figures for the first of the warm weather national holidays appeared contrary to the trend set for Memorial Day 1974 when 390 persons were killed in traffic accidents, a 14-year low.

The lower speed limits were attributed in part to saving between 8,000 to 10,000 lives during 1974, the National Safety Council said. Other reasons included the energy crunch and the economy.

Highway deaths for 1974 were 48,000 the lowest since 1964 when 47,000 were killed. In 1973, the total was 55,800. In Illinois there were 1,958 traffic deaths during 1974 compared to 2,331 in 1973.

A United Press International count Monday showed 386 persons died on the nation's highways since the holiday period began at 6 p.m. Friday.

by United Press International
A plane crash killing five persons and a car accident resulting in the death of a Waukegan man were among the worst accidents in Illinois during the Memorial Day holiday.

By late afternoon Monday, UPI's fatality count in Illinois showed 12 persons had died in traffic accidents, five in a plane crash and five in drownings.

State police said 26 persons were killed in traffic accidents in Illinois during the 1974 three-day Memorial holiday and 29 died during the three-day period in 1973.

AMONG THE ACCIDENTS marring the holiday this year was the crash Saturday night of a single-engine plane carrying the Edward Kikic family of Chicago. Police said Kikic, his wife, two children and his sister, were en route to their Wisconsin farm when the plane went down. Their bodies were found Sunday night.

In a two-car accident Monday, Benny Levy Jr. of Waukegan was killed and five persons injured. Police said Levy's car veered across the median on Interstate

55 near Joliet and hit a car driven by Henry Walters.

A number of children were among the victims of holiday accidents.

Six-year-old Colin Smith died near Naperville when he darted in front of a squad car. Thirteen-year-old Bryan King of Quincy was killed by a hit-and-run driver while riding his bicycle Sunday night. Three teen-age boys from Chicago, Charleston and DeKalb drowned in separate incidents, and a Chicago youth was electrocuted in a backyard accident at his home.

IN OTHER ACCIDENTS, David Kleiman, 19, of Hesseville, Ind., was killed in Bloom Township when his car struck an object and crashed on the Calumet Expressway.

Thomas Zaborsky, 25, Worth, was killed early Sunday when his car crashed head-on with a car driven by Pantelis Peronis, 21, Crown Point, Ind., who was seriously injured. Police said Peronis was driving the wrong way in the eastbound lane of Interstate 80 when the accident occurred.

Nostalgic dances, songs at Plum Grove

Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15

"Remember When," a collection of songs and dances from the 1920s, '30s and '40s will be presented to the PTSA at Plum Grove Junior High School today at 7:30 p.m.

The jazz band, directed by George Southgate, will feature numbers by Count Basie. The seventh-grade chorus, in costumes of the 1920s, will include the Charleston and foxtrot in their dance routine. Karen Secco will direct and accompany the chorus.

The eighth-grade chorus directed by Carol Maloney will present, "The Red, White and Blue Review." Students will sing and dance to a polka, congo, jitterbug and drill march.

Admission is free.

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59

William Coss and Kevin Connolly will present a magic show based on historical facts and illusions developed by the magicians of the 19th Century for students at Elmhurst School, Des Plaines.

Two performances will be presented today at 10:15 a.m. and 1 p.m. The event, sponsored by Urban Gateways, is designed to teach while entertaining.

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21

Parents of sixth-grade children planning to attend Jack London Junior High School next fall are invited to attend an orientation meeting today at 8 p.m. at the school, 1001 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

The school's various programs will be explained and parents will have the opportunity to ask questions.

Irving School, 1250 Radcliffe Rd., Buffalo Grove, will hold an orientation meeting for third-grade parents today at 7:30 p.m. The purpose of the meeting is to keep communication lines open between home and school and to inform parents of plans for next year.

"Parents' Day" programs will be held by students in Team 1 at Field School today through Thursday and June 2 at 2 p.m. at the school, 51 St. Armand Ln., Wheeling.

Students will present a play on reading, folk dances and introduce their parents to the alphabet characters they used to learn to read.

"Those Were the Days," a musical program, will be presented Wednesday at 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. at Kilmer School, 655 Golfview Terr., Buffalo Grove. The chorus, that includes students in Grades 4-6, and student dancers will present a variety of numbers including selections from "Oklahoma," "Bye Bye Birdie" and the "Mickey Mouse Club."

Students in first, fifth, and sixth grades at Tarkington School will present a musical program Thursday.

Work and play songs will be used as the theme of the 2:15 p.m. program at the school, 310 Scott St., Wheeling.

The kindergarten class of Jan Starosto at Alcott School, Buffalo Grove, is preparing for a field trip to Chicago Wednesday. The class will have a picnic at Lincoln Park Zoo, visit the aquarium and ride in a Chicago fire boat.

Kris Lewis and Cris Stron, sixth graders at Alcott School, Buffalo Grove, and their parents were awarded tickets to the final Northwest Community Concert Assn. performance. Both pupils were chosen on the basis of musical interest and school citizenship.

Prospect Heights Dist. 23

Lt. David Gwin of the Great Lakes Naval Air Station, Glenview, will present a pageant depicting "The History of the Flag" to pupils at Eisenhower School, Schenck and McDonald roads, Prospect Heights, Thursday at 9 a.m.

Gwin and 14 men dressed in historical uniforms will trace the stages of American history.

Arlington Heights Dist. 25

Special activities to commemorate Memorial Day are planned Thursday at Kensington School, Arlington Heights. A Marine color guard will present a flag ceremony using flags and wearing uniforms from historical periods.

Maine Township High School Dist. 207

The Maine North High School concert choir and orchestra with a guest choir from Holy Trinity Lutheran Church of Glenview, will present "Festival of Music," Thursday at 8 p.m. at the school, 8511 Harrison St., Des Plaines.

Proceeds from the concert will benefit the Maine North Fine Arts Booster scholarships. General admission tickets are $2 and $1.50 for booster members. Tickets may be obtained by calling the school at 298-5300.

High School Dist. 214

Prospect High School students will begin celebrating the nation's 200th birthday Thursday with a Bicentennial kite fly from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The kites, homemade and purchased, will be flown over the practice fields.

Awards for the best painted kite with a Bicentennial theme and the surviving kite of a demolition derby will be given.

In general:

"What Do You Want To Know?" a question and answer panel will be presented at Wednesday's Council on Understanding Learning Disabilities meeting.

Panel members will include Lynn Young, resident of Buffalo Grove and mother of three children two of whom have learning disabilities; psychologist Kenneth Moses who works in rehabilitation counseling; and Dr. Keith McCloskey, pediatrician, who has served with the Harper College Child Development Program Advisory Committee.

The COULD meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in room 124C, at Hersey High School, 1900 E. Thomas, Arlington Heights.

River Trails Dist. 26

River Trails Junior High School, 1000 Wolf Rd., Mount Prospect, will hold its spring concert for all choral groups Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. The band concert will be June 4 at 7:30 p.m. All parents of River Trails pupils are invited to these two concerts.

Sacred Heart of Mary High School 1-14 hold -

Activities honoring Sacred Heart of Mary High School graduating seniors begin Wednesday with an in-school assembly recognizing students' service in clubs and other activities.

A mass Thursday at 6:30 p.m. in the school gym will be followed by an awards dinner at 8 p.m. at The Lancer Steak House restaurant, Schaumburg.

Friday at 8 p.m. 135 graduates will receive their diplomas. A tea hosted by the mothers' club will follow the ceremonies in the school cafeteria.

Teens giving you problems?

There's help for mom, dad after all

by JUDY JOBBITT

The high school student trying to establish his independence can create trauma for a family.

While most parents go through a type of "crisis" as their youngsters grow up, few have the opportunity to talk it out with others who can give objective insights into this growing process.

Parents of students at Maine North High School have this opportunity through parent group meetings — sessions where they can spill their troubles, and sometimes, realize they don't really have a major problem after all.

The sessions were started two years ago by Linda Selway, social worker, and Jack Tanner, guidance counselor. Through their student counseling they realized that many of the students' problems could not be handled strictly through school. Students often were having "growing pains" at home that were reflected in their attitude and performance at school.

"A parent is in a tightrope situation at this time," Mrs. Selway said. "He still is responsible for his child but it is very important to let his child go to make his own decisions."

Three groups have formed over the past two years that have put Tanner and Mrs. Selway in contact with about 30 parents. Many of them have problems, but many are just there to become "better" parents, Mrs. Selway said.

"In the beginning we were very careful to invite people whose kids didn't have any obvious problems. It's important to share experiences," said Tanner.

"THE PARENT who has made the commitment to come is a step ahead of the parent who doesn't have the initiative to get involved," Mrs. Selway said.

The groups include about four couples who set their own goals to work toward on a 10-week schedule. The first sessions are used to break down inhibitions and develop trust for open communications. Midway through sessions the group decides if their goals will be met and whether they should continue beyond the 10 weeks. So far every group has extended beyond 10 weeks with one group meeting more than one year.

The discussions are not limited to parents' communications with their children. One evening might open up discussion on one woman's first trip away from home and family, three-generation families or the question of how soon a teen-ager should be allowed to take a trip on his own.

Tanner said another benefit of the group is that it "gives a view of what goes on outside the school."

"This adds another dimension for both of us," Mrs. Selway said. "What goes on is information giving."

THROUGH the information exchange parents can get ideas about how to work out their own problems. Parents also can open up and receive opinions and ideas they might not receive in a chosen group of friends.

"We're not there to help them change their kids," Mrs. Selway said. "What we're saying is we can help them understand what adolescence is all about and help them understand their outlook on their adolescents."

Tanner also said the groups provide one way to bridge the communication gap between the home and school. "Parents may get the idea that the school does not want them around. Parents are sometimes intimidated by the school," Tanner said.

Parents learn how to communicate with the school and that the school is interested in their opinions, Tanner said.

"IT'S HELPED me a lot over the past two years," said parent Rita Gillenbach. "It gives you a chance to talk to other people about your problems. You get an inside line on what is going on in school."

Her husband, Ray, also thought that "the fact that other people have the same problems and discuss the problems, you better understand the problem of the child. You can work a better angle around the problem when you know something about it."

The sessions break over the summer, but with the fall a new group will form to help bridge that gap.

Panel's potpourri: pigeons to porno

Everything from pigeons to pornography will be discussed tonight in the Civic Center, by the city council's city code and judiciary committee. The meeting starts at 6:30 p.m.

Ald. Alan Abrams, 8th, chairman of the panel, indicated that discussion regarding a proposal to hire an administrative assistant for Mayor Herbert H. Behrel will continue.

The pigeon parley will involve a request from residents to amend the city code to allow the raising of racing pigeons inside the city limits. The committee also will consider a request requiring merchants not to display magazines with nude pictures in a location where young children can view them.

Abrams indicated the panel also will consider what action should be taken on new lawsuits filed last week by the Metropolitan Sanitary District against the city.

The suits seek court ordered condemnation of several pieces of land the MSD wants for use in connection with the deep tunnel plan. The city has refused to grant the easements and has declined an offer to sell the property to the MSD.

Parks summer signup set June 7

Registration for summer recreation programs offered by the Des Plaines Park District will begin June 7 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Rand Park Fieldhouse, 2025 Miner St.

Brochures describing the district's summer programs are in the mail and should be received by residents this week.

District officials suggest that persons bring a list of activities they want to sign up for with them to the registration. The district also will require registrants to show proof of residency.

Registration will continue June 9 from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Summer pool passes are on sale at the park district office, 748 Pearson St., Des Plaines. Office hours are 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and 8:30 a.m. to noon Saturday.

Nonresidents may begin registering for programs June 9 at the park district office.

Registration for the summer day camp program also is being held now.

Additional information about the park district program may be obtained by calling 296-6106.

Senior citizens get volunteer awards

A group of senior citizens from the Northwest Suburban YMCA was honored recently at the fourth annual senior volunteers' recognition luncheon in Chicago.

The awards were given for seniors who accumulated the most hours of volunteer work for the Y.

The group from the Des Plaines Y receiving awards included: Ida Groch, Kurt Groch, Maxine B. Carroll, Edward Glauzmann, Erna K. Passow, Elmer F. Passow, Beatrice Christensen, Louis L. Pryby, Myra Pryby, Edward Jenrich, E. Marty Kulge, Alice M. Kulge, Mike DeMet, Elvira DeMet, Henry Christensen and Roy Carroll.

The senior citizens from the Northwest Suburban YMCA participated in mailing for the Crusade of Mercy and other activities.

Village major center by 2000: study

Lake County planning officials predict that Buffalo Grove and its surrounding area will become a major center of population and commerce in the county by the year 2000.

The prediction is part of data contained in the newest Lake County Comprehensive Plan, which will be brought before the county board for approval in July.

Syd Smith, principal chief of the county's advance planning division, said the Buffalo Grove area will be one of the "center groupings" of urban use.

OTHER AREAS that were predicted as "center groupings" include Libertyville, Mundelein, Barrington and Barrington Hills.

Smith also said Lake County is expected to reach a population of 720,000 by 2000. Currently the population figure is around 383,000, he said.

"I better explain that the basic assumption for all the 720,000 people by 2000 is that it will not be overnight," Smith said. "But I do want to say that with commercial use and residential use, we need controlled development for those future needs."

The comprehensive plan breaks down those needs into categories: housing, transportation, open space and recreation and employment and services.

Smith said the plan does not go into detail but makes suggestions that are to be used as guidelines.

"WE'RE ADVOCATING that no plan is perfect," Smith said. "As development and trends change, the plan itself should change to reflect this."

"The Lake County plan is amendable and should be amendable from time to time," Smith said.

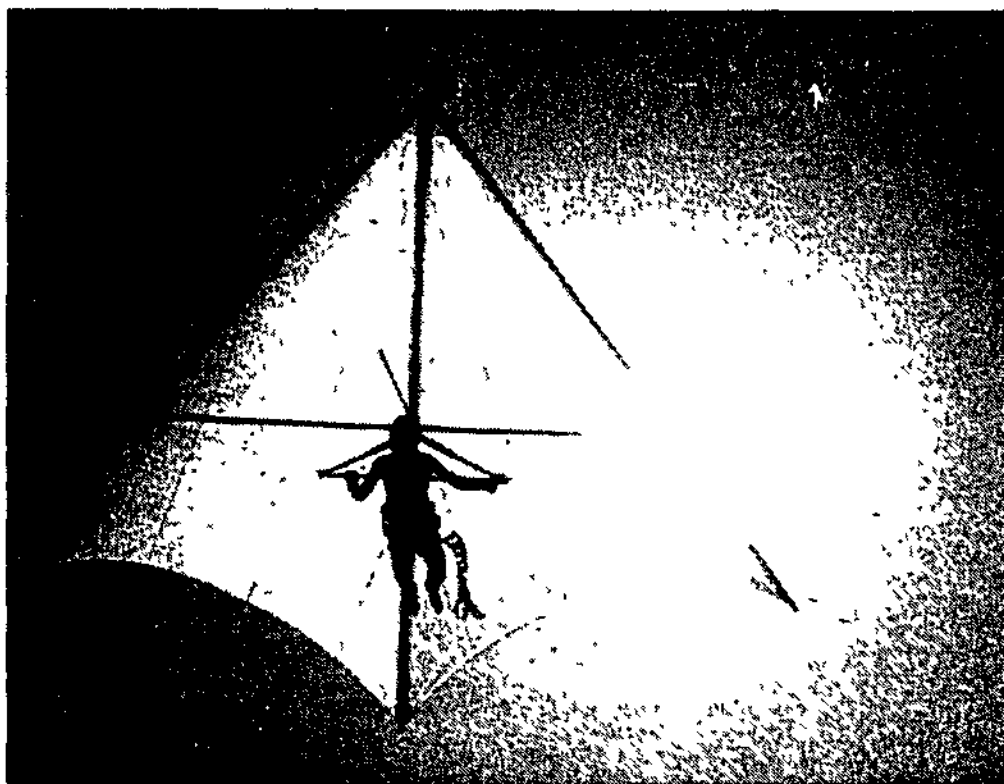

Much of Buffalo Grove's master plan is incorporated in the county plan, Smith said. Most communities who have master plans were included in county plan, he said.

"What we would like is to get a compromise with idealistic planning goals and expressed goals of the community," Smith said.

THE PLAN IS for land use only and is not to be confused with zoning guidelines, Smith said. "But I imagine it will have some influence on zoning, taxing or conservation ordinances," he said.

The plan also does not suggest annexation or use other than that currently zoned, Smith said, adding that annexation is municipal, not county, jurisdiction.

The plan for instance, would be of no hindrance nor influence on Buffalo Grove's or Wheeling's plans to expand by annexing the Chevy Chase area in Lake County, immediately north of both villages.

SKYSAILING is among the newest programs offered by area park districts. Elk Grove Park District employee Bill Hughes, below, tries his

Schaumburg woman gets 3-9 years in plot to kill husband

Marlene Swimley of Schaumburg was sentenced Monday to three to nine years in prison for soliciting a man she believed was a contract killer to murder her husband.

Criminal Court Judge Marvin E. Aspen said in passing the sentence that Mrs. Swimley lacked credibility and displayed a "distant, cold detachment" to what she was doing. Murderers are not usually cold and detached, he said.

Mrs. Swimley, 33, of 322 Meacham Rd., posted a $25,000 appeal bond after the sentencing. Her attorney, Louis Carbonaro, could not be reached for comment.

After a nine-day trial ended May 1, a 10-woman, 2-man jury found the Schaumburg housewife guilty of trying to hire an undercover agent to kill her husband, Air National Guard Lt. Col. Duane A. Swimley, 46.

MRS. SWINLEY was arrested Jan. 24, 1974 outside the Woodfield Theatres, where she met with Joseph Saladino, a state's attorney's investigator posing as a contract killer.

Judge Aspen referred to a tape recording of the meeting and said, "It might be argued that this was a bungled attempt. Except for a little bit of bad luck, it might have been a murder case."

In presentencing testimony Monday, Joan and Edward Danz, of Lombard, invoked the Fifth Amendment when asked by Assistant State's Atty. John DeRose about an airline refund check that bank records indicate was deposited in their account.

The records indicate it was later paid out in a check written to Harold Blaauw, once sued by Swimley for alienation of affection, though the suit was dropped before trial.

In earlier testimony it was revealed that Mrs. Swimley had offered a 15-year-old West Coast boy two airline tickets, which were never used, to kill her husband.

THE ALLEGED plot began when her son by a previous marriage, Joseph Enderle, 15, reportedly contacted a neighbor boy asking if he could obtain a "hit man" to be employed by his mother.

The neighbor later contacted a Rochester, N.Y., man, whose family contacted the County State's Attorney's office. Charges against Enderle for solicitation for murder later were dropped.

In other testimony Monday, Swimley denied that he "beat or slugged" his pregnant wife, causing a miscarriage.

"I've got my son. I'll have to start all over again," Swimley, who has custody of their son Duane, 8, said after sitting quietly through the sentencing.

He since has filed for divorce, charging his wife with adultery.

Village fine income up 30% in year, tops $38,000

Municipal fines from criminal charges, arrests and traffic enforcement brought more than $38,000 in revenue to Buffalo Grove during the last fiscal year, an increase of 30 per cent from the previous year.

In a year-end performance report of the Buffalo Grove Police Dept., Chief Harry J. Walsh said the village received $38,668 in fines this year compared to that of $29,826 last year.

Appearance unit hits veterinary sign

The Buffalo Grove Appearance Control Commission has denied a request by Dr. David Saidel for a display sign at his veterinary office at 1031 W. Dundee Rd.

Commission members said the sign was too big and detracted from the attractiveness of the building. A ground level sign is sufficient, members said. The recommendation will be made to the village board.

Plans for the Ranch Mart Shopping Center expansion also was discussed, but was tabled until the next meeting. More details on architecture and landscaping was needed, said William Dettmer, chairman.

The increase in revenue resulted because of more effective traffic enforcement and a new prosecutor.

A new prosecutor was brought in after the resignation of Village Prosecutor Donald Norman in January 1974.

WALSH EMPHASIZED that the increase is not the result of a ticket blitz or an aim at profit. Police issue an average of 190 tickets a month, Walsh said, with each policeman writing 11 tickets per month.

According to the report, four men were assigned last year to the investigation/youth section of the force, which deals with juvenile matters.

Between May 1, 1974 and April 30, 1975, the police handled 1,076 cases and were able to clear 57 per cent. The rate, Walsh said, is considered "extremely good."

All 16 policemen on the force are now equipped with radios after the department spent $35,000 on radio system equipment and telephone services.

During the last fiscal year, the police force participated in various training programs offered to the department. More than $7,100 was spent for the training programs, but the department will be reimbursed the entire sum by the state.

State holiday death toll dips

Holiday traffic deaths increase

The number of traffic fatalities over the Memorial Day weekend increased despite continuation this year of lower speed limits on the nation's highways.

Figures for the first of the warm weather national holidays appeared contrary to the trend set for Memorial Day 1974 when 390 persons were killed in traffic accidents, a 14-year low.

The lower speed limits were attributed in part to saving between 8,000 to 10,000 lives during 1974, the National Safety Council said. Other reasons included the energy crunch and the economy.

Highway deaths for 1974 were 48,000 the lowest since 1964 when 47,000 were killed. In 1973, the total was 53,800. In Illinois there were 1,958 traffic deaths during 1974 compared to 2,331 in 1973.

A United Press International count Monday showed 368 persons had died on the nation's highways since the holiday period began at 6 p.m. Friday.

by United Press International

A plane crash killing five persons and a car accident resulting in the death of a Waukegan man were among the worst accidents in Illinois during the Memorial Day holiday.

By late afternoon Monday, UPI's fatality count in Illinois showed 12 persons had died in traffic accidents, five in a plane crash and five in drownings.

State police said 26 persons were killed in traffic accidents in Illinois during the 1974 three-day Memorial holiday and 29 died during the three-day period in 1973.

AMONG THE ACCIDENTS marring the holiday this year was the crash Saturday night of a single-engine plane carrying the Edward Kikcio family of Chicago. Police said Kikcio, his wife, two children and his sister, were en route to their Wisconsin farm when the plane went down. Their bodies were found Sunday night.

In a two-car accident Monday, Benny Levy Jr. of Waukegan was killed and five persons injured. Police said Levy's car veered across the median on Interstate 55 near Joliet and hit a car driven by Henry Walters.

A number of children were among the victims of holiday accidents.

Six-year-old Colin Smith died near Naperville when he darted in front of a squad car. Thirteen-year-old Bryan King of Quincy was killed by a hit-and-run driver while riding his bicycle Sunday night. Three teen-age boys from Chicago, Charleston and DeKalb drowned in separate incidents, and a Chicago youth was electrocuted in a backyard accident at his home.

IN OTHER ACCIDENTS, David Kielman, 19, of Hesseville, Ind., was killed in Bloom Township when his car struck an object and crashed on the Calumet Expressway.

Thomas Zaborsky, 23, Worth, was killed early Sunday when his car crashed head-on with a car driven by Pantells Peronis, 21, Crown Point, Ind., who was seriously injured. Police said Peronis was driving the wrong way in the eastbound lane of Interstate 80 when the accident occurred.

Nostalgic dances, songs at Plum Grove

Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15

"Remember When," a collection of songs and dances from the 1920s, '30s and '40s will be presented to the PTSA at Plum Grove Junior High School today at 7:30 p.m.

The jazz band, directed by George Southgate, will feature numbers by Count Basie. The seventh-grade chorus, in costumes of the 1920s, will include the Charleston and softshoe in their dance routine. Karen Secco will direct and accompany the chorus.

The eighth-grade chorus directed by Carol Maloney will present, "The Red, White and Blue Review." Students will sing and dance to a polka, congo, jitterbug and drill march.

Admission is free.

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59

William Coss and Kevin Connolly will present a magic show based on historical facts and illusions developed by the magicians of the 19th Century for students at Einstein School, Des Plaines.

Two performances will be presented today at 10:15 a.m. and 1 p.m. The event, sponsored by Urban Gateways, is designed to teach while entertaining.

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21

Parents of sixth-grade children planning to attend Jack London Junior High School next fall are invited to attend an orientation meeting today at 8 p.m. at the school, 1001 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

The school's various programs will be explained and parents will have the opportunity to ask questions.

Irrig School, 1250 Radcliffe Rd., Buffalo Grove, will hold an orientation meeting for third-grade parents today at 7:30 p.m. The purpose of the meeting is to keep communication lines open between home and school and to inform parents of plans for next year.

"Parents' Day" programs will be held by students in Team 1 at Field School today through Thursday and June 2 at 2 p.m. at the school, 51 St. Armand Ln., Wheeling.

Students will present a play on reading, folk dances and introduce their parents to the alphabet characters they used to learn to read.

"Those Were the Days," a musical program, will be presented Wednesday at 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. at Kilmer School, 635 Golfview Terr., Buffalo Grove. The chorus, that includes students in Grades 4-6, and student dancers will present a variety of numbers including selections from "Oklahoma," "Bye Bye Birdie" and the "Mickey Mouse Club."

Students in first, fifth, and sixth grades at Tarkington School will present a musical program Thursday.

Work and play songs will be used as the theme of the 2:15 p.m. program at the school, 310 Scott St., Wheeling.

The kindergarten class of Jan Starosto at Aleott School, Buffalo Grove, is preparing for a field trip to Chicago Wednesday. The class will have a picnic at Lincoln Park Zoo, visit the aquarium and ride in a Chicago fire boat.

Kris Lewis and Cris Stron, sixth graders at Aleott School, Buffalo Grove, and their parents were awarded tickets to the final Northwest Community Concert Assn. performance. Both pupils were chosen on the basis of musical interest and school citizenship.

Prospect Heights Dist. 23

Lt. David Gwin of the Great Lakes Naval Air Station, Glenview, will present a pageant depicting "The History of the Flag" to pupils at Eisenhower School, Schenck and McDonald roads, Prospect Heights, Thursday at 9 a.m.

Gwin and 14 men dressed in historical uniforms will trace the stages of American history.

Arlington Heights Dist. 25

Special activities to commemorate Memorial Day are planned Thursday at Kensington School, Arlington Heights. A Marine color guard will present a flag ceremony using flags and wearing uniforms from historical periods.

Maine Township High School Dist. 207

The Maine North High School concert choir and orchestra with a guest choir from Holy Trinity Lutheran Church of Glenview, will present "Festival of Music," Thursday at 8 p.m. at the school, 3611 Harrison St., Des Plaines.

Proceeds from the concert will benefit the Maine North Fine Arts Booster scholarships. General admission tickets are $2 and $1.50 for booster members. Tickets may be obtained by calling the school at 298-3300.

High School Dist. 214

Prospect High School students will begin celebrating the nation's 200th birthday Thursday with a Bicentennial kite fly from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The kites, homemade and purchased, will be flown over the practice fields.

Awards for the best painted kite with a Bicentennial theme and the surviving kite of a demolition derby will be given.

In general:

"What Do You Want To Know?" a question and answer panel will be presented at Wednesday's Council on Understanding Learning Disabilities meeting.

Panel members will include Lynn Young, resident of Buffalo Grove and mother of three children two of whom have learning disabilities; psychologist Kenneth Moses who works in rehabilitation counseling, and Dr. Keith McCloskey, pediatrician, who has served with the Harper College Child Development Program Advisory Committee.

The COULD meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in room 124C, at Hersey High School, 1900 E. Thomas, Arlington Heights.

River Trails Dist. 26

River Trails Junior High School, 1000 Wolf Rd., Mount Prospect, will hold its spring concert for all chorals groups Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. The band concert will be June 4 at 7:30 p.m. All parents of River Trails pupils are invited to these two concerts.

Sacred Heart of Mary High School 1-14 bold.

Activities honoring Sacred Heart of Mary High School graduating seniors begin Wednesday with an in-school assembly recognizing students' service in clubs and other activities.

A mass Thursday at 8:30 p.m. in the school gym will be followed by an awards dinner at 8 p.m. at The Lancer Steak House restaurant, Schaumburg.

Friday at 8 p.m. 135 graduates will receive their diplomas. A tea hosted by the mothers' club will follow the ceremonies in the school cafeteria.

IT WAS A healthy leap, but Dawn Okrasinski missed the shot anyway. She was one of several people taking advantage of the sunny holiday weather to play at the Heritag Park tennis courts, which were installed last fall as part of a major Wheeling park improvement referendum package.

Wheeling officials urge program renewal

Keep revenue sharing: township

Wheeling Township officials are leading a local drive to persuade Congress to retain the federal revenue-sharing program when it expires next year.

Ethel Kolerus, Wheeling Township supervisor, said Monday the township will survey other townships in the county on their use of revenue-sharing funds in the last four years.

The survey is being conducted at the request of the Township Officials of Cook County organization, which seeks to show Congress what kinds of community services have been provided through the program.

"We plan to call all the congressional representatives for Cook County to show them the survey results this fall after it is completed, and prove to them that the townships are prudently and properly spending the federal revenue-sharing funds," Mrs. Kolerus said.

"Township officials want the revenue-sharing program continued because we have been able to provide social services to residents without additional taxation. We want to back up our request with facts," she said.

PALATINE IS the first area township to allocate $350 to mail letters in support of continued revenue-sharing to all U.S. congressmen.

Howard I. Olsen, Palatine Township supervisor, said the township "is lobbying for the continuation of the program on behalf of everyone in the township."

"We are exercising what is the duty of our office in a proper and beneficial way," Olsen said. Although at least one township resident has criticized the township board's action.

Ann Scollay, 669 Carpenter Dr., Palatine, said she opposes the action because "it is denying me my regress on the situation. The township says it is writing all of the congressmen on behalf of everyone, but not everyone wants to see the townships receive federal revenue-sharing again," said Mrs. Scollay, a member of the Palatine League of Women Voters.

Her husband, Jack, ran against Olsen for township supervisor on a platform that included phasing out township government.

OLSEN SAID revenue-sharing usually comprises 33 per cent of the township's budget. Palatine Township has received about $300,000 in federal revenue-sharing funds since the program began four years ago.

Mrs. Kolerus said the survey is an effort "to unify all county townships in getting the program renewed."

"All townships in this area have been able to provide mental health services, services for the aged, for the poor and for the youth, and I think that almost all of the residents in any township have benefited from one or more of these services. And each of them is financed with revenue-sharing," she said.

Cops disperse 200 in Lake Run party

A Rolling Meadows man was arrested and several hundred persons sent home late Saturday as Sheriff's Police, aided by Wheeling and Mount Prospect Police, broke up a party at the Lake-Run Apartments in Wheeling Township.

Police Monday said they were first called to the party, at 160 Willow Rd., at 9:48 p.m. Saturday. The officer sent to scene requested a backup of nine Sheriff's police cars and further support from the two local police departments when he realized he would not be able to handle the situation alone, police said.

The partygoers, numbering about 200, apparently refused orders to disperse, and created noise and jumped fully clothed into the clubhouse swimming pool, police said.

Police, who still are trying to find out who was responsible for the party, said they arrested Joseph J. Eschenbrenner, 21, of 2000 Hawks Ct., Rolling Meadows, for aggravated battery, resisting arrest and disorderly conduct. He was being held on $2,000 bond Monday afternoon and will appear June 18 in the Niles branch of Circuit Court.

Cop cadets to check bike safety, riders

Bicycle riders of all ages are invited to have their bicycles checked and their riding skills rated June 7 by the Buffalo Grove Police Cadets.

Bicycles will be examined at a bike safety lane at Buffalo Grove High School beginning at 9 a.m. and lasting throughout the day. Police cadets also will test riders on various skills needed to maneuver the bicycles safely.

Prizes, donated from village businesses, will be awarded on a point system. Radios, gift certificates and gold, silver and bronze medals will be given. Each participant will receive a prize.

Appointment power taken by trustees

The Wheeling Village Board next month will join the village president in making appointments to village commissions rather than following the previous policy of ratifying the village president's nominees.

Commission seats to be filled include four on the plan commission and one on the zoning board, which consider rezoning requests, building and zoning code variation requests and plans for new construction and development in the village.

The change in appointments procedure is a result of the April 15 village election in which the Wheeling Improvement Party (WHIP) swept all three board seats to form a four-man majority on the seven-member village board. Trustee Gilbert J. Monoson, a member of WHIP, said the appointments will be decided on by the village board at a committee meeting rather than just by Village Pres. Ted Scanlon.

MONOSON SAID Scanlon has decided not to choose the appointees then ask for full board approval, as has been done in the past, to avoid embarrassing anyone he nominates who might be turned down by the board.

"The thing you really don't want to do is have the president name someone and the board shoot him down," said Trustee Otis L. Hedlund, who has been arranging interviews with prospective commissioners. He said Scanlon appeared receptive to handling the appointments this way.

"Pres. Scanlon realizes he holds a minority position on the board," Monoson said. Scanlon could not be reached for comment Monday.

In addition to the vacancies on the plan commission and the zoning board of appeals, Monoson said there are three positions on the newly-created ethics board, three positions on the municipal relations commission and several vacancies on other commissions, such as the youth commission.

WITHIN A month the village board also will have to fill three seats on the appearance and control commission, which is being set up by the board. Monoson said he hopes that those who apply for the plan commission and zoning board but are rejected apply for this new commission.

The village board acting as a committee of the whole, has interviewed 15 candidates for commission posts. Hedlund said another six or seven will be interviewed Wednesday night.

Appointments to the plan commission, the zoning board and the one vacancy on the fire and police commission are tentatively scheduled for the June 2 board meeting, Hedlund said. He said he hopes to have all other commission appointments made by July 4. "It depends on how much time the board wants to give to this," he said.

Monoson said that as far as the four WHIP members of the village board are concerned, "We're looking for the most qualified, eager to serve, competent and capable people." He said commissioners would be chosen regardless of party loyalties in the last election.

Schaumburg woman gets 3-9 years in plot to kill husband

Marlene Swimley of Schaumburg was sentenced Monday to three to nine years in prison for soliciting a man she believed was a contract killer to murder her husband.

Criminal Court Judge Marvin E. Aspen said in passing the sentence that Mrs. Swimley lacked credibility and displayed a "distant, cold detachment" to what she was doing. Murderers are not usually cold and detached, he said.

Mrs. Swimley, 33, of 322 Meacham Rd., posted a $25,000 appeal bond after the sentencing. Her attorney, Louis Carbonaro, could not be reached for comment.

After a nine-day trial ended May 1, a 10-woman, 2-man jury found the Schaumburg housewife guilty of trying to hire an undercover agent to kill her husband, Air National Guard Lt. Col. Duane A. Swimley, 46.

MRS. SWINLEY was arrested Jan. 24, 1974 outside the Woodfield Theatre, where she met with Joseph Saladino, a state's attorney's investigator posing as a contract killer.

Judge Aspen referred to a tape recording of the meeting and said, "It might be argued that this was a bungled attempt. Except for a little bit of bad luck, it might have been a murder case."

In presentencing testimony Monday, Joan and Edward Danz, of Lombard, invoked the Fifth Amendment when asked by Assistant State's Atty. John DeRose about an airline refund check that bank records indicate was deposited in their account.

The records indicate it was later paid out in a check written to Harold Blaauw, once sued by Swimley for alienation of affection, though the suit was dropped before trial.

In earlier testimony it was revealed that Mrs. Swimley had offered a 15-year-old West Coast boy two airline tickets, which were never used, to kill her husband.

THE ALLEGED plot began when her son by a previous marriage, Joseph Enderle, 15, reportedly contacted a neighbor boy asking if he could obtain a "hit man" to be employed by his mother.

The neighbor later contacted a Rochester, N.Y., man, whose family contacted the County State's Attorney's office. Charges against Enderle for solicitation for murder later were dropped.

In other testimony Monday, Swimley denied that he "beat or slugged" his pregnant wife, causing a miscarriage.

"I've got my son. I'll have to start all over again," Swimley, who has custody of their son Duane, 8, said after sitting quietly through the sentencing.

He since has filed for divorce, charging his wife with adultery.

Friday at 8 p.m. 135 graduates will receive their diplomas. A tea hosted by the mothers' club will follow the ceremonies in the school cafeteria.

IT WAS A healthy leap, but Dawn Okrasinski missed the shot anyway. She was one of several people taking advantage of the sunny holiday weather to play at the Heritage Park tennis courts, which were installed last fall as part of a major Wheeling park improvement referendum package.

Wheeling officials urge program renewal

Keep revenue sharing: township

Wheeling Township officials are leading a local drive to persuade Congress to retain the federal revenue-sharing program when it expires next year.

Ethel Kolerus, Wheeling Township supervisor, said Monday the township will survey other townships in the county on their use of revenue-sharing funds in the last four years.

The survey is being conducted at the request of the Township Officials of Cook County organization, which seeks to show Congress what kinds of community services have been provided through the program.

"We plan to call all the congressional representatives for Cook County to show them the survey results this fall after it is completed, and prove to them that the townships are prudently and properly spending the federal revenue-sharing funds," Mrs. Kolerus said.

"Township officials want the revenue-sharing program continued because we have been able to provide social services to residents without additional taxation. We want to back up our request with facts," she said.

PALATINE IS the first area township to allocate $350 to mail letters in support of continued revenue-sharing to all U.S. congressmen.

Howard I. Olsen, Palatine Township supervisor, said the township "is lobbying for the continuation of the program on behalf of everyone in the township."

"We are exercising what is the duty of our office in a proper and beneficial way," Olsen said. Although at least one township resident has criticized the township board's action.

Ann Scollay, 669 Carpenter Dr., Palatine, said she opposes the action because "it is denying me my regress on the situation. The township says it is writing all of the congressmen on behalf of everyone, but not everyone wants to see the townships receive federal revenue-sharing again," said Mrs. Scollay, a member of the Palatine League of Women Voters.

Her husband, Jack, ran against Olsen for township supervisor on a platform that included phasing out township government.

OLSEN SAID revenue-sharing usually comprises 33 per cent of the township's budget. Palatine Township has received about $300,000 in federal revenue-sharing funds since the program began four years ago.

Mrs. Kolerus said the survey is an effort "to unify all county townships in getting the program renewed."

"All townships in this area have been able to provide mental health services, services for the aged, for the poor and for the youth, and I think that almost all of the residents in any township have benefited from one or more of these services. And each of them is financed with revenue-sharing," she said.

Cops disperse 200 in Lake Run party

A Rolling Meadows man was arrested and several hundred persons sent home late Saturday as Sheriff's Police, aided by Wheeling and Mount Prospect police, broke up a party at the Lake-Run Apartments in Wheeling Township.

Police Monday said they were first called to the party, at 160 Willow Rd., at 9:48 p.m. Saturday. The officer sent to scene requested a backup of nine Sheriff's police cars and further support from the two local police departments when he realized he would not be able to handle the situation alone, police said.

The partygoers, numbering about 200, apparently refused orders to disperse, and created noise and jumped fully clothed into the clubhouse swimming pool, police said.

Police, who still are trying to find out who was responsible for the party, said they arrested Joseph J. Eschenbrenner, 21, of 2000 Hawks Ct., Rolling Meadows, for aggravated battery, resisting arrest and disorderly conduct. He was being held on $2,000 bond Monday afternoon and will appear June 10 in the Niles branch of Circuit Court.

Wage negotiators study first proposals

Negotiators on both sides of the Wheeling employe-salary talks are studying proposals made at last Friday's "preliminary meeting."

Village Mgr. George Passolt, head of the village negotiators, said Monday the next bargaining session has not been scheduled. He also said he did not know how many meetings the negotiations would require before a settlement is reached.

Passolt described Friday's first meeting with the four-member employe negotiating team and Administrative Assistant Thomas Markus as "preliminary." He said both sides merely clarified their demands.

It is believed employes are seeking a 9-to-15 per cent across-the-board pay raise, but the negotiating team refuses to confirm or deny those figures. Both sides have agreed to make no statements about negotiations until an agreement is reached.

This is the first year in which the negotiating team for both sides has been slimmed down. The employe negotiating team was reduced from 14 to 4, which is chaired by Patrolman Edward A. Leach. On the village side, the trustees and village attorney have been eliminated from the bargaining sessions.

Leach said he believes the smaller groups will make negotiations easier. Any salary package agreed on by the negotiators must be approved by the village board as the pay raises will be part of the 1975-76 village budget.

Prospect Hts. parks to review budget

The Prospect Heights Park District will review its 1975-76 budget at 8 p.m. today at the Prospect Heights Public Library, 12 N. Elm St., Prospect Heights.

The budget is the largest in the district's history because it includes $993,186 for capital improvements, as approved last year in the $1.1 million parks improvement referendum. The remainder already has been spent toward the improvements, including the community center/sports complex, which will be at Lions Park on Camp McDonald Road at Elm Street.

The proposed budget totals $1,182,645.

The park board also will open and consider approving bids for tennis courts to be built at Lions Park and the park on the Commonwealth Edison Co. right-of-way, southwest of the Country Gardens subdivision.

Woman gets 3-9 years in plot to kill husband

Marlene Swimley of Schaumburg was sentenced Monday to three to nine years in prison for soliciting a man she believed was a contract killer to murder her husband.

Criminal Court Judge Marvin E. Aspen said in passing the sentence that Mrs. Swimley lacked credibility and displayed a "distant, cold detachment" to what she was doing. Murderers are not usually cold and detached, he said.

Mrs. Swimley, 33, of 322 Meacham Rd., posted a $25,000 appeal bond after the sentencing. Her attorney, Louis Carbonaro, could not be reached for comment.

After a nine-day trial ended May 1, a 10-woman, 2-man jury found the Schaumburg housewife guilty of trying to hire an undercover agent to kill her husband. Air National Guard Lt. Col Duane A. Swimley, 46.

MRS. SWIMLEY was arrested Jan.

24, 1974 outside the Woodfield Theatre, where she met with Joseph Saladino, a state's attorney's investigator posing as a contract killer.

Judge Aspen referred to a tape recording of the meeting and said, "It might be argued that this was a bungled attempt. Except for a little bit of bad luck, it might have been a murder case."

In presentencing testimony Monday, Joan and Edward Danz, of Lombard, invoked the Fifth Amendment when asked by Assistant State's Atty. John DeRose about an airline refund check that bank records indicate was deposited in their account.

The records indicate it was later paid out in a check written to Harold Blauw, once sued by Swimley for alienation of affection, though the suit was dropped before trial.

In earlier testimony it was revealed that Mrs. Swimley had offered a 15-year-old West Coast boy two airline tickets, which were never used, to kill her husband.

THE ALLEGED plot began when her son by a previous marriage, Joseph Enderle, 15, reportedly contacted a neighbor boy asking if he could obtain a "hit man" to be employed by his mother.

The neighbor later contacted a Rochester, N.Y., man, whose family contacted the County State's Attorney's office. Charges against Enderle for solicitation for murder later were dropped.

In other testimony Monday, Swimley denied that he "beat or slugged" his pregnant wife, causing a miscarriage.

"I've got my son. I'll have to start all over again," Swimley, who has custody of their son Duane, 8, said after sitting quietly through the sentencing.

He since has filed for divorce, charging his wife with adultery.

SKYSAILING is among the newest programs offered by area park districts. Elk Grove Park District employe Bill Hughes, below, tries his hand in training sessions at Warren Dunes, Mich., where the big kites fly.

Teens offered 'reliable' health data

The Regional Youth Service Bureau has started offering teen-agers health counseling and information that officials say was not generally available in the Northwest suburbs.

Sue Ross, new coordinator of the bureau's health counseling and information services, said "teens and their parents need to have more reliable information on health problems available to them free," and that "many teens are finding themselves in trouble just because they do not have informed sources to go to."

Mrs. Ross has been talking with high school, hospital, mental health and medical health agency officials since April, when she was hired as coordinator, to "pinpoint the kinds of health information and counseling teens aren't getting from other places in this area."

THE REGIONAL Youth Services Bureau serves residents of Palatine, Schaumburg and Elk Grove townships. The townships support its hotline and health services with $10,000 each year in federal revenue-sharing allocations.

Teen-agers have requested information on contraceptives, venereal disease, abortion and other health problems from the bureau, Mrs. Ross said.

"They can go to the Crossroads Clinic in Palatine for medical tests and examinations, and they can learn some of the basics about health problems in their high schools, but there aren't too many places they can go to ask health questions openly and confidentially," she said.

Mrs. Ross said she is planning to distribute a regular health newsletter to teens throughout the three-township area to give them updated health information.

She also is planning to have written and audio-visual health information available in her offices at The Bridge Youth Services, 434½ E. Northwest Hwy. in Palatine, for teen-agers and their parents to use.

"TEEN-AGERS seem willing to ask for accurate information but don't have enough places to find it. Adults are just the opposite. Many of them want to know more about the same health problems, but are afraid to ask," she said.

The bureau has been offering free-part-time health counseling to teen-agers for the past year, "most of which has centered around unwanted pregnancy," said Margaret E. Hermon, bureau director.

"We have been trying to help these girls decide what they should do about

New law limits truck parking

The Hoffman Estates Village Board approved an ordinance Monday night prohibiting trucks from parking on village streets for extended periods of time.

The ordinance applies to commercial vehicles weighing more than 4,500 pounds, and allows parking up to two hours, unless the vehicle is being loaded or unloaded.

The action, was requested by residents of Newport Road who complained of a neighbor parking a truck, tractor, trailer and flatbed truck at Newport and Hillcrest Boulevard. The vehicles obstruct vision for other drivers and endanger neighborhood children, they said.

Trustees William W. Cowin and Melvin E. Timmons fought the ordinance, trying to refer it to Timmons' judiciary committee or at least defer it temporarily.

Cowin said he has a neighbor who occasionally parks a moving van on Bode Road, and said the village has received no complaints on that vehicle. He suggested compromising with the Newport Road offender, saying the ordinance might create other problems, and impose hardships on other residents, in order to solve an isolated problem.

Village Pres. Virginia Hayter and other trustees said, however, there have been complaints about the Bode Road moving van, as well as on other situations.

The four other trustees voted twice against deferral, and overcame dissenting votes cast by Cowin and Timmons when the ordinance was up for passage.

The board also approved a $6,654.70 contract with Uniform Rental Systems to supply uniforms for employees in public works and buildings and grounds departments for 1975-76.

State holiday death toll dips

Holiday traffic deaths increase

The number of traffic fatalities over the Memorial Day weekend increased despite continuation this year of lower speed limits on the nation's highways.

Figures for the first of the warm weather national holidays appeared contrary to the trend set for Memorial Day 1974 when 390 persons were killed in traffic accidents, a 14-year low.

The lower speed limits were attributed in part to saving between 8,000 to 10,000 lives during 1974, the National Safety Council said. Other reasons included the energy crunch and the economy.

Highway deaths for 1974 were 48,000 the lowest since 1964 when 47,000 were killed. In 1973, the total was 55,800. In Illinois there were 1,958 traffic deaths during 1974 compared to 2,331 in 1973.

A United Press International count Monday showed 368 persons had died on the nation's highways since the holiday period began at 6 p.m. Friday.

by United Press International

A plane crash killing five persons and a car accident resulting in the death of a Waukegan man were among the worst accidents in Illinois during the Memorial Day holiday.

By late afternoon Monday, UPI's fatality count in Illinois showed 12 persons had died in traffic accidents, five in a plane crash and five in drownings.

State police said 26 persons were killed in traffic accidents in Illinois during the 1974 three-day Memorial holiday and 29 died during the three-day period in 1973.

AMONG THE ACCIDENTS marring the holiday this year was the crash Saturday night of a single-engine plane carrying the Edward Kikic family of Chicago. Police said Kikic, his wife, two children and his sister, were en route to their Wisconsin farm when the plane went down. Their bodies were found Sunday night.

In a two-car accident Monday, Benny Levy Jr. of Waukegan was killed and five persons injured. Police said Levy's car veered across the median on Interstate 55 near Joliet and hit a car driven by Henry Walters.

A number of children were among the victims of holiday accidents.

Six-year-old Colin Smith died near Naperville when he darted in front of a squad car. Thirteen-year-old Bryan King of Quincy was killed by a hit-and-run driver while riding his bicycle Sunday night. Three teen-age boys from Chicago, Charleston and DeKalb drowned in separate incidents, and a Chicago youth was electrocuted in a backyard accident at his home.

IN OTHER ACCIDENTS, David Kleiman, 19, of Hesseville, Ind., was killed in Bloom Township when his car struck an object and crashed on the Calumet Expressway.

Thomas Zaborsky, 25, Worth, was killed early Sunday when his car crashed head-on with a car driven by Pantelis Peronis, 21, Crown Point, Ind., who was seriously injured. Police said Peronis was driving the wrong way in the eastbound lane of Interstate 80 when the accident occurred.

Parks, library to outline needs for fire station

Representatives of two local governmental agencies interested in obtaining Hoffman Estates Fire Station No. 2 will appear at a village board committee meeting tonight.

Officials of the Hoffman Estates Park District are expected to attend an 8 p.m. meeting in the Municipal Building, 1200 N. Gannon Dr. Schaumburg Township Public Library Board members are due at 9 p.m., Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said Monday.

The park district and library earlier this year submitted tentative proposals for use of the building at 469 Haswell Rd., scheduled to close Sunday because of insufficient village revenue. A new fire station at Mumford Drive and Freeman Road in the Winston Knolls subdivision is scheduled to open June 15.

The library is considering the station as a possible branch facility though "more estimates from other sources are needed before a decision can be made," Library Board Pres. John Lucas said Monday.

LUCAS AND PARKS Director Allen Binder described tonight's committee meeting as "exploratory." Though the park district would use the station as a community center, Binder said a number of questions and answers must be exchanged before any commitment is made.

Figures released last week by the village manager's office indicate a new owner would have to retire $20,045 in bonds, though the sum might be reduced if the village deducts the portion of bond payment due on fire equipment purchased under the original package.

The report noted that 47 per cent of the $250,000 bond package was used for the station itself and 53 per cent went for equipment which the village will keep after the station closes.

their pregnancy, and then we refer them to the agencies that can help them the most," Mrs. Herman said.

The bureau's part-time health counselor, Diane Wilkinson, counseled 45 teen-age girls on problem pregnancy last month compared to 23 girls who were counseled on pregnancy in April 1974, Mrs. Herman said.

"More teen-agers are becoming relaxed about coming here and talking with a professional about their health problems. We're not out to duplicate services offered by other area agencies. But we do have information resources that are not as available to them in this area," she said.

MRS. ROSS said she plans to expand the hours that health counseling will be available at the bureau, and is compiling a list of suburban agencies that teens can be referred to for various medical problems, she said.

Teens can presently call the bureau's hotline at 358-TALK to make an appointment with a health counselor on weeknights and weekends.

She also is planning "rap sessions" and seminars this summer at locations in all three townships where both teens and adults can talk about health questions and problems, she said.

Residents interested in attending the talk sessions or in getting free health information can also call 358-TALK.

Teens offered 'more reliable' counseling

The Regional Youth Service Bureau has started offering teen-agers health counseling and information that officials say was not generally available in the Northwest suburbs.

Sue Ross, new coordinator of the bureau's health counseling and information services, said "teens and their parents need to have more reliable information on health problems available to them free," and that "many teens are finding themselves in trouble just because they do not have informed sources to go to."

Mrs. Ross has been talking with high school, hospital, mental health and medical health agency officials since April, when she was hired as coordinator, to "pinpoint the kinds of health information and counseling teens aren't getting from other places in this area."

THE REGIONAL Youth Services Bureau serves residents of Palatine, Schaumburg and Elk Grove townships. The townships support its hotline and health services with $10,000 each year in federal revenue-sharing allocations.

Teen-agers have requested information on contraceptives, venereal disease, abortion and other health problems from the bureau, Mrs. Ross said.

"They can go to the Crossroads Clinic in Palatine for medical tests and examinations, and they can learn some of the basics about health problems in their high schools, but there aren't too many places they can go to ask health questions openly and confidentially," she said.

Mrs. Ross said she is planning to distribute a regular health newsletter to teens throughout the three-township area to give them updated health information.

She also is planning to have written and audio-visual health information available in her offices at The Bridge Youth Services, 434 1/2 E. Northwest Hwy. in Palatine, for teen-agers and their parents to use.

"TEEN-AGERS seem willing to ask for accurate information but don't have enough places to find it. Adults are just the opposite. Many of them want to know more about the same health problems, but are afraid to ask," she said.

The bureau has been offering free part-time health counseling to teen-agers for the past year, "most of which has centered around unwanted pregnancy," said Margaret E. Herman, bureau director.

"We have been trying to help these girls decide what they should do about their pregnancy, and then we refer them to the agencies that can help them the most," Mrs. Herman said.

The bureau's part-time health counselor, Diane Wilkinson, counseled 45 teen-age girls on problem pregnancy last month compared to 23 girls who were counseled on pregnancy in April 1974, Mrs. Herman said.

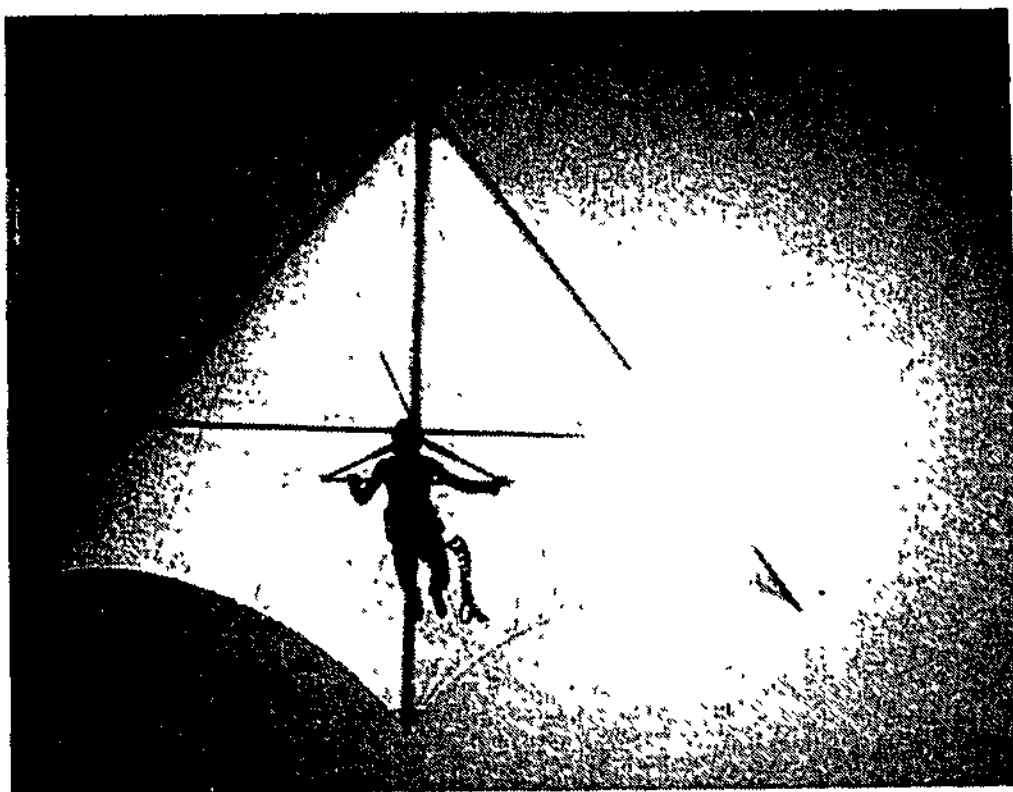

"More teen-agers are becoming relaxed about coming here and talking with a professional about their health problems. We're not out to duplicate services offered by other area agencies. But we do have information resources that are not as available to them in this area," she said.

MRS. ROSS said she plans to expand the hours that health counseling will be available at the bureau, and is compiling a list of suburban agencies that teens can be referred to for various medical problems, she said.

Teens can presently call the bureau's hotline at 358-TALK to make an appointment with a health counselor on weeknights and weekends.

She also is planning "rap sessions" and seminars this summer at locations in all three townships where both teens and adults can talk about health questions and problems, she said.

Schaumburg woman gets 3-9 years in plot to kill husband

Marlene Swimley of Schaumburg was sentenced Monday to three to nine years in prison for soliciting a man she believed was a contract killer to murder her husband.

Criminal Court Judge Marvin E. Aspen said in passing the sentence that Mrs. Swimley lacked credibility and displayed a "distant, cold detachment" to what she was doing. Murderers are not usually cold and detached, he said.

Mrs. Swimley, 33, of 322 Meacham Rd., posted a $25,000 appeal bond after the sentencing. Her attorney, Louis Carbonaro, could not be reached for comment.

After a nine-day trial ended May 1, a 10-woman, 2-man jury found the Schaumburg housewife guilty of trying to hire an undercover agent to kill her husband, Air National Guard Lt. Col. Duane A. Swimley, 46.

MRS. SWIMLEY was arrested Jan. 24, 1974 outside the Woodfield Theatres, where she met with Joseph Saladino, a state's attorney's investigator posing as a contract killer.

Judge Aspen referred to a tape recording of the meeting and said, "It might be argued that this was a bungled attempt. Except for a little bit of bad luck, it might have been a murder case."

In presentencing testimony Monday, Joan and Edward Danz, of Lombard, invoked the Fifth Amendment when asked by Assistant State's Atty. John DeRose about an airline refund check that bank records indicate was deposited in their account.

The records indicate it was later paid out in a check written to Harold Blaauw, once sued by Swimley for alienation of affection, though the suit was dropped before trial.

In earlier testimony it was revealed that Mrs. Swimley had offered a 15-year-old West Coast boy two airline tickets, which were never used, to kill her husband.

THE ALLEGED plot began when her son by a previous marriage, Joseph Enderle, 15, reportedly contacted a neighbor boy asking if he could obtain a "hit man" to be employed by his mother.

The neighbor later contacted a Rochester, N.Y., man, whose family contacted the County State's Attorney's office. Charges against Enderle for solicitation for murder later were dropped.

In other testimony Monday, Swimley denied that he "beat or slugged" his pregnant wife, causing a miscarriage.

"I've got my son. I'll have to start all over again," Swimley, who has custody of their son Duane, 8, said after sitting quietly through the sentencing.

He since has filed for divorce, charging his wife with adultery.

Police disperse 200 at party

A Rolling Meadows man was arrested and several hundred persons sent home late Saturday as Sheriff's Police, aided by Wheeling and Mount Prospect police, broke up a party at the Lake-Run Apartments in Wheeling Township.

Police Monday said they were first called to the party, at 190 Willow Rd., at 9:45 p.m. Saturday. The officer sent to scene requested a backup of nine Sheriff's police cars and further support from the two local police departments when he realized he would not be able to handle the situation alone, police said.

The partygoers, numbering about 200, apparently refused orders to disperse, and created noise and jumped fully clothed into the clubhouse swimming pool, police said.

Police, who still are trying to find out who was responsible for the party, said they arrested Joseph J. Eschambrenner, 21, of 2000 Hawks Ct., Rolling Meadows, for aggravated battery, resisting arrest and disorderly conduct. He was being held on $2,000 bond Monday afternoon and will appear June 18 in the Niles branch of Circuit Court.

State holiday death toll dips

Holiday traffic deaths increase

The number of traffic fatalities over the Memorial Day weekend increased despite continuation this year of lower speed limits on the nation's highways.

Figures for the first of the warm weather national holidays appeared contrary to the trend set for Memorial Day 1974 when 390 persons were killed in traffic accidents, a 14-year low.

The lower speed limits were attributed in part to saving between 8,000 to 10,000 lives during 1974, the National Safety Council said. Other reasons included the energy crunch and the economy.

Highway deaths for 1974 were 48,000 the lowest since 1964 when 47,000 were killed. In 1973, the total was 63,900. In Illinois there were 1,958 traffic deaths during 1974 compared to 2,331 in 1973.

A United Press International count Monday showed 366 persons had died on the nation's highways since the holiday period began at 6 p.m. Friday.

by United Press International
A plane crash killing five persons and a car accident resulting in the death of a Waukegan man were among the worst accidents in Illinois during the Memorial Day holiday.

By late afternoon Monday, UPI's fatality count in Illinois showed 12 persons had died in traffic accidents, five in a plane crash and five in drownings.

State police said 26 persons were killed in traffic accidents during the 1974 three-day Memorial holiday and 29 died during the three-day period in 1973.

AMONG THE ACCIDENTS marring the holiday this year was the crash Saturday night of a single-engine plane carrying the Edward Kikic family of Chicago. Police said Kikic, his wife, two children and his sister, were en route to their Wisconsin farm when the plane went down. Their bodies were found Sunday night.

In a two-car accident Monday, Benny Levy Jr. of Waukegan was killed and five persons injured. Police said Levy's car veered across the median on Interstate 55 near Joliet and hit a car driven by Henry Walters. A number of children were among the victims of holiday accidents.

Six-year-old Colin Smith died near Naperville when he dived in front of a squad car. Thirteen-year-old Bryan King of Quincy was killed by a hit-and-run driver while riding his bicycle Sunday night. Three teen-age boys from Chicago, Charleston and DeKalb drowned in separate incidents, and a Chicago youth was electrocuted in a backyard accident at his home.

IN OTHER ACCIDENTS, David Kleiman, 19, of Hesseville, Ind., was killed in Bloom Township when his car struck an object and crashed on the Calumet Expressway.

Thomas Zaborsky, 25, Worth, was killed early Sunday when his car crashed head-on with a car driven by Pantelis Peronis, 21, Crown Point, Ind., who was seriously injured. Police said Peronis was driving the wrong way in the eastbound lane of Interstate 80 when the accident occurred.

Nostalgic dances, songs at Plum Grove

Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15

"Remember When," a collection of songs and dances from the 1920s, '30s and '40s will be presented to the PTSA at Plum Grove Junior High School today at 7:30 p.m.

The jazz band, directed by George Southgate, will feature numbers by Count Basie. The seventh-grade chorus, in costumes of the 1920s, will include the Charleston and softshoe in their dance routine. Karen Seco will direct and accompany the chorus.

The eighth-grade chorus directed by Carol Maloney will present, "The Red, White and Blue Revue." Students will sing and dance to a polka, congo, jitterbug and drill march. Admission is free.

Kindergarten classes at Wood School, Palatine, are having a circus Thursday, June 5. The children will take part as different animals.

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59

William Coss and Kevin Connolly will present a magic show based on historical facts and illusions developed by the magicians of the 19th Century for students at Elmhurst School, Des Plaines.

Two performances will be presented today at 10:15 a.m. and 1 p.m. The event, sponsored by Urban Gateways, is designed to teach while entertaining.

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21

Parents of sixth-grade children planning to attend Jack London Junior High School next fall are invited to attend an orientation meeting today at 8 p.m. at the school, 1001 W. Dundie Rd., Wheeling.

The school's various programs will be explained and parents will have the opportunity to ask questions.

Irving School, 1250 Radcliffe Rd., Buffalo Grove, will hold an orientation meeting for third-grade parents today at 7:30 p.m. The purpose of the meeting is to keep communication lines open between home and school and to inform parents of plans for next year.

"Parents' Day" programs will be held by students in Team 1 at Field School today through Thursday and June 2 at 2 p.m. at the school, 51 St. Armand Ln., Wheeling.

Students will present a play on reading, folk dances and introduce their parents to the alphabet characters they used to learn to read.

"Those Were the Days," a musical program, will be presented Wednesday at 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. at Kilmor School, 655 Golfview Terr., Buffalo Grove. The chorus, that includes students in Grades 4-6, and student dancers will present a variety of numbers including selections from "Oklahoma," "Bye Bye Birdie" and the "Mickey Mouse Club."

Students in first, fifth, and sixth grades at Tarkington School will present a musical program Thursday.

Work and play songs will be used as the theme of the 2:15 p.m. program at the school, 310 Scott St., Wheeling.

The kindergarten class of Jan Starosto at Alcott School, Buffalo Grove, is preparing for a field trip to Chicago Wednesday. The class will have a picnic at Lincoln Park Zoo, visit the aquarium and ride in a Chicago fire boat.

Kris Lewis and Kris Stron, sixth graders at Alcott School, Buffalo Grove, and their parents were awarded tickets to the final Northwest Community Concert Assn. performance. Both pupils were chosen on the basis of musical interest and school citizenship.

Prospect Heights Dist. 23

Lt. David Gwin of the Great Lakes Naval Air Station, Glenview, will present a pageant depicting "The History of the Flag" to pupils at Eisenhower School, Schoenbeck and McDonald roads, Prospect Heights, Thursday at 9 a.m.

Gwin and 14 men dressed in historical uniforms will trace the stages of American history.

Arlington Heights Dist. 25

Special activities to commemorate Memorial Day are planned Thursday at Kensington School, Arlington Heights. A Marine color guard will present a flag ceremony using flags and wearing uniforms from historical periods.

Maine Township High School Dist. 207

The Maine North High School concert choir and orchestra with a guest choir from Holy Trinity Lutheran Church of Glenview, will present "Festival of Music," Thursday at 8 p.m. at the school, 9511 Harrison St., Des Plaines.

Proceeds from the concert will benefit the Maine North Fine Arts Booster scholarships. General admission tickets are $2 and $1.50 for booster members. Tickets may be obtained by calling the school at 298-3500.

High School Dist. 214

Prospect High School students will begin celebrating the nation's 200th birthday Thursday with a Bicentennial kite fly from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The kites, homemade and purchased, will be flown over the practice fields.

Awards for the best painted kite with a Bicentennial theme and the surviving kite of a demolition derby will be given.

In general:

"What Do You Want To Know?" a question and answer panel will be presented at Wednesday's Council on Understanding Learning Disabilities meeting.

Panel members will include Lynn Young, resident of Buffalo Grove and mother of three children two of whom have learning disabilities; psychologist Kenneth Moses who works in rehabilitation counseling, and Dr. Keith McCloskey, pediatrician, who has served with the Harper College Child Development Program Advisory Committee.

The COULD meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in room 124C, at Hersey High School, 1000 E. Thomas, Arlington Heights.

River Trails Dist. 26

River Trails Junior High School, 1000 Wolf Rd., Mount Prospect, will hold its spring concert for all choral groups Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. The band concert will be June 4 at 7:30 p.m. All parents of River Trails pupils are invited to these two concerts.

Sacred Heart of Mary High School 1-14 hold -

Activities honoring Sacred Heart of Mary High School graduating seniors begin Wednesday with an in-school assembly recognizing students' service in clubs and other activities.

A mass Thursday at 6:30 p.m. in the school gym will be followed by an awards dinner at 8 p.m. at The Lancer Steak House restaurant, Schaumburg.

Friday at 8 p.m. 135 graduates will receive their diplomas. A tea hosted by the mothers' club will follow the ceremonies in the school cafeteria.

DOWN TO EARTH. Todd Christman of Arlington Heights peers out over the railing of a fire-truck snorkel after a ride 85 feet above the ground. The ride was all part of his being department chief for a day recently in LaPorte, Ind.

Balloon proves even better than his own wishing well

When it comes to distance there's not much to say about the ability of second grader Todd Christman of Arlington Heights.

But you have to admire his aim.

While his fellow schoolmates at Windsor School in Arlington Heights, launched postcard carrying balloons earlier this month that made it across the lake into Michigan and even on into Canada, Todd's card made it only 100 miles east to LaPorte, Ind.

But his card, on which Todd wrote his wish to become a fireman, was found by LaPorte firefighter, Bob Wedow, who ended up fulfilling Todd's dream.

Wedow wrote back, "Who knows, Todd, this may be as lucky as finding a magic lamp as Aladdin once found with the Genie inside... after all, we firefighters have to stick together."

WEDOW HELPED together "Todd Christman Day," which started with a banquet for Todd and his family, then continued with tours, gifts from local merchants, a ride through LaPorte on a fire truck and even a ride in a snorkel.

Todd was proclaimed fire department chief for a day by LaPorte Mayor Dennis Smith, an honor that came with a fireman's helmet and fire department badge No. 1.

Dazed and a bit bewildered by all the attention he was getting, Todd ended the day at his second most favorite place outside of a firehouse — McDonald's.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Christman, Arlington Heights, Todd says he's sure now more than ever that he wants to be a fireman, although he's still a little interested in being a policeman.

To be sure, Todd said he's thinking about sending up another balloon.

Wheeling officials urge program renewal

Keep revenue sharing: township

Wheeling Township officials are leading a local drive to persuade Congress to retain the federal revenue-sharing program when it expires next year.

Ethel Kolerus, Wheeling Township supervisor, said Monday the township will survey other townships in the county on their use of revenue-sharing funds in the last four years.

The survey is being conducted at the request of the Township Officials of Cook County organization, which seeks to show Congress what kinds of community services have been provided through the program.

"We plan to call all the congressional representatives for Cook County to show them the survey results this fall after it is completed, and prove to them that the townships are prudently and properly spending the federal revenue-sharing funds," Mrs. Kolerus said.

"Township officials want the revenue-sharing program continued because we have been able to provide social services to residents without additional taxation. We want to back up our request with facts," she said.

PALATINE is the first area township to allocate $350 to mail letters in support of continued revenue-sharing to all U.S. congressmen.

Howard I. Olsen, Palatine Township supervisor, said the township "is lobbying for the continuation of the program on behalf of everyone in the township."

"We are exercising what is the duty of our office in a proper and beneficial way," Olsen said. Although at least one township resident has criticized the township board's action.

Ann Scollay, 669 Carpenter Dr., Palatine, said she opposes the action because "it is denying me my regress on the situation. The township says it is writing all of the congressmen on behalf of everyone, but not everyone wants to see the townships receive federal revenue-sharing again," said Mrs. Scollay, a member of the Palatine League of Women Voters.

Her husband, Jack, ran against Olsen for township supervisor on a platform that included phasing out township government.

OLSEN SAID revenue-sharing usually comprises 33 per cent of the township's budget. Palatine Township has received about $300,000 in federal revenue-sharing funds since the program began four years ago.

Mrs. Kolerus said the survey is an effort "to unify all county townships in getting the program renewed."

"All townships in this area have been able to provide mental health services, services for the aged, for the poor and for the youth, and I think that almost all of the residents in any township have benefited from one or more of these services. And each of them is financed with revenue-sharing," she said.

Includes paint job for water tanks

City to award $56,000 in contracts

Contracts totaling more than $56,000 are listed for approval on the agenda for the Rolling Meadows City Council at 8:30 p.m. today.

The contracts are to paint city water storage tanks, buy a dump truck and make sidewalk repairs throughout the city. The council's public works, building and zoning committee reviewed bids on the three items last week, and will present recommendations tonight.

The painting contract is to be for $27,500, and will include lettering for the city name. The dump truck likely will be purchased from Salem International, Elk Grove Village, which submitted a low bid of $21,745. Selvag Cement Co., Chicago, is recommended for the sidewalk repair work.

It submitted a low bid of $7,000.

Also on tonight's agenda is appointment of a special zoning commission to hear a proposal for a limited menu restaurant and bar, The Warehouse, in the city's northern industrial park.

Other items slated for discussion at the meeting are an amendment to the liquor control ordinance to allow dancng at some restaurants and a new sign ordinance.

$1 million Hilton renovation starts today

The opening phase of an estimated $1 million renovation plan for the Arlington Park Hilton will begin today.

Hilton officials unveiled renovation plans — including redecoration of the hotel lobby and the Carousel restaurant — at a reception Sunday night. The first phase is expected to cost about $350,000, said Lane LaCoy, assistant general manager of the hotel.

LaCoy said the renovation is aimed at attracting "more convention people and people who come in on our transient plan."

"The hotel generally needs sprucing up — it needs a lot of work," he said.

LaCoy SAID the renovation has no connection with plans for a proposed sports stadium being discussed by Madison Square Gardens Corp.

"We are a Hilton hotel and we're just doing the hotel. It has nothing to do with the stadium," he said.

First-phase renovation plans include new rugs, carpeting, wallpaper and furniture for the lobby; a fireplace, new carpeting and new furniture for the Carousel restaurant; new carpeting, wall covering and draperies for 10 meeting rooms, and new draperies, carpeting and bedspreads for 45 rooms.

LaCoy said the hotel also will redecorate the entrance to the Top of the Towers Restaurant and "dress up" health club facilities, including the locker rooms and swimming pool.

THE FIRST PHASE of renovation is expected to be completed by the end of June, LaCoy said.

Hilton Hotels Corp. took over management of the 450-room hotel in December. Madison Square Garden Corp. retains ownership of the property.

Equalize library tax load: village

by JOANN VAN WYE

The Palatine Village Board Monday called on the Palatine Public Library District to spread the cost of $1.3 million in bonds for the new library to all residents of the proposed expanded library district.

The board voted 5-1 to ask the library board to study ways to split the cost of the library bonds among all residents of the proposed expanded library district, rather than just residents of the Village of Palatine. Trustee Fred H. Zajonc voted against the motion.

Currently, new residents of the library district would not be required to pay off the $1.3 million bond issue for the library at Benton Street and Northwest Highway because the bonds were issued by the village before the library became a district with bonding powers.

IF THE BONDS for the new library remain the obligation of the village, only village residents would pay for the library, which would be used by all residents of the library district.

This would result in Palatine residents paying about 31 cents per $100 assessed valuation for library services as opposed to the 23 cents per $100 assessed valuation tax non-village residents in the library district would pay. It is uncertain what the amount would be if the cost of the bond issue is spread among all residents of the expanded district.

Acting Village Atty. James McCarthy told the board the bond issue could be dissolved and a new bond issue negotiated by the library district. The other alternative is for the library district to levy sufficient operating taxes to pay the village the annual cost of retirement of the 20-year bond issue so the village would not have to levy taxes for the bond retirement.

"I think the citizens of Palatine should turn down the library district expansion unless the library agrees to do this (equalize library taxes)," Trustee Bryan P. Coughlin Jr., said. He added, "The library board has been less than fully honest" in telling residents the impact of creating a library district.

Village fires policeman after 4th auto accident

A Palatine patrolman has been discharged after being found guilty by the police and fire commission of inattention to duty stemming from an April 1 car accident.

The three-man commission Friday found Patrolman John M. Johnson guilty of inattention to duty after Johnson's squad car struck an auto waiting for a traffic signal on Northwest Highway at Smith Street.

Johnson was involved in three similar auto accidents during the past two years.

The retention of Johnson "would result in unreasonable risk to fellow officers" and to residents of auto visitors to the village, the commission's findings state.

PAUL W. JUNG, commission chairman, said the commission "took note of the attempts that have been made to remedy the problem through discipline and driver's training."

Johnson was given a three-day suspension and received special training in police driving following the other accidents.

Jung said the commission considered psychiatric examinations and recommendations for treatment by two doctors.

"The reports don't state but imply that Johnson's mental status is not conducive to operate a patrol vehicle," the commission's findings stated.

Jung said the commission considered placing Johnson in a non-patrol position or granting him a medical leave of absence, but the "needs of the police department and the manpower situation would not allow these alternatives."

JOHNSON'S ATTORNEY, Arthur H. Zimmerman of Chicago, did not enter a plea. He said Johnson was examined by an Elgin psychiatrist who determined that Johnson's performance as a patrolman is affected by a terminal medical condition that afflicts his 4-year-old son.

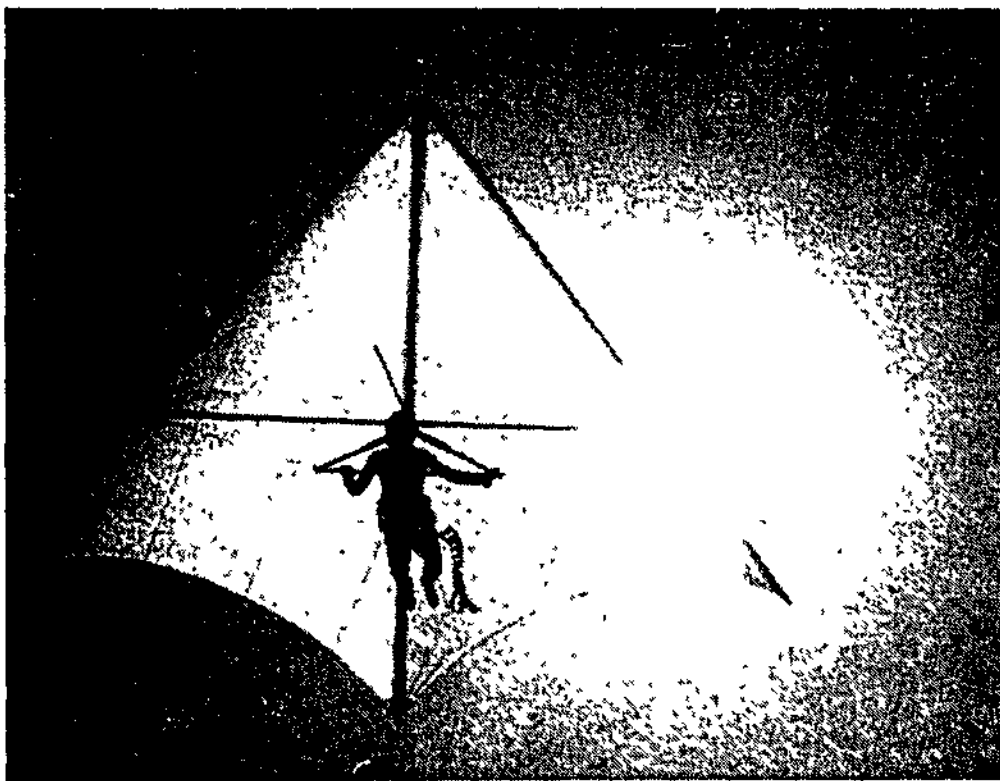

Jung said the commission "was sympathetic to Johnson's situation" but that it has "an obligation to the community."

Palatine police officials say they do not know if Johnson plans to appeal the decision.

Officials said the department will request that the village board replace Johnson at its next regular meeting.

The village police and fire commission will appoint a new patrolman from an existing list of candidates who have passed written and physical examinations.

The three earlier accidents involved Johnson's driving a squad car into a ditch April 3 at Cofax Street and Northwest Highway; driving into a concrete bridge abutment June 9, 1973, on the north side of Illinois Avenue at Salt Creek; and ramming into the rear of another squad car Oct. 23, 1973.

SKYSAILING is among the newest programs offered by area park districts. Elk Grove Park District employee Bill Hughes, below, tries his

Schaumburg woman gets 3-9 years in plot to kill husband

Marlene Swimley of Schaumburg was sentenced Monday to three to nine years in prison for soliciting a man she believed was a contract killer to murder her husband.

Criminal Court Judge Marvin E. Aspen said in passing the sentence that Mrs. Swimley lacked credibility and displayed a "distant, cold detachment" to what she was doing. Murderers are not usually cold and detached, he said.

Mrs. Swimley, 33, of 322 Meacham Rd., posted a $25,000 appeal bond after the sentencing. Her attorney, Louis Carbonaro, could not be reached for comment.

After a nine-day trial ended May 1, a 10-woman, 2-man jury found the Schaumburg housewife guilty of trying to hire an undercover agent to kill her husband, Alr National Guard Lt. Col. Duane A. Swimley, 46.

MRS. SWIMLEY was arrested Jan. 24, 1974 outside the Woodfield Theatres, where she met with Joseph Saladino, a state's attorney's investigator posing as a contract killer.

Judge Aspen referred to a tape recording of the meeting and said, "It might be argued that this was a bungled attempt. Except for a little bit of bad luck, it might have been a murder case."

In presentencing testimony Monday, Joan and Edward Danz, of Lombard, invoked the Fifth Amendment when asked by Assistant State's Atty. John DeRose about an airline refund check that bank records indicate was deposited in their account.

The records indicate it was later paid out in a check written to Harold Blaauw, once sued by Swimley for alienation of affection, though the suit was dropped before trial.

In earlier testimony it was revealed that Mrs. Swimley had offered a 15-year-old West Coast boy two airline tickets, which were never used, to kill her husband.

THE ALLEGED plot began when her son by a previous marriage, Joseph Enderle, 15, reportedly contacted a neighbor boy asking if he could obtain a "hit man" to be employed by his mother.

The neighbor later contacted a Rochester, N.Y., man, whose family contacted the County State's Attorney's office. Charges against Enderle for solicitation for murder later were dropped.

In other testimony Monday, Swimley denied that he "beat or slugged" his pregnant wife, causing a miscarriage.

"I've got my son. I'll have to start all over again," Swimley, who has custody of their son Duane, 8, said after sitting quietly through the sentencing.

He since has filed for divorce, charging his wife with adultery.

State holiday death toll dips

Holiday traffic deaths increase

The number of traffic fatalities over the Memorial Day weekend increased despite continuation this year of lower speed limits on the nation's highways.

Figures for the first of the warm weather national holidays appeared contrary to the trend set for Memorial Day 1974 when 390 persons were killed in traffic accidents, a 14-year low.

The lower speed limits were attributed in part to saving between 8,000 to 10,000 lives during 1974, the National Safety Council said. Other reasons included the energy crunch and the economy.

Highway deaths for 1974 were 48,000 the lowest since 1964 when 47,000 were killed. In 1973, the total was 55,800. In Illinois there were 1,958 traffic deaths during 1974 compared to 2,331 in 1973.

A United Press International count Monday showed 366 persons had died on the nation's highways since the holiday period began at 6 p.m. Friday.

by United Press International

A plane crash killing five persons and a car accident resulting in the death of a Waukegan man were among the worst accidents in Illinois during the Memorial Day holiday.

By late afternoon Monday, UPI's fatality count in Illinois showed 12 persons had died in traffic accidents, five in a plane crash and five in drownings.

State police said 26 persons were killed in traffic accidents in Illinois during the 1974 three-day Memorial holiday and 29 died during the three-day period in 1973.

AMONG THE ACCIDENTS marring the holiday this year was the crash Saturday night of a single-engine plane carrying the Edward Kikelo family of Chicago. Police said Kikelo, his wife, two children and his sister, were en route to their Wisconsin farm when the plane went down. Their bodies were found Sunday night.

In a two-car accident Monday, Benny Levy Jr. of Waukegan was killed and five persons injured. Police said Levy's car veered across the median on Interstate 55 near Joliet and hit a car driven by Henry Walters.

A number of children were among the victims of holiday accidents.

Six-year-old Colin Smith died near Naperville when he darted in front of a squad car. Thirteen-year-old Bryan King of Quincy was killed by a hit-and-run driver while riding his bicycle Sunday night. Three teen-age boys from Chicago, Charleston and DeKalb drowned in separate incidents, and a Chicago youth was electrocuted in a backyard accident at his home.

IN OTHER ACCIDENTS, David Kleiman, 19, of Hessville, Ind., was killed in Bloom Township when his car struck an object and crashed on the Calumet Expressway.

Thomas Zaborsky, 25, Worth, was killed early Sunday when his car crashed head-on with a car driven by Pamela Peronis, 21, Crown Point, Ind., who was seriously injured. Police said Peronis was driving the wrong way in the eastbound lane of Interstate 80 when the accident occurred.

Nostalgic dances, songs at Plum Grove

Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15

"Remember When," a collection of songs and dances from the 1920s, '30s and '40s will be presented to the PTSA at Plum Grove Junior High School today at 7:30 p.m.

The jazz band, directed by George Southgate, will feature numbers by Count Basie. The seventh-grade chorus, in costumes of the 1920s, will include the Charleston and softshoe in their dance routine. Karen Secco will direct and accompany the chorus.

The eighth-grade chorus directed by Carol Maloney will present, "The Red, White and Blue Review." Students will sing and dance to a polka, congo, jitterbug and drill march. Admission is free.

Kindergarten classes at Wood School, Palatine, are having a circus Thursday, June 5. The children will take part as different animals.

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59

William Coss and Kevin Connolly will present a magic show based on historical facts and illusions developed by the magicians of the 19th Century for students at Einstein School, Des Plaines.

Two performances will be presented today at 10:15 a.m. and 1 p.m. The event, sponsored by Urban Gateways, is designed to teach while entertaining.

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21

Parents of sixth-grade children planning to attend Jack London Junior High School next fall are invited to attend an orientation meeting today at 8 p.m. at the school, 1001 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

The school's various programs will be explained and parents will have the opportunity to ask questions.

Irving School, 1250 Radcliffe Rd., Buffalo Grove, will hold an orientation meeting for third-grade parents today at 7:30 p.m. The purpose of the meeting is to keep communication lines open between home and school and to inform parents of plans for next year.

"Parents' Day" programs will be held by students in Team I at Field School today through Thursday and June 2 at 2 p.m. at the school, 51 St. Armand Ln., Wheeling.

Students will present a play on reading, folk dances and introduce their parents to the alphabet characters they used to learn to read.

"Those Were the Days," a musical program, will be presented Wednesday at 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. at Kilmer School, 655 Golfview Terr., Buffalo Grove. The chorus, that includes students in Grades 4-6, and student dancers will present a variety of numbers including selections from "Oklahoma," "Bye Bye Birdie" and the "Mickey Mouse Club."

Students in first, fifth, and sixth grades at Tarkington School will present a musical program Thursday.

Work and play songs will be used as the theme of the 2:15 p.m. program at the school, 310 Scott St., Wheeling.

The kindergarten class of Jan Starosto at Alcott School, Buffalo Grove, is preparing for a field trip to Chicago Wednesday. The class will have a picnic at Lincoln Park Zoo, visit the aquarium and ride in a Chicago fire boat.

Kris Lewis and Cris Stron, sixth graders at Alcott School, Buffalo Grove, and their parents were awarded tickets to the final Northwest Community Concert Assn. performance. Both pupils were chosen on the basis of musical interest and school citizenship.

Prospect Heights Dist. 23

Lt. David Gwin of the Great Lakes Naval Air Station, Glenview, will present a pageant depicting "The History of the Flag" to pupils at Eisenhower School, Schoenbeck and McDonald roads, Prospect Heights, Thursday at 9 a.m.

Gwin and 14 men dressed in historical uniforms will trace the stages of American history.

Arlington Heights Dist. 25

Special activities to commemorate Memorial Day are planned Thursday at Keatington School, Arlington Heights. A Marine color guard will present a flag ceremony using flags and wearing uniforms from historical periods.

Maine Township High School Dist. 207

The Maine North High School concert choir and orchestra with a guest choir from Holy Trinity Lutheran Church of Glenview, will present "Festival of Music," Thursday at 8 p.m. at the school, 9511 Harrison St., Des Plaines.

Proceeds from the concert will benefit the Maine North Fine Arts Booster scholarships. General admission tickets are $2 and $1.50 for booster members. Tickets may be obtained by calling the school at 298-3500.

High School Dist. 214

Prospect High School students will begin celebrating the nation's 200th birthday Thursday with a Bicentennial kite fly from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The kites, homemade and purchased, will be flown over the practice fields.

Awards for the best painted kite with a Bicentennial theme and the surviving kite of a demolition derby will be given.

In general:

"What Do You Want To Know?" a question and answer panel will be presented at Wednesday's Council on Understanding Learning Disabilities meeting.

Panel members will include Lynn Young, resident of Buffalo Grove and mother of three children two of whom have learning disabilities; psychologist Kenneth Moses who works in rehabilitation counseling, and Dr. Keith McCloskey, pediatrician, who has served with the Harper College Child Development Program Advisory Committee.

The COUL meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in room 124C, at Hersey High School, 1000 E. Thomas, Arlington Heights.

River Trails Dist. 26

River Trails Junior High School, 1000 Wolf Rd., Mount Prospect, will hold its spring concert for all choral groups Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. The band concert will be June 4 at 7:30 p.m. All parents of River Trails pupils are invited to these two concerts. Sacred Heart of Mary High School 1-14 hold.

Activities honoring Sacred Heart of Mary High School graduating seniors begin Wednesday with an in-school assembly recognizing students' service in clubs and other activities.

A mass Thursday at 6:30 p.m. in the school gym will be followed by an awards dinner at 8 p.m. at The Lancer Steak House restaurant, Schaumburg.

Friday at 8 p.m. 135 graduates will receive their diplomas. A tea hosted by the mothers' club will follow the ceremonies in the school cafeteria.

Palatine High journalist wins national acclaim

Student journalist Edward Burg has won a first-place national award for an editorial on the closing of Palatine High School.

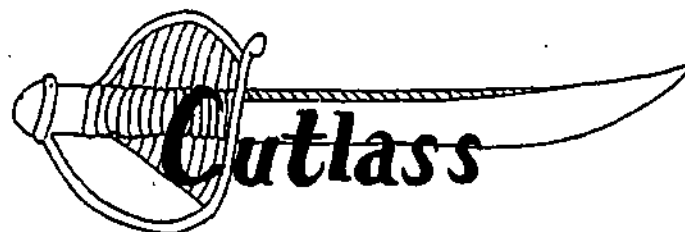

Burg, a senior at Palatine High School, is a member of the editorial board for the school newspaper "The Cutlass." He won first place in the editorial division of the 1975 Quill and Scroll National Writing Contest sponsored by the American Newspaper Publishers' Assn.

Burg's winning editorial, "One last request, name her for me," appeared in the Jan. 17 edition of "The Cutlass."

In his editorial Burg asked the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education to name its new school Palatine High School when it opens in 1977. The board took that action May 8 when it agreed to close old Palatine High School indefinitely.

The award will be presented to Burg today at 10 a.m. by Robert Y. Paddock, vice president-administration for the Paddock Corp.

(Burg's winning editorial is published in the adjoining columns).

One last request, name her for me

Hello there. My name is Palatine High School. Lots of people think that buildings can't talk, but that's just not true. So, while the Cutlass has given me this opportunity to express myself, I'd like to say a few things that have been on my mind lately.

Now I know that I'm 99 years old, and they're already organizing a centennial committee to celebrate my next birthday. And I know that some of my old walls are cracking and peeling, and some parts of me just aren't functioning right. But just because I'm old doesn't mean I'm not proud.

I have been called Palatine High School for a long time. I've had more students walk through my halls than you'd want to count. I've always associated my name with students and their learning. I'd be lying if I said I wasn't proud of what went on inside my doors every day.

But, alas, my days seem numbered. You see, they want to move all my students to a sparkling new high school which will be able to provide so many more services than I'm capable of providing. Naturally, this distresses me, but the truth is that I've kind of been expecting this for a few years now.

Well, I could go down fighting to remain the school I am, but I'd rather go down gracefully. But I have one last request. I don't want to be called Palatine High School if I'm used for adult education or special education. My whole life has been spent as a total High School. Now that I'm on my last leg, I hear all these people saying how much they loved me and how they want me to keep my name no matter for what my halls are used.

When a family wants a name to continue on even after the family head dies, it often names one of the children by the same name as the father. Let me just say that I think it would be a great honor for me indeed if they named that sparkling new school after me.

People remember other people long after they're gone, but it's just not the same with buildings like me. Why hold a big 100th birthday party for me next year if I'm going to be gone and forgotten in a few years?

Let me tell you, if I still had some of the ol' pep and fire left in me, I'd see to it myself that I was remembered. But since I don't, I'll have to ask that you see to it for me. When Building 6 is born, let it have my name. Then, at least my memory will live on, even if I can't.

Keep revenue sharing: township

Wheeling Township officials are leading a local drive to persuade Congress to retain the federal revenue-sharing program when it expires next year.

Ethel Kolerus, Wheeling Township supervisor, said Monday the township will survey other townships in the county on their use of revenue-sharing funds in the last four years.

The survey is being conducted at the request of the Township Officials of Cook County organization, which seeks to show Congress what kinds of community services have been provided through the program.

"We plan to call all the congressional representatives for Cook County to show them the survey results this fall after it is completed, and prove to them that the townships are prudently and properly spending the federal revenue-sharing funds," Mrs. Kolerus said.

"Township officials want the revenue-sharing program continued because we have been able to provide social services to residents without additional taxation. We want to back up our request with facts," she said.

PALATINE IS the first area township to allocate $350 to mail letters in support of continued revenue-sharing to all U.S. congressmen.

Howard I. Olsen, Palatine Township supervisor, said the township "is lobbying for the continuation of the program on behalf of everyone in the township."

"We are exercising what is the duty of our office in a proper and beneficial way," Olsen said. Although at least one township resident has criticized the township board's action.

Zoners to consider variation for house

The Palatine Zoning Board will consider a request to reconstruct a non-conforming house at 35 S. Walnut St. at its 8 p.m. meeting today at the Slade Street Fire Station, 117 W. Slade Street.

The house was more than 50 per cent destroyed in a fire April 7. Howard L. Mendenhall requested permission to rebuild the house with the same floor dimensions of 1,000 square feet rather than the required minimum total floor area of 1,250 square feet.

The board also will consider a request for a fence variation at 734 S. Warren Ave.

No vote for library construction

by LYNN ASINOF

The $3.2 million public library apparently will be built in Mount Prospect without a referendum.

Three key village board members indicated Monday they will not seek a referendum on the issue, based on reports that it would be difficult, if not impossible, to call back $4 million in bonds issued to finance the project.

Discussion of the issue is scheduled for tonight's village board meeting, with a vote expected on the referendum.

Trustees Edward B. Rhea Jr., Michael Minton and Leo Floros are expected to join Mayor Robert D. Teichert and Trustee E. F. Richardson in supporting the library project.

TEICHERT AND Richardson last year voted for the library, which was approved by the previous village board without a referendum because bonds were issued under village home rule powers. The five independents who won election to the board this April campaigned heavily on the library issue, charging that a referendum should have been conducted.

Rhea said the reports issued by financial consultant Paul D. Speer and the law firm of Chapman and Cutler show that the bonds cannot be recalled.

"We have no power to force people to sell them back to us," Rhea said. "You cannot hope to get them all back."

Moreover, Rhea noted the reports show the village must use the money for a capital improvement rather than operating expenses.

"We have the money. We can't get out of the debt," Rhea said. "I don't know of any capital purchase in the village that is more deserving than the new library."

MINTON CITED the Chapman and Cutler report as the major influence on his vote. "They state that there is no precedent for this case and that a test case would have to be filed. It is my experience that this would be very costly," he said. He added the village would be open to a number of legal challenges in such a case.

"Without hearing the arguments voiced by the other trustees, I would say let the library stand," Minton said.

Floros said that while he had not entirely made up his mind, he was leaning toward the library project. "The expenditures already made with the architects would mitigate heavily against going back on the project," Floros said, noting a report from the library board.

Even if the project were scrapped, the village would have to pay $137,200 in architects' fees. Floros said that if the matter went to referendum and was defeated "it would be difficult for me to justify that kind of waste. I don't ever like to be foolish. I don't believe in totally throwing money away," he said.

Trustee Richard N. Hendricks, who

Bond fund use for alternative project 'shaky'

Mount Prospect would be on shaky legal ground if it tried to use a $4 million bond issue for something other than a new public library or purchase of office space, according to a report from the Chicago law firm of Chapman and Cutler.

Howard Hush, attorney with the firm, recommended the village file a test case with the courts if a decision were made to abandon the library project. He said there is no precedent in such a case because the bonds were issued under home-rule powers.

"Because there is so little case law on this subject and because of the fact that the home-rule concept is so new in this state, we cannot give specific answers to all the questions you raise," Hush said in his report.

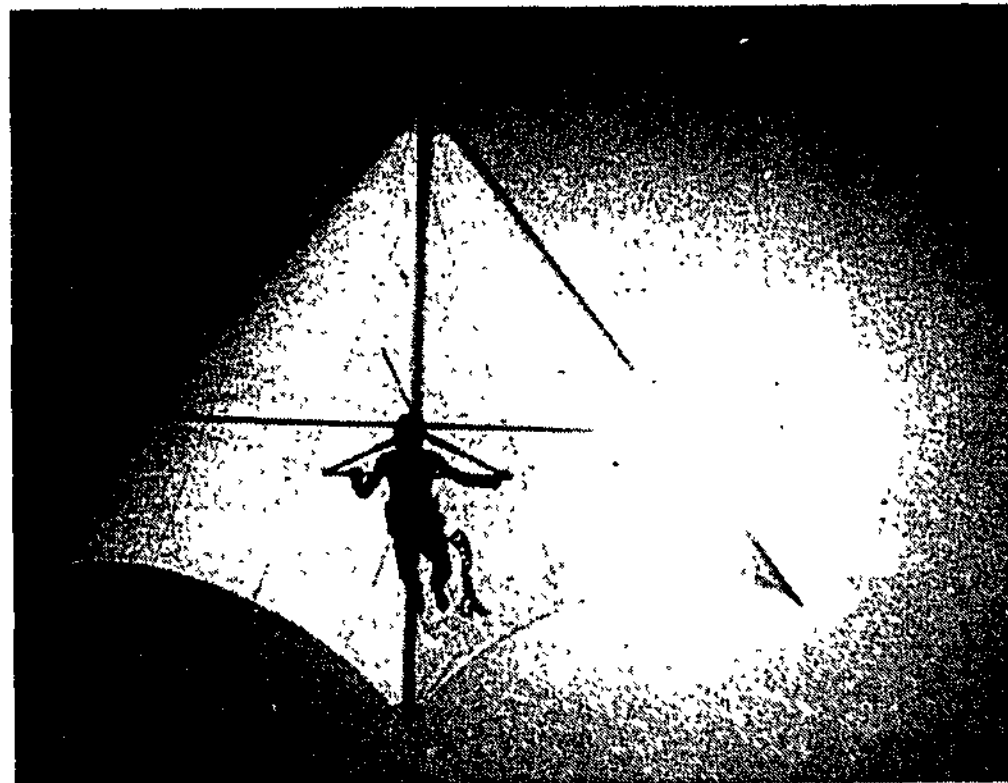

HUSH IS THE second to file a report on the $4 million bond issue as requested by the village board. The first was filed by Paul D. Speer and Associates, Chicago, a bond consultant. The board members called for the information, saying it was needed before they could decide whether to conduct a referendum on the $3.2 million public library project. Board members have said they want a referendum but only if it is possible and practical to cancel the library project.

The report states that because the bonds were issued only six months ago, the village might have difficulty trying "to justify to a court the expenditure of the board proceeds for a different purpose." The bonds were issued to finance the library and purchase of the Mount Prospect State Bank building.

Hush said it would be even more questionable to use the money for operating expenses as originally proposed by Trustee Richard N. Hendricks, who wanted to use the money to pay employees' salary raises. The attorney said such action would in effect be taxing residents for 20 years to pay for the 1975 fiscal operations.

consistently has opposed the library project, could not be reached for comment on his reaction to the legal and financial reports. Trustee Theodore J. Wattenberg, another opponent of the project, also could not be reached and is not expected to attend tonight's meeting.

The board meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the Village Hall, 112 E. Northwest Hwy. The board also is scheduled to consider awarding a contract for tree work in the village.

Schaumburg woman gets 3-9 years in plot to kill husband

Marlene Swimley of Schaumburg was sentenced Monday to three to nine years in prison for soliciting a man she believed was a contract killer to murder her husband.

Criminal Court Judge Marvin E. Aspen said in passing the sentence that Mrs. Swimley lacked credibility and displayed a "distant, cold detachment" to what she was doing. Murderers are not usually cold and detached, he said.

Mrs. Swimley, 33, of 322 Meacham Rd., posted a $25,000 appeal bond after the sentencing. Her attorney, Louis Carbonaro, could not be reached for comment.

After a nine-day trial ended May 1, a 10-woman, 2-man jury found the Schaumburg housewife guilty of trying to hire an undercover agent to kill her husband, Air National Guard Lt. Col. Duane A. Swimley, 46.

MRS. SWIMLEY was arrested Jan. 24, 1974 outside the Woodfield Theatre, where she met with Joseph Saladino, a state's attorney's investigator posing as a contract killer.

Judge Aspen referred to a tape recording of the meeting and said, "It might be argued that this was a bungled attempt. Except for a little bit of bad luck, it might have been a murder case."

In presentencing testimony Monday, Joan and Edward Danz, of Lombard, invoked the Fifth Amendment when asked by Assistant State's Atty. John DeRose about an airline refund check that bank records indicate was deposited in their account.

The records indicate it was later paid out in a check written to Harold Blaauw, once sued by Swimley for alienation of affection, though the suit was dropped before trial.

In earlier testimony it was revealed that Mrs. Swimley had offered a 15-year-old West Coast boy two airline tickets, which were never used, to kill her husband.

THE ALLEGED plot began when her son by a previous marriage, Joseph Enderle, 15, reportedly contacted a neighbor boy asking if he could obtain a "hit man" to be employed by his mother.

The neighbor later contacted a Rochester, N.Y., man, whose family contacted the County State's Attorney's office. Charges against Enderle for solicitation for murder later were dropped.

In other testimony Monday, Swimley denied that he "beat or slugged" his pregnant wife, causing a miscarriage.

"I've got my son. I'll have to start all over again," Swimley, who has custody of their son Duane, 8, said after sitting quietly through the sentencing.

He since has filed for divorce, charging his wife with adultery.

State holiday death toll dips

Holiday traffic deaths increase

The number of traffic fatalities over the Memorial Day weekend increased despite continuation this year of lower speed limits on the nation's highways.

Figures for the first of the warm weather national holidays appeared contrary to the trend set for Memorial Day 1974 when 390 persons were killed in traffic accidents, a 14-year low.

The lower speed limits were attributed in part to saving between 8,000 to 10,000 lives during 1974, the National Safety Council said. Other reasons included the energy crunch and the economy.

Highway deaths for 1974 were 48,000 the lowest since 1964 when 47,000 were killed. In 1973, the total was 53,000. In Illinois there were 1,958 traffic deaths during 1974 compared to 2,331 in 1973.

A United Press International count Monday showed 366 persons had died on the nation's highways since the holiday period began at 8 p.m. Friday.

by United Press International

A plane crash killing five persons and a car accident resulting in the death of a Waukegan man were among the worst accidents in Illinois during the Memorial Day holiday.

By late afternoon Monday, UPI's fatality count in Illinois showed 12 persons had died in traffic accidents, five in a plane crash and five in drownings.

State police said 26 persons were killed in traffic accidents in Illinois during the three-day Memorial holiday and 29 died during the three-day period in 1973.

AMONG THE ACCIDENTS marring the holiday this year was the crash Saturday night of a single-engine plane carrying the Edward Kikelo family of Chicago. Police said Kikelo, his wife, two children and his sister, were en route to their Wisconsin farm when the plane went down. Their bodies were found Sunday night.

In a two-car accident Monday, Benny Levy Jr. of Waukegan was killed and five persons injured. Police said Levy's car veered across the median on Interstate 55 near Joliet and hit a car driven by Henry Walters.

A number of children were among the victims of holiday accidents.

Six-year-old Colin Smith died near Naperville when he darted in front of a squad car. Thirteen-year-old Bryan King of Quincy was killed by a hit-and-run driver while riding his bicycle Sunday night. Three teen-age boys from Chicago, Charleston and DeKalb drowned in separate incidents, and a Chicago youth was electrocuted in a backyard accident at his home.

IN OTHER ACCIDENTS, David Kielman, 19, of Hesseville, Ind., was killed in Bloom Township when his car struck an object and crashed on the Calumet Expressway.

Thomas Zaborsky, 25, Worth, was killed early Sunday when his car crashed head-on with a car driven by Pantella Peronis, 21, Crown Point, Ind., who was seriously injured. Police said Peronis was driving the wrong way in the eastbound lane of Interstate 80 when the accident occurred.

Nostalgic dances, songs at Plum Grove

Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15

"Remember When," a collection of songs and dances from the 1920s, '30s and '40s will be presented to the PTSA at Plum Grove Junior High School today at 7:30 p.m.

The jazz band, directed by George Southgate, will feature numbers by Count Basie. The seventh-grade chorus, in costumes of the 1920s, will include the Charleston and softshoe in their dance routine. Karen Secore will direct and accompany the chorus.

The eighth-grade chorus directed by Carol Maloney will present, "The Red, White and Blue Review." Students will sing and dance to a polka, congo, jitterbug and drill march.

Admission is free.

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59

William Coss and Kevin Connolly will present a magic show based on historical feats and illusions developed by the magicians of the 19th Century for students at Einstein School, Des Plaines.

Two performances will be presented today at 10:15 a.m. and 1 p.m. The event, sponsored by Urban Gateways, is designed to teach while entertaining.

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21

Parents of sixth-grade children planning to attend Jack London Junior High School next fall are invited to attend an orientation meeting today at 8 p.m. at the school, 1001 W. Dundie Rd., Wheeling.

The school's various programs will be explained and parents will have the opportunity to ask questions.

Irving School, 1250 Radcliffe Rd., Buffalo Grove, will hold an orientation meeting for third-grade parents today at 7:30 p.m. The purpose of the meeting is to keep communication lines open between home and school and to inform parents of plans for next year.

"Parents' Day" programs will be held by students in Team 1 at Field School today through Thursday and June 2 at 2 p.m. at the school, 51 St. Armand Ln., Wheeling.

Students will present a play on reading, folk dances and introduce their parents to the alphabet characters they used to learn to read.

"Those Were the Days," a musical program, will be presented Wednesday at 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. at Kilmer School, 655 Golfview Terr., Buffalo Grove. The chorus, that includes students in Grades 4-6, and student dancers will present a variety of numbers including selections from "Oklahoma," "Bye Bye Birdie" and the "Mickey Mouse Club."

Students in first, fifth, and sixth grades at Tarkington School will present a musical program Thursday.

Work and play songs will be used as the theme of the 2:15 p.m. program at the school, 310 Scott St., Wheeling.

The kindergarten class of Jan Starosta at Alcott School, Buffalo Grove, is preparing for a field trip to Chicago Wednesday. The class will have a picnic at Lincoln Park Zoo, visit the aquarium and ride in a Chicago fire boat.

Kris Lewis and Cris Stron, sixth graders at Alcott School, Buffalo Grove, and their parents were awarded tickets to the final Northwest Community Concert Assn. performance. Both pupils were chosen on the basis of musical interest and school citizenship.

Prospect Heights Dist. 23

Lt. David Gwin of the Great Lakes Naval Air Station, Glenview, will present a pageant depicting "The History of the Flag" to pupils at Eisenhower School, Schoenbeck and McDonald roads, Prospect Heights, Thursday at 9 a.m.

Gwin and 14 men dressed in historical uniforms will trace the stages of American history.

Arlington Heights Dist. 25

Special activities to commemorate Memorial Day are planned Thursday at Kensington School, Arlington Heights. A Marine color guard will present a flag ceremony using flags and wearing uniforms from historical periods.

Maine Township High School Dist. 207

The Maine North High School concert choir and orchestra with a guest choir from Holy Trinity Lutheran Church of Glenview, will present "Festival of Music," Thursday at 8 p.m. at the school, 9511 Harrison St., Des Plaines.

Proceeds from the concert will benefit the Maine North Fine Arts Booster scholarships. General admission tickets are $2 and $1.50 for booster members. Tickets may be obtained by calling the school at 290-6300.

High School Dist. 214

Prospect High School students will begin celebrating the nation's 200th birthday Thursday with a Bicentennial kite fly from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The kites, homemade and purchased, will be flown over the practice fields.

Awards for the best painted kite with a Bicentennial theme and the surviving kite of a demolition derby will be given.

In general:

"What Do You Want to Know?" a question and answer panel will be presented at Wednesday's Council on Understanding Learning Disabilities meeting.

Panel members will include Lynn Young, resident of Buffalo Grove and mother of three children two of whom have learning disabilities; psychologist Kenneth Moses who works in rehabilitation counseling, and Dr. Keith McCloskey, pediatrician, who has served with the Harper College Child Development Program Advisory Committee.

The COULD meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in room 124C, at Hersey High School, 1900 E. Thomas, Arlington Heights.

River Trails Dist. 26

River Trails Junior High School, 1000 Wolf Rd., Mount Prospect, will hold its spring concert for all choral groups Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. The band concert will be June 4 at 7:30 p.m. All parents of River Trails pupils are invited to these two concerts.

Sacred Heart of Mary High School 1-14 hold

Activities honoring Sacred Heart of Mary High School graduating seniors begin Wednesday with an in-school assembly recognizing students' service in clubs and other activities.

A mass Thursday at 6:30 p.m. in the school gym will be followed by an awards dinner at 8 p.m. at The Lancer Steak House restaurant, Schaumburg.

Friday at 8 p.m. 135 graduates will receive their diplomas. A tea hosted by the mothers' club will follow the ceremonies in the school cafeteria.

WORKMEN LAY the groundwork for a waterfall near the downtown water tower in Mount Prospect. Many materials were do-noted for the beautification project, and more help is needed to complete the project.

The waterfall will be surrounded by trees and flowers.

Bicentennial dress for tower

A 7-ft. waterfall—right downtown!

by LYNN ASINOF

A seven-foot waterfall is taking form in the shadow of Mount Prospect's downtown water tower.

Members of the village public works department already have piled the boulders that will form the waterfall and have begun installing a concrete basin to hold the water.

The whole thing is part of a beautification project that is the brainchild of David L. Creamer, public works director.

CREAMER SAID work on the project dates back four or five years. He said he first had to get rid of the concrete, which originally covered the land around the water tower, Northwest Highway between Evergreen Avenue and Elm Street. He managed to get the rocks donated and now he is finally getting the waterfall built.

There is more to come, Creamer said, noting that he wants the land planted with flowers and trees. He said there also may be park benches.

The extent of the work, however, depends on the extent of donations. Creamer said that he is talking to members of a variety of civic groups that have expressed an interest in the project, which may take on a Bicentennial flavor.

One of the flower gardens may be planted to form the village's Bicentennial logo, while the water tower will be painted with a Bicentennial theme.

"BUT YOU'VE got to get the basics done to get people's interest," Creamer said of the work now being done.

The first part of the project will include a seven-to eight-foot waterfall that will recirculate the water collected in the concrete basin.

"When it's done, it's going to knock your eyes out," said Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley, noting that the water tower also will be repainted.

In a similar project the village has beautified the small traffic island in the S-curve on Ill. Rte. 83.

Keep U.S. cash program: townships

Wheeling Township officials are leading a local drive to persuade Congress to retain the federal revenue-sharing program when it expires next year.

Ethel Kolerus, Wheeling Township supervisor, said Monday the township will survey other townships in the county on their use of revenue-sharing funds in the last four years.

The survey is being conducted at the request of the Township Officials of Cook County organization, which seeks to show Congress what kinds of community services have been provided through the program.

"We plan to call all the congressional representatives for Cook County to show them the survey results this fall after it is completed, and prove to them that the townships are prudently and properly spending the federal revenue-sharing funds," Mrs. Kolerus said.

"Township officials want the revenue-sharing program continued because we have been able to provide social services to residents without additional taxation. We want to back up our request with facts," she said.

PALATINE IS the first area township to allocate $350 to mail letters in support of continued revenue-sharing to all U.S. congressmen.

Howard I. Olsen, Palatine Township supervisor, said the township "is lobbying for the continuation of the program on behalf of everyone in the township."

"We are exercising what is the duty of our office in a proper and beneficial way," Olsen said. Although at least one township resident has criticized the township board's action.

Ann Scollay, 669 Carpenter Dr., Palatine, said she opposes the action because "it is denying me my regress on the situation. The township says it is writing all of the congressmen on behalf of everyone, but not everyone wants to see the townships receive federal revenue-sharing again," said Mrs. Scollay, a member of the Palatine League of Women Voters.

Crane to emcee Naval Junior ROTC awards

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, is scheduled to preside over ceremonies tonight honoring Naval Junior ROTC cadets from Buffalo Grove, Hersey and Wheeling high schools.

Ceremonies will begin at 7 p.m. in the Wheeling High School football stadium, 900 S. Elmhurst Rd. The annual awards parade will be followed by a reception at the school, hosted by the ROTC Cadet Parents Assn.

The Distinguished Cadet Plaque, awarded to the cadet with the highest over-all scholastic standing will be presented to Katherine Badzioch, a senior at Wheeling. The First Year Distinguished Cadet Award will go to Richard Lecropane of Buffalo Grove. Second Year Distinguished Cadet is James Pattison of Wheeling.

Miss Badzioch also will receive the Daughters of the American Revolution award as an outstanding young woman.

Diane Koelper of Wheeling will receive the Honor Cadet Plaque for the highest academic standing. The Aptitude Award Plaque will be presented to Cadet Lt. Cmdr. Brian Eul, the unit commander.

Phillip Hoel of Buffalo Grove will be awarded the Reserve Officers Assn. Award for outstanding contributions in public relations.

Winners of the award for leadership potential, sponsored by the AMVETS Post of Wheeling and Buffalo Grove are: Richard Lecropane, Buffalo Grove; Mari Jo George, Hersey; and Charles Reyes, Wheeling.

Boy, 6, injured in two-car accident

A 6-year-old Mount Prospect youth suffered a minor head injury Monday in a two-car accident at 1050 S. Elmhurst Rd., Mount Prospect police said.

The youth, Chris L. Weidman, 1301 Cottonwood Ln., was taken to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, for treatment. His mother, Ann Marie Weidman, 44, was charged by police with failure to yield the right-of-way from a private drive and will appear July 2 in the Mount Prospect branch of Circuit Court.

The other driver, David W. Pauling, 16, of 436 Ambleside Dr., Des Plaines, was not injured, police said. The accident occurred about 3:45 p.m.

Schaumburg woman gets 3-9 years in plot to kill husband

Marlene Swimley of Schaumburg was sentenced Monday to three to nine years in prison for soliciting a man she believed was a contract killer to murder her husband.

Criminal Court Judge Marvin E. Aspen said in passing the sentence that Mrs. Swimley lacked credibility and displayed a "distant, cold detachment" to what she was doing. Murderers are not usually cold and detached, he said.

Mrs. Swimley, 33, of 322 Meacham Rd., posted a $25,000 appeal bond after the sentencing. Her attorney, Louis Carbonaro, could not be reached for comment.

After a nine-day trial ended May 1, a 10-woman, 2-man jury found the Schaumburg housewife guilty of trying to hire an undercover agent to kill her husband, Air National Guard Lt. Col. Duane A. Swimley, 46.

MRS. SWIMLEY was arrested Jan. 24, 1974 outside the Woodfield Theatres, where she met with Joseph Saladino, a state's attorney's investigator posing as a contract killer.

Judge Aspen referred to a tape recording of the meeting and said, "It might be argued that this was a bungled attempt. Except for a little bit of bad luck, it might have been a murder case."

In presentencing testimony Monday, Joan and Edward Danz, of Lombard, invoked the Fifth Amendment when asked by Assistant State's Atty. John DeRose about an airline refund check that bank records indicate was deposited in their account.

The records indicate it was later paid out in a check written to Harold Blaauw, once sued by Swimley for alienation of affection, though the suit was dropped before trial.

In earlier testimony it was revealed that Mrs. Swimley had offered a 15-year-old West Coast boy two airline tickets, which were never used, to kill her husband.

THE ALLEGED plot began when her son by a previous marriage, Joseph Enderle, 15, reportedly contacted a neighbor boy asking if he could obtain a "hit man" to be employed by his mother.

The neighbor later contacted a Rochester, N.Y., man, whose family contacted the County State's Attorney's office. Charges against Enderle for solicitation for murder later were dropped.

In other testimony Monday, Swimley denied that he "beat or slugged" his pregnant wife, causing a miscarriage.

"I've got my son. I'll have to start all over again," Swimley, who has custody of their son Duane, 8, said after sitting quietly through the sentencing.

He since has filed for divorce, charging his wife with adultery.

DOWN TO EARTH. Todd Christman of Arlington Heights peers out over the railing of a fire-truck snorkel after a ride 85 feet above the ground. The ride was all part of his being department chief for a day recently in LaPorte, Ind.

Balloon proves even better than his own wishing well

When it comes to distance there's not much to say about the ability of second grader Todd Christman of Arlington Heights.

But you have to admire his aim. While his fellow schoolmates at Windsor School in Arlington Heights, launched postcard carrying balloons earlier this month that made it across the lake into Michigan and even on into Canada, Todd's card made it only 100 miles east to LaPorte, Ind.

But his card, on which Todd wrote his wish to become a fireman, was found by LaPorte firefighter, Bob Wedow, who ended up fulfilling Todd's dream.

Wedow wrote back, "Who knows, Todd, this may be as lucky as finding a magic lamp as Aladdin once found with the Genie inside . . . after all, we firefighters have to stick together."

WEDOW HELPED arrange "Todd Christman Day," which started with a banquet for Todd and his family, then continued with tours, gifts from local merchants, a ride through LaPorte on a fire truck and even a ride in a snorkel.

Todd was proclaimed fire department chief for a day by LaPorte Mayor Dennis Smith, an honor that came with a fireman's helmet and fire department badge No. 1.

Dazed and a bit bewildered by all the attention he was getting, Todd ended the day at his second most favorite place outside of a firehouse — McDonald's.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Christman, Arlington Heights, Todd says he's sure now more than ever that he wants to be a fireman, although he's still a little interested in being a policeman.

To be sure, Todd said he's thinking about sending up another balloon.

State holiday death toll dips

Holiday traffic deaths increase

The number of traffic fatalities over the Memorial Day weekend increased despite continuation this year of lower speed limits on the nation's highways.

Figures for the first of the warm weather national holidays appeared contrary to the trend set for Memorial Day 1974 when 390 persons were killed in traffic accidents, a 14-year low.

The lower speed limits were attributed in part to saving between 8,000 to 10,000 lives during 1974, the National Safety Council said. Other reasons included the energy crunch and the economy.

Highway deaths for 1974 were 43,000 the lowest since 1964 when 47,000 were killed. In 1973, the total was 55,800. In Illinois there were 1,938 traffic deaths during 1974 compared to 2,331 in 1973.

A United Press International count Monday showed 366 persons had died on the nation's highways since the holiday period began at 6 p.m. Friday.

by United Press International

A plane crash killing five persons and a car accident resulting in the death of a Waukegan man were among the worst accidents in Illinois during the Memorial Day holiday.

By late afternoon Monday, UPI's fatality count in Illinois showed 12 persons had died in traffic accidents, five in a plane crash and five in drownings.

State police said 26 persons were killed in traffic accidents in Illinois during the 1974 three-day Memorial holiday and 29 died during the three-day period in 1973.

AMONG THE ACCIDENTS marring the holiday this year was the crash Saturday night of a single-engine plane carrying the Edward Kikcio family of Chicago. Police said Kikcio, his wife, two children and his sister, were en route to their Wisconsin farm when the plane went down. Their bodies were found Sunday night.

In a two-car accident Monday, Benny Levy Jr. of Waukegan was killed and five persons injured. Police said Levy's car veered across the median on Interstate 55 near Joliet and hit a car driven by Henry Walters.

A number of children were among the victims of holiday accidents.

Six-year-old Colin Smith died near Naperville when he darted in front of a squad car. Thirteen-year-old Bryan King of Quincy was killed by a hit-and-run driver while riding his bicycle Sunday night. Three teen-age boys from Chicago, Charleston and DeKalb drowned in separate incidents, and a Chicago youth was electrocuted in a backyard accident at his home.

IN OTHER ACCIDENTS, David Kielman, 19, of Hessville, Ind., was killed in Bloom Township when his car struck an object and crashed on the Calumet Expressway.

Thomas Zaborsky, 25, Worth, was killed early Sunday when his car crashed head-on with a car driven by Pantelis Peronis, 21, Crown Point, Ind., who was seriously injured. Police said Peronis was driving the wrong way in the eastbound lane of Interstate 80 when the accident occurred.

Sacred Heart of Mary High School 1-14 held.

Activities honoring Sacred Heart of Mary High School graduating seniors begin Wednesday with an in-school assembly recognizing students' service in clubs and other activities.

A mass Thursday at 6:30 p.m. in the school gym will be followed by an awards dinner at 8 p.m. at The Lancer Steak House restaurant, Schaumburg.

Friday at 8 p.m. 135 graduates will receive their diplomas. A tea hosted by the mothers' club will follow the ceremonies in the school cafeteria.

"IT'S A GIRL!" After three sons, Patton School Principal Kenneth Swanson was presented with a daughter this week. Students at Patton decided to tell the world. Upon returning to school, Swanson was greeted with a banner outside the main school entrance.

State to move trailer residents

State officials hope to begin relocating residents of the Elk Grove Mobile Homes Park, 941 Higgins Rd., Elk Grove Township, by the end of the summer.

Leo Eisel, director of the Illinois Division of Water Resources, Monday said a series of meetings will be held next month with the 750 residents of the trailer park to outline details of the relocation plan.

He said the relocation will begin as soon as the Forest Preserve District acquires the trailer park land.

"We would like to think that we can begin relocating residents by the end of the summer," Eisel said.

THE RELOCATION is needed because the property the trailer park occupies will become part of a 470-acre lake in the Upper Salt Creek Watershed Plan.

Meetings with the residents will be from 10 a.m. to noon and 2 to 4 p.m. June 14; 7 to 9 p.m. June 16, 17, 19 and 20; and 10 a.m. to noon June 21. All of the sessions will be in the Elk Grove Township Hall, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

Many residents of the trailer park have expressed apprehension over the proposed relocation plan, however Eisel said none of the residents will lose anything and some stand to gain.

"Federal law requires us to provide new housing equal to or better than what currently exists," he said, additing that some of the trailers in the park are old and probably could not be relocated. He indicated persons with old trailers will receive new housing and not just a cash settlement for the appraised value of the trailer.

EISEL SAID reservations are being made to relocate some of the residents at the Oasis Mobile Home Park near O'Hare Airport.

He said the state also will notify residents of the trailer park about the meetings by letter, and ask them to attend a specific session.

"We are planning the meetings for nights and weekends in an effort to accommodate all the residents," a spokesman for Eisel said.

Hilton remodeling starts today

The opening phase of an estimated $1 million renovation plan for the Arlington Park Hilton will begin today.

Hilton officials unveiled renovation plans — including redecoration of the hotel lobby and the Carousel restaurant — at a reception Sunday night. The first phase is expected to cost about $350,000, said Lane LaCoy, assistant general manager of the hotel.

LaCoy said the renovation is aimed at attracting "more convention people and people who come in on our transient plan."

"The hotel generally needs sprucing up — it needs a lot of work," he said.

LaCOY SAID the renovation has no connection with plans for a proposed sports stadium being discussed by Madison Square Gardens Corp.

"We are a Hilton hotel and we're just doing the hotel. It has nothing to do with the stadium," he said.

First-phase renovation plans include new rugs, carpeting, wallpaper and furniture for the lobby; a fireplace, new carpeting and new furniture for the Carousel restaurant; new carpeting, wall covering and draperies for 10 meeting rooms, and new draperies, carpeting and bedspreads for 45 rooms.

LaCoy said the hotel also will redecorate the entrance to the Top of the Towers Restaurant and "dress up" health club facilities, including the locker rooms and swimming pool.

THE FIRST PHASE of renovation is expected to be completed by the end of June, LaCoy said.

Crane to emcee Naval Junior ROTC awards

U.S. Rep. Phillip M. Crane, R-12th, is scheduled to preside over ceremonies tonight honoring Naval Junior ROTC cadets from Buffalo Grove, Hese and Wheeling high schools.

Ceremonies will begin at 7 p.m. in the Wheeling High School football stadium, 900 S. Elmhurst Rd. The annual awards parade will be followed by a reception at the school, hosted by the ROTC Cadet Parents Assn.

The Distinguished Cadet Plaque, awarded to the cadet with the highest over-all scholastic standing will be presented to Katherine Badzioch, a senior at Wheeling. The First Year Distinguished Cadet Award will go to Richard Lecropane of Buffalo Grove. Second Year Distinguished Cadet is James Pattison of Wheeling.

Miss Badzioch also will receive the Daughters of the American Revolution award as an outstanding young woman.

Diane Koelper of Wheeling will receive the Honor Cadet Plaque for the highest academic standing. The Aptitude Award Plaque will be presented to Cadet Lt. Cmdr. Brian Eul, the unit commander.

Phillip Hoel of Buffalo Grove will be awarded the Reserve Officers Assn. Award for outstanding contributions in public relations.

Winners of the award for leadership potential, sponsored by the AMVETS Post of Wheeling and Buffalo Grove are: Richard Lecropane, Buffalo Grove; Mari Jo George, Hese; and Charles Reyes, Wheeling.

Townships back revenue sharing

prudently and properly spending the federal revenue-sharing funds," Mrs. Kolerus said.

"Township officials want the revenue-sharing program continued because we have been able to provide social services to residents without additional taxation. We want to back up our request with facts," she said.

PALATINE IS the first area township to allocate $350 to mail letters in support of continued revenue-sharing to all U.S. congressmen.

Howard I. Olsen, Palatine Township supervisor, said the township "is lobbying for the continuation of the program on behalf of everyone in the township."

"We are exercising what is the duty of our office in a proper and beneficial way," Olsen said. Although at least one township resident has criticized the township board's action.

Ann Scollay, 669 Carpenter Dr., Palatine, said she opposes the action because "it is denying me my regress on the situation. The township says it is writing all of the congressmen on behalf of everyone, but not everyone wants to see the townships receive federal revenue-sharing again," said Mrs. Scollay, a member of the Palatine League of Women Voters.

Her husband, Jack, ran against Olsen for township supervisor on a platform that included phasing out township government.

OLSEN SAID revenue-sharing usually comprises 33 per cent of the township's budget. Palatine Township has received about $300,000 in federal revenue-sharing funds since the program began four years ago.

Mrs. Kolerus said the survey is an effort "to unify all county townships in getting the program renewed."

"All townships in this area have been able to provide mental health services, services for the aged, for the poor and for the youth, and I think that almost all of the residents in any township have benefited from one or more of these services. And each of them is financed with revenue-sharing," she said.

Arlington Heights' zoning board Monday night continued a hearing on a muffler shop proposed for the northwest corner of Arlington Heights and Palatine roads because of doubt over how the property will be developed.

The proposed Merlin muffler store would occupy only part of an L-shaped piece of land that fronts Arlington Heights and Palatine roads. The muffler shop would face Arlington Heights Road.

Backers of the project told the zoning board they plan to sell the Palatine Road portion of the property for a separate and as yet undetermined business.

Legal tangles connected with selling part of the property and the unknown use prompted the zoning board to continue the hearing to July 14.

"We're not trying to discourage you. But it is extremely difficult for us to make a recommendation to the board of trustees on a piece of property that we don't know the ultimate use of," said Fredrick Marks, chairman of the zoning board.

Operators of the muffler shop are seeking a variation from the business zoning restrictions on the property that do not permit auto repairs.

Because of heavy traffic at the intersection, the zoning board requested that the developer prepare a traffic study for the muffler shop.

If traffic in and out of the shop is limited, a muffler shop "may be an acceptable use on Arlington Heights Road," Marks said.
